PRESIDENT ASKS OVER BILLION IN NEW TAX LEVIES

Details Are Left Up to Congress.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt was charged by Republican senate leaders today with evading his responsibility when he passed the buck to congress on the raising of new taxes to meet his estimate of 1 billion 137 million dollars for financing his soil conservation substitute for the AAA and the bonus.

Mr. Roosevelt made his estimate at his press conference in recounting the subject of his four hour discussion with congressional leaders and fiscal experts last night. He elaborated on a three point program calling for 120 million dollars a year in new taxes to carry additional charges involved in bonus payment, 493 million in new taxes to meet the loss in AAA processing taxes to next July 1, and 524 million in new taxes to carry on soil conservation in the next fiscal year beginning July 1.

Plans "Windfall" Levy.

Mr. Roosevelt with a firm jut of his chin said he would make no recommendation as to the form of the bulk of the taxes nor would he let the treasury do so. However, he said that a special tax, which he termed a "windfall" tax would be levied against those benefited by the Supreme court's order returning 300 million dollars in disputed processing tax collections. He estimated the windfall tax will bring 150 million to the treasury.

The Republican attack was led by Senator L. J. Dickinson, who complained that President Roosevelt "spends the money but lets congress worry about collecting it. The President says when we are spending the money, 'Let me do it.' When we are levying taxes he says, 'Let congress do it!'

"The processing tax idea is nothing but a sales tax on the cost of living."

Hastings Makes Comment.

Senator Daniel O. Hastings [Rep., Del.] observed: "The President is not going to make any recommendation. He is careful and specific when he wants appropriations which he or his departments will spend, but when it comes to the unpopular task of levying taxes on the people he makes no recommendations and leaves it up to the congress."

Chairman Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.] of the senate finance committee sought to allay fears of his colleagues in the Democratic wing that the tax legislation will prolong the session far beyond the hoped for deadline of May 1. He said enactment of the bill would take some time but not enough to prolong the session. He added he hoped a program could be devised which will not interfere with the upturn of business.

Vandenberg Critical.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.] retorted the administration would probably hook up the tax program with an emergency program so that it can get any amount of money it wants. No action is expected until the President sends his tax message to Capitol hill about the middle of next week.

In the house the President's 1 billion 137 million dollar estimate provoked surprise. Chairman Robert L. Doughton [Dem., N. C.] of the house ways and means committee, before the presidential estimate was made had said he believed congress would not be called upon to raise more than 500 to 600 million dollars. Told of the President's estimate, he said he thought it was high, but added hastily that he guessed we could get something like 1 billion 137 million if the President wants it."

Other members of the committee indicated opposition to any tax bill above 500 or 600 million dollars.

Speaks from Notes.

In his exposition of the tax problem at his press conference Mr. Roosevelt was slow and deliberate, referring frequently to notes. He told the reporters he was going to tell his story in words of one syllable as he did last night to congressional leaders so it could be understood. He followed a question and answer system to detail his exposition. The conference was the longest he has held since that one day last June when he

City Goes on Eastern Time Tonight

BUSINESS READY FOR PERMANENT CLOCK CHANGE

Hearing on Railway Compliance Ends.

BY LLOYD WENDT.

Tonight Chicago will set its clocks ahead one hour in preparation for the advent of eastern standard time at 2 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The permanent abandonment of central standard time is authorized by a city ordinance of last Nov. 4. It is similar to the annual change to summer daylight time the city has made each year for the last 17 years. There is this difference: There will be no change back in the fall.

Most railroads will operate their suburban trains on eastern time but will continue, for the time being at least, to run their through trains on central time, as they did under the summer daylight saving law.

Banks, the Chicago Stock exchange, the Board of Trade, theaters, churches, and business and industry in general have announced that they will observe the eastern time ordinance.

Executives Remind Employes.

Orders for employés to abide by the time ordinance were issued by Postmaster Ernest J. Kruetgen; E. C. Yellowley, district chief of the federal alcohol tax unit; the federal courts; the Standard Oil company; James B. McCahey, as president of the board of education; the Catholic parochial school board, and all city officials. The county board, according to Commissioner Daniel Ryan, will take similar action on Monday.

Most residents are observing the ordinance voluntarily, since it imposes no penalty for failure to conform, but radio station WLS and the suburban trains of the North Western railway are to remain on central time. The North Western, however, will advance all its suburban schedules one hour tomorrow, so that "the 8:10 train will be shown as the 7:10 on the time card."

Board of Trade Revises Hours.

At a meeting yesterday the Board of Trade ruled that its trading hours will be 10:30 a. m. to 2:15 p. m., eastern standard time, beginning Monday.

The change to eastern time puts Chicago in that system permanently for the first time in 53 years. Before 1883 Chicago operated on its own time, which was nine minutes faster than eastern time. In November of 1883 the American railroads prescribed their own time system for the country, and Chicago was placed in the central time zone.

Dissatisfaction with this system first arose in 1914, when the Chicago Association of Commerce recommended eastern time for the city. The railroads objected, and nothing further was done, although immediately after the war Chicago passed a summer daylight saving ordinance. Since then this ordinance, twice approved in referenda, has continued effective.

Railway Conformity Up to I. C. C.

Whether the railroads now will follow the city's lead and will schedule trains entering and leaving Chicago under eastern standard time will be determined by the interstate commerce commission, which yesterday

Mother of Ann Cooper Hewitt Tries Suicide

Jersey City, N. J., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Mrs. Maryon Hewitt McCarter, sought on a mayhem warant issued in San Francisco on charges brought by her daughter, was found by police tonight in the psychopathic ward of the Medical center, where she was under treatment following a suicide attempt on Feb. 21.

Deputy Police Chief Charles Wilson said he was permitted to speak briefly with the woman.

"Are you Mrs. Maryon Hewitt McCarter?" he asked.

"Yes, that's my name," she replied.

Lodge Suicide Charges.

Mrs. Hewitt has been sought for several weeks to appear in San Francisco on charges brought by Ann Cooper Hewitt, heiress to the Peter Cooper-Hewitt millions, that the mother and two physicians conspired to perform a sterilization operation on her.

Wilson said Mrs. McCarter registered at a Journal Square hotel on Feb. 9 as Mrs. Jane Merritt of Boston. She advised hotel authorities she was suffering from a nervous ailment and did not wish to be disturbed.

A maid found her unconscious on her bed shortly after midnight on Feb. 21. She summoned a Medical center ambulance. Physicians said she had taken half a bottle of a sedative she had been using for insomnia.

San Francisco Wants Her.

"New York police have warrant charging mayhem for Maryon Hewitt. They advise she is at medical center, your city. They are forwarding warant. Will extradite. Advise."

Local authorities immediately communicated with New York and San Francisco police.

Efforts the last few weeks to find Mrs. Hewitt had failed. She was variously reported to have fled secretly abroad and to be hiding somewhere in New York. Her attorney, William Breslin, had indicated she would be produced when authorities required it, but recently said she was in poor health and needed a rest.

ARREST OFFICIAL OF ART EXHIBITION ON INDECENCY GROUNDS

Richmond, Va., Feb. 28.—(AP)—John Stewart Bryan Jr., vice chairman of the Richmond Academy of Arts, was arrested this afternoon on a warrant sworn out by F. M. Terrell, head of a self-appointed committee objecting to the display here of murals depicting nude and semi-nude figures.

The warrant was served on Bryan in the office of Commonwealth's Attorney T. Gray Haddon and he was bailed for his appearance in Police court tomorrow morning.

Terrell, who had fought the display of the murals by the artist, Mordi Gassner, as being "indecent and tending to corrupt the morals of youth," attempted to withdraw the warant after it was issued.

In explanation of this action he said he had thought the matter over and, as it was not possible to reach Gassner through the warant, he wished to withdraw it.

$30,000 INSURED VIOLIN STOLEN; HELD FOR RANSOM

New York, Feb. 29 (Saturday).—(AP)—Police disclosed early today that a Stradivarius violin, insured for $30,000, was stolen last night from Carnegie hall and is thought being held for ransom.

The theft was reported by the Polish violinist, Bronislaw Huberman, who used it for a few minutes in practice last night before he gave a concert at Carnegie.

Because of the conspicuous design of the violin and the small disposal value it would have to a thief, police said they believed it would be offered for ransom.

5-10 Heiress Operated On; Seriously Ill

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 29 [Saturday].—Four doctors were called in late last night to attend Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow, the former Barbara Hutton, who is gravely ill in her London home in Hyde Park Gardens. It was disclosed that complications developed following the birth of her son last Monday, and it was found necessary to perform an operation Thursday night.

Early this morning it was stated that the Woolworth heiress was resting quietly and had had some sleep. Her condition, however, still occasioned great anxiety. Count Reventlow remained at her bedside throughout the night.

Operation Forced by Nature of Birth.

It was revealed that the operation was necessitated by a condition arising out of the nature of the birth of the child, which was Cesarian operation.

The progress of the 23 year old countess had been slow and Thursday night her condition became serious.

Lord Horder, physician in ordinary to King Edward of England, visited the countess three times yesterday and last night returned and consulted with three other doctors. He was met at the house by the countess physician, Dr. Lane-Roberts, famous gynecologist who has been attending the child. The baby is reported doing well.

Barbara's Father at Bedside.

Franklyn Hutton, Barbara's father, who arrived in London last week with his wife to see his grandchild, called after Lord Horder's last visit and stayed until a late hour.

Jimmy Donahue, cousin of Barbara and New York night life figure, also called. He left about 11 o'clock last night and reported the countess condition was "very serious."

He Won't Talk, Just Nods; Wife Wins a Separation

Worcester, Mass., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Mrs. Ruth L. Colvin won a separate maintenance decree in Probate court today when she testified she had had only two conversations with Orlyne, a cowboy, since their marriage in 1933. All other conversational sallies were met by him with a nod or a shrug, she said.

Order Cut in Rail Fare to 2 Cents Mile

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—[Special.]—The interstate commerce commission today ordered a reduction in basic rail passenger fares from 3.6 to 2 cents a mile, effective June 2, on the grounds that the new rate will make travel by railroad more attractive to the public.

The formal order revising the passenger fare structure of the country will affect the eastern roads, since the railroads in the western and southern districts had already adopted the lowered rates on an experimental basis.

The I. C. C. ruling also wiped out Pullman surcharges as unreasonable and set a fare of 3 cents per passenger mile for Pullman travel. Extra fares for extraordinary and supplemental Pullman service were found to be neither unreasonable nor unlawful, and so were untouched by the commission.

Decision 5 to 4.

The commission's decision was 5 to 4 and climaxed an investigation started June 4, 1934. The order had been periodically reported as ready for announcement during recent weeks but was delayed by the sharp divergence in views as was shown by the vote.

The majority opinion, written by Commissioner Claude R. Porter, who had originally instituted the investigation, set forth that since 1923 the nation's railroads have been suffering severe losses in passenger traffic and revenues, and that at least since 1928 passenger traffic had not contributed its full share to the rail transportation costs. A reduction in the fare would result in increased volume and revenues, he declared.

The majority opinion followed the recommendations written by Irving L. Koch, I. C. C. examiner, last July. The eastern carriers, with the exception of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, had opposed a reduction, contending that a decrease in fare would seriously slash their revenues.

Sees Increased Travel.

However, in the majority opinion, Commissioner Porter declared that any assumption that the saturation point in the travel market had been reached was fallacious.

"It seems certain that the future travel desires of the American public will increase with the years," Porter and his colleagues on the majority side said, "and that, with attractive service and price, promoted by modern sales methods, the railroads should be able to develop for themselves a travel volume at least as great as that which they formerly enjoyed.

"It seems just as certain that, no matter how much of an increase in travel volume there may be in the future, travel by railroad will continue to decline, or at least will not increase nearly as much as the increase in total volume, unless it is

OKADA AGAIN RULES NATION

Death Report False; Crush Rebels.

TOKIO, Feb. 29 [Saturday].—(AP)—A militarist rebellion was quelled today by the Japanese government and Premier Keisuke Okada, earlier announced officially to have been among four statesmen assassinated, appeared unhurt.

The cabinet announced officially that Premier Okada was found alive, but no explanations or details were issued.

Because of Okada's reappearance unhurt, Fumio Goto, home minister who was named acting premier after the uprising, was formally relieved of the premiership post.

[These reports of Premier Okada's escape from the army assassins are at complete variance with previous reports, many unofficial and some few official. As late as last night stories from Tokio told of religious services held in Okada's memory. His sudden reappearance is unexplained.]

All Rebels Surrender.

The headquarters of Lieut. Gen. Kohei Kashii, chief of the Tokio army garrison, and the martial law administration, announced in a communique that the insurrection was completely suppressed and that all rebels surrendered or were captured.

Action apparently preceded the quelling of the rebellion, loyal government troops having advanced on positions originally held by the die-hard rebels and machine gun firing being heard on the southwest fringe of the occupied zone.

Premier Sees Emperor.

Premier Okada was known to have been alive since yesterday morning, it was announced, and was given an audience last night by Emperor Hirohito.

It could not be determined immediately whether the insurgents offered resistance at their original center near the imperial palace, the United States embassy, and other centers.

REPORT REBELS GIVE UP

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 29 [Saturday], 1 P. M.—The first break in the Japanese military revolt which for three days has kept the center of Tokio in a state of siege occurred this morning, when the rebellious soldiers began leaving the buildings in which they were barricaded.

This was announced by the Japanese embassy here following receipt of radio advices from Tokio. The embassy admitted that the rebellion had not yet been completely suppressed, but indicated that the backbone of the movement, which cost the lives of at least three cabinet ministers, including the finance minister, had been broken.

Rebels Give Up Arms.

The first break in the ranks of the revolting troops, who numbered between 900 and 1,000, came at 11 o'clock this morning when 200 of the insurgents, armed with machine guns, marched out of the buildings and submitted to being disarmed.

Use of Force Averted.

Announcement of the surrender of part of the rebels followed an announcement from Tokio that Emperor Hirohito had ordered Gen. Kashii to evict the insurgents, using whatever means he found necessary. Gen. Kashii ordered his loyal troops ready for action, but later qualified his orders by stating that "whether military action is taken depends upon the attitude of the mutineers."

Airplanes were sent aloft over the area held by the rebels and dropped leaflets declaring that resistance was futile. A short time later the first of the mutineers surrendered.

Earlier in the day, it was learned, Japanese naval authorities in Shanghai had canceled shore leaves, leading to the belief that Japanese naval craft in China waters might shortly proceed homeward. Naval officials here are critical of the Japanese army authorities, charging that the army has destroyed Japan's prestige internationally.

Navy Urges Use of Force.

It is unofficially reported here that naval authorities in Japan, who continue to land forces at Tokio for patroling purposes, urged the use of force to dislodge the rebels and restore order.

Reports from British sources last night said there had been considerable fighting in Tokio. There was no confirmation of this.

Another unconfirmed report said troops at the industrial center of Osaka had rebelled. Japanese authorities here denied this.

Most offices in the Marunouchi business district of Tokio were closed. Interurban trains were jammed because of suspension of street car service on orders from martial law headquarters. Stopping of transportation in the vicinity of the occupied buildings belie Japanese claims that "business is going on as usual."

It was stated that the Tokio Stock exchange and clearing house were to open this morning.

Field Marshal Prince Kohohito Kanin, chief of the army general staf, who has been ill for many weeks in a villa at Odawara, outside the city, hastened to Tokio today. He will reside at the residence of the lord keeper of the privy seal, whose former occupant, Viscount Saito, was assassinated.

Hold Many Conferences.

Yesterday and today were marked by numerous conferences of cabinet officers, the supreme military council and war and navy ministers. Most attention centered in the activities of Gen. Sadao Araki, former war minister; Gen. Senjuro Hayashi, and other members of the supreme war council with Lieut. Gen. Kashii.

Lieut. Gen. Kotaro Nakamura, director of the inspectorate of general military education, was appointed inspector general of the army, the post held by the assassinated Gen. Jotaro Watanabe.

The foreign office spokesman in Tokio denied that any changes in foreign policy, either with China or Russia, would result from the present developments. He denied reports that the army revolt was due to dissatisfaction among the army with the government's weak policy toward Russia.

Eye Movements of Doihara.

Maj. Gen. Hayao Tada, commander of the Japanese North China garrison at Tientsin, flew to Tientsin today from an inspection trip in Inner Mongolia. He had reached Kwaiha, capital of Suiyuan province, when he received word of the rebellion and canceled an interview with the Chinese general, Fu Tso-yi, chairman of the province. Upon arriving at Tientsin, Gen. Tada called a conference of all high Japanese officers, including Maj. Gen. Kanji Doihara, with whom Tada recently quarreled on Chinese policy. Gen. Doihara, who is known as the "Lawrence of Manchukuo," is said to be returning to Manchukuo immediately, from where he will hurry to Japan.

Violently anti-Japanese pamphlets, entitled "The New Road," were distributed in the international settlement here today. They urged China to take advantage of the present Japanese crisis to demonstrate against Japan. The pamphlet denounced the program of Foreign Minister Hirohito and urged the Chinese people to rally to a supreme leader.

MAIL REOPENED TO TWO AIDS OF GOV. TALMADGE

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Gov. Eugene Talmadge, Democratic foe of the New Deal, overcame a second obstacle to his financial dictatorship today when the postoffice department reopened the mails to his de facto fiscal officials.

The decision was announced in Washington after the governor, victorious in obtaining funds to carry on his one man rule, instituted federal court proceedings to have mail impounded at the Atlanta postoffice released to his state treasurer and controler general.

"This is the end of the frolic," Talmadge said upon being informed of the ruling.

JAPANESE WAR COUNCIL MEETS IN EMERGENCY

Army and Navy Leaders Fight to End Revolt.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Feb. 28.—The Japanese supreme war council met in an emergency conference at the imperial palace at 9 o'clock this morning. Gen. Yoshiyuki Kawashima, at the conclusion of the conference, rushed to the martial law headquarters, where he conferred with Lieut. Gen. Kohei Kashii, military governor of the martial law area.

In sections outside the barricaded area occupied by the rebels, pedestrians are still walking in large numbers. Quiet prevails in all parts of the city.

All automobile traffic on the south and north sides of Hibiya park—in which buildings occupied by the rebels are located—has been stopped.

Situation Is Pictured.

The situation can be pictured by drawing a square to represent Hibiya park. Adjoining one side of the square are the grounds of the imperial palace. On another side, to the east, is the Imperial hotel, which is packed with Americans, Britons and other foreign guests.

Facing another side of the square, to the south, is the Japan Times building.

On the western side of the square, or park, is the navy building, to which truckload after truckload of marines is rushing. About a quarter mile southwest of the navy building on a hill is the new diet, or parliament, building. Across the street from the diet building on the southwest is the prime minister's official residence.

One block south of the Imperial hotel is the aviation hall. Immediately east across the street is the Tokio electric company building, which is occupied by gendarmes.

All Peaceful, People Told.

The martial law headquarters is still in the reservists' hall, a half mile north of the war office. A radio announcement from this office assured the people that peace is being maintained and that they should not be alarmed.

The Tokio Asahi said banking circles have been withdrawing call money to provide for emergencies and are sending money to branches. This has resulted in an increase of loans by the Bank of Japan by 180 million yen [about $54,000,000]. Total outstanding loans carried forward as of today exceed 1 billion yen [about $300,000,000], Asahi said.

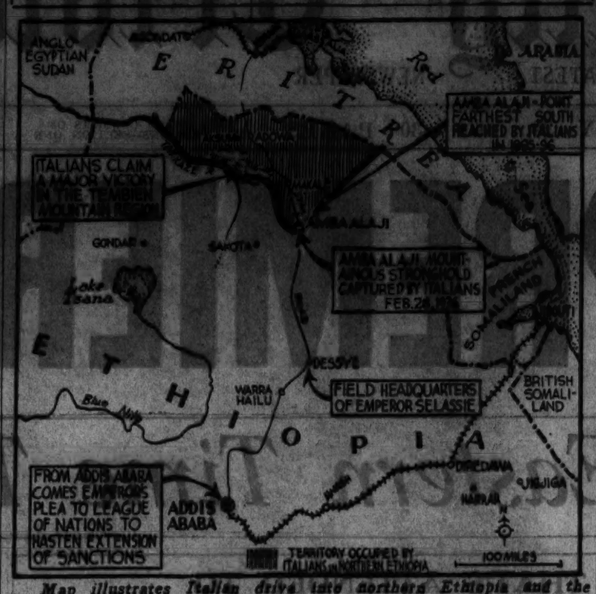
Firemen Revive Victim of Carbon Monoxide Gas

Firemen of rescue squad No. 7, commanded by Capt. Arvid Herling, used an inhalator last night to revive John F. Donohue, 32 years old, 622 Lotus avenue, after he had been overcome by carbon monoxide gas in a garage behind his home. The firemen and police were summoned after a neighbor discovered Donohue unconscious. After he had been revived he said that his being gassed was due to an accident. Donohue is an insurance agent.

Four Killed in Apartment Fire in London Soho Area

LONDON, Feb. 29—[Saturday]—(AP)—Four persons were killed and a number were feared injured today in a fire in a large apartment block in the Soho district. Screaming women leaped from windows, but firemen saved many persons by ladders. Although the dead were not identified, all were believed to be women.

ITALIANS TAKE AMBA ALAJI



Map illustrates Italian drive into northern Ethiopia and the Fascists' reported capture of the mountain stronghold of Amba Alaji yesterday. The Italians claim the Ethiopians are completely demoralized and are fleeing toward Dessye. Forty years ago Italians penetrated to Amba Alaji. Two thousand Italians were annihilated there by the Ethiopians. The defeat was "avenged" yesterday, Italians said. Unofficial reports also said 3,000 Ethiopians were slain in the mountainous Tembien region.

COLOMBIA BARS MAIL FROM VATICAN CITY AS SANCTIONS MOVE

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 28.—Sanctions have caused a curious incident between Vatican City and the republic of Colombia. A parcel sent some time ago through the Vatican City postoffice to the papal nuncio at Bogota has been returned with the explanation that it cannot be delivered owing to the sanctions Colombia has decreed against Italy. The Vatican has protested strongly, pointing out that Vatican City forms no part politically of the kingdom of Italy and, moreover papal nuncios enjoy diplomatic immunity so the parcel should, in any case, have been delivered.

PETER M. KELLY IS 'VERY LOW' AFTER HIS 2D OPERATION

The condition of County Commissioner Peter M. Kelly who underwent a major operation Thursday night at Henrotin hospital for a gall bladder ailment last night was reported to be "very low." His personal physician, Dr. Karl Meyer, medical director of the county hospital, took him to Henrotin after he suffered a relapse from a long illness in his home at 238 South Cicero avenue. Commissioner Kelly, who is 47 years old, has been ill since another major operation early in December in St. Joseph's hospital, Lexington, Ky.

Chicago Woman Leaps to Death in Detroit

An Associated Press dispatch from Detroit reported last night that Mrs. Marie D. Johnson of Chicago, had been killed in a leap from her sixth floor room in the Statler hotel there. The body was identified later by her husband, Edwin C. Johnson Jr., described as an official of an automobile parts concern. Johnson declined to tell of his business and social connections.

DOBBINS GETS WORD OF THAT SCOUT MEETING

Raymond Dobbins of Deerfield was puzzled and a little miffed yesterday. He received from Clifton C. Speer of Highland Park a postal card notifying him that Boy Scout troop No. 51 would meet in the Deerfield grammar school on Feb. 28.

Greatly disappointed that he had missed the meeting [Dobbins is janitor of the school and Scoutmaster of the troop], he called Speer and protested about being notified two days late about the meeting.

"There must be some mistake," declared the Highland Park resident. "I haven't sent you any postal card lately, and there was no meeting of the troop on Wednesday."

Scoutmaster Dobbins examined his postal card more closely. Then he called back to Speer.

"I see that I was mistaken," he said. "You mailed me that card on Feb. 26, 1935, and it reached the Deerfield postoffice, according to the second cancellation, on Feb. 25, 1936."

"O, yes," replied Speer, "we did have a meeting on Feb. 26 last year."

RADICAL GROUP AT U. OF C. JOINS ANTI-WAR MOVE

The University of Chicago chapter of the American Students' union, a small group of campus radicals, voted 72 to 16 yesterday in favor of the Oxford pledge, which binds its takers never to bear arms for their country in war.

The vote followed a debate in Harper library on the campus. George Mann, a graduate student in English who described himself as a Socialist, and Frank Meyer, a graduate student in economics who said he was a communist, spoke in favor of the pledge. Taking the opposite stand were Ralph Nicholson, editor of the Daily Maroon, campus newspaper, and Jack Kornfeld, a student R. O. T. C. leader.

The university's chapter of the union was organized last January.

ITALIANS AVENGE DEFEAT; CAPTURE PEAK IN ETHIOPIA

Badoglio Reports Rout of Foe in North.

[Copyright: 1936: By the Associated Press.]

WITH THE ITALIAN ARMY IN NORTHERN ETHIOPIA, AT THE FRONT, Feb. 28.—The hard driving Fascist army of 30,000 soldiers of the First Army corps today captured the historic mountain stronghold of Amba Alaji where fleeing Ethiopians had retreated after their defeat at Amba Aradam.

[Reports from Rome said Italians celebrated the capture of Amba Alaji with cheers and boisterous toasts—"Amba Alaji has been revenged!" This point was the farthest south the Italians penetrated in their ill fated punitive expedition of 1895-96. There the Ethiopians annihilated 2,000 Italians and drove the main army back to Adowa and administered a crushing defeat there. Adowa already has been "avenged" by the Fascists.]

Simultaneously, unofficial reports told of a major Italian victory in the mountainous Tembien region in the north in which 3,000 Ethiopians were killed and Ras Seyoum's army was routed.

Italian officials said today's victory, coupled with the reports of the Tembien conquest, all but completed the objective the Black Shirts set for themselves before the start of the little rainy season within two weeks.

Flee Toward Dessye.

The capture of Amba Alaji completed the demoralization of War Minister Ras Mulugheta's 80,000 man army, first smashed a fortnight ago in the six day offensive against the rocky Aradam ridge half way between Makale and Amba Alaji.

Pilots of Italian scouting planes reported that Mulugheta's forces were retreating far south toward Dessye across the plains of Quorar.

They reported bombing columns of troops definitly identified as belonging to Emperor Haile Selassie, who himself was believed to have rushed north from his field headquarters at Dessye to reinforce the Ethiopian war minister's broken army. It was considered possible the negus himself might take command of the field in the emergency.

Take Peak in Two Jumps.

Amba Alaji was taken in two jumps. After resting along the line at the southern edge of Buie Plain, captured without action a few days after the Aradam battle, the 1st corps moved forward yesterday to the foothills of the mountain ridge which Alaji dominates.

The Black Shirts established their line without opposition from Adi Abieti through the gorge of Mai Mescio and Amba Gorgora. At dawn they moved forward again.

By 10 a. m. the right flank held the pass of Togora, the left flank took Folaga pass and the center held the Pass of Alaji itself, a huge curve splitting the mountains on the north side.

The Ethiopians fled from Amba Aradam in such haste they stopped at Alaji only to erect minor defenses and then failed to man them.

Report Ethiopians Deserting.

The Italians have now conquered since the start of their advance Feb. 10, 60 kilometers [about 37 miles] south of Makale. The result of the victorious march is that thousands of Ethiopians are coming over to the Italians as chieftains of captured towns are reporting killing the fleeing Ethiopian warriors.

The victory is considered a tremendous blow to Ethiopian morale. Since the defeat of the Italians at Amba Alaji 40 years ago, the Ethiopians have believed the mountain to be invincible.

Presses for More Sanctions.

ADDIS ABABA, Feb. 28.—(AP)—Hope for additional sanctions against Italy instead of peace talks was expressed today by Emperor Haile Selassie.

"We hope there will be no further delay in the extension of sanctions," said the Negus in a message, referring to a meeting of the league of nations sanctions committee called for March 2. "The cause of peace would be much nearer realization if sanctions were extended.

"The Ethiopian government has not taken and will no take any initiative in the matter of peace proposals. Such peace discussons as may be taking place in Europe are without the participation of Ethiopia, and thus far there have been no proposals put forward which could be honorably accepted by Ethiopia."

Government officials, commenting on Rome rumors that the Ethiopian emperor is sick or wounded, said he was in perfect health.

Bilateral Pacts Seen as Only Hope for Naval Parley Result

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 28.—The London naval conference, which is now concluding the third month of its negotiations, may result merely in a series of bilateral pacts between Great Britain and any other naval powers who wish to come in, without any general agreement at all.

American circles said today the United States would be willing to make a bilateral agreement with the British if everything else fails. The French delegation has cabinet authorization now to sign a treaty, but with two safeguarding clauses. One applies in case the Italians do not sign up, and the other makes reservations about Germany's use of adhesion as legalization of its rearmament.

Draft texts are now complete on everything that it has been agreed upon except the following three points: Size of battleships, method of humanizing submarine warfare, and duration of the treaty.

Norman H. Davis, chief American delegate, called on Capt. Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, this afternoon. They discussed the position of the conference arising out of the refusal of the Italians to sign the treaty for the moment, according to an official statement.

The question was raised as to what value are pacts, anyway, which will never become operative.

5 LATIN NATIONS AND U. S. ADOPT A UNITED FRONT ON PARAGUAY

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Feb. 28.—(AP)—Delegates from the United States and five South American nations at a Chaco peace conference today discussed the question of recognition of the new Paraguayan provisional military régime.

It was learned from an authoritative source that they agreed to act simultaneously on this question and that one would not recognize the new government until all have agreed to do so. Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Peru and Uruguay were the South American nations represented.

Uneasiness was reported in conference quarters because of a move by the military government in Paraguay to pay homage to Francisco Solando Lopez, famous dictator who ruled from 1862 to 1870, when he was killed in battle with the allied forces of Brazil, Argentina and Uruguay. His death ended a five year war which reduced Paraguay's population from 1,337,000 to less than 300,000.

7 Big Stills Destroyed by Raiders in Kentucky

EDITOR BEATEN AFTER ATTACK ON GAMBLING

Kevin McCann, 32 year old editor of the South Suburban News, a small paper that has been conducting a crusade against the city administration of Chicago Heights and exposing gambling conditions there, was beaten and seriously injured last night by Bud Nardi, 30 years old, a former pugilist who owns a saloon at 1444 Wentworth avenue, Chicago Heights.

Five of McCann's teeth were knocked out and his upper lip was cut before he fell unconscious.

Gets Warant from Justice.

The editor, after he recovered consciousness, went to the office of Justice of the Peace Conrad Linder, some distance away, and got a warant charging Nardi with assault. Nardi surrendered a short time later and was released in bonds of $400.

Nardi, according to McCann, resented the publication of the fact that he had been arrested during a raid on his saloon, charged with being keeper of a gambling house, and that he had been subsequently released after a series of continuances without prosecution.

The raid and the arrest of Nardi took place on Feb. 13. He was released on bonds signed by City Commissioner Maurino Ricchiuto of Chicago Heights. A hearing on the case was scheduled before Police Magistrat Carl McGehee on Feb. 19. Nardi did not appear, and a continuance was granted to Feb. 22. Again he failed to show up, and the matter was continued to the evening of the same day.

Case Falls of Prosecution.

Then a change of venue was taken to Justice of the Peace David H. Shapiro, and on Feb. 26 the case was dismissed for want of prosecution.

That same day McCann's paper carried an article entitled "Gambling Goes Peewee," in which it was asserted that there was a "three way split" of the revenues. It discussed the handling of the Nardi case vigorously.

"Since then I have received threats from Nardi," declared McCann. "He and another man came into my office Thursday and told one of the staf Nardi intended to handle me when we met.

"Tonight, as I was passing the police station, Nardi came out of the city hall. I think he had been conferring with Mayor Joseph Gannon. Nardi came up to me with his hand extended, and I thought he intended to shake hands and call off his enmity.

Struck Without Warning.

"'My name's Nardi,' he said. 'I'm McCann,' I replied. With that he struck me, and I was knocked down before I had a chance to defend myself.'"

The South Suburban News, a throw-around sheet, was started only a few weeks ago. Another paper in Chicago Heights, the Star, supports the city administration.

After McCann had reported the attack to the state's attorney's office, county highway policemen were assigned to guard him from Chicago Heights to his home in Midlothian.

The Chicago Heights police reported that Nardi declared McCann had provoked his attack by abusive remarks. A hearing was set for next Wednesday.

YEAR FOR SELLING NARCOTIC.

PURDY CHILD IS AWARDED TO HER PARENTS

CHILD'S PARENTS WIN COURT FIGHT FOR HER CUSTODY

Grandparents Must Give Up Joan Purdy, 7.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Joan Purdy, 7 years old, who for several years has lived with her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Gibbons Miller at 1236 North Dearborn street, yesterday heard Judge Michael Feinberg of the Circuit court return her to the custody of her parents. They are Herbert McLean Purdy and Frances Purdy of New York.

During the ten minute court hearing Joan, her large blue eyes turned upward toward the bench, clasped the hand of her mother, who whispered and smiled to her at intervals.

With Grandparents Five Years.

The child was left with the grandparents five years ago when the Purdys visited them here. Subsequently, according to attorneys for the parents, the Millers became so attached to the girl that they refused to send her home. The Purdys were separated for a time and the grandparents used this as one reason for not returning the child.

Judge Feinberg in issuing the order awarding the child to her father and mother said that the court had no choice in the matter in view of a statement by the grandparents' attorney, Albert L. Blumenfeld, that they did not oppose the habeas corpus action on which the ruling was based.

Urges Completion of Schooling.

The Millers' only concern, Attorney Blumenfeld said, in keeping the child since she was 2 years old was "to protect her welfare" until her own parents provided a home. He suggested that the child be left in Chicago until the end of the school year.

This was vigorously opposed by Attorney John O. Wagner for the parents. They could hire private tutors for the child, he told the court.

At mention of school Joan shook her head; she has been in the second grade at the Ogden school.

"Swear Mr. Purdy," Judge Feinberg ordered, and the father, a handsome man with graying hair and brown eyes, was sworn. "What business are you in?" he asked.

"The real estate business—at present in the Herbert McLean Purdy Management corporation, the fifth or sixth largest business management company in New York," replied Purdy.

Calls Separation "a Lever."

JUDGE FEINBERG—You are living with your wife now?

MR. PURDY—Yes, and we have been living together for three years. We never would have separated if it had not been for the child. We were separated for a year. I wanted to use "a little lever." I said when Joan was brought back I'd return.

JUDGE FEINBERG—Has your wife been a good mother?

MR. PURDY [stroking chin]—Yes.

In an anteroom the Purdys and their daughter posed for photographs—the child with reluctance. Then they departed, Mrs. Purdy saying they probably would leave Chicago by plane, and that within a week they would be in Nassau or Bermuda.

Neither grandparent appeared in court, and no defense to the habeas corpus action was offered.

BEATS DOG TO DEATH ON HEAD OF OWNER; GETS 30 DAY TERM

Alton, Mo., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Avery Brown, 51, was sentenced to 30 days in jail here for beating another man over the head with a dog. Brown was tried for assault on W. C. McKee, 83. During a heated argument, it was testified, Brown picked up McKee's small terrier dog and beat the aged man until the dog was dead. McKee was seriously injured.

KIDNAPERS TAKE $33,000 IN JEWELS FROM SALESMAN

Max Hauser, a New York jewelry salesman, was robbed of unset diamonds valued at $33,000 to $34,000 by three daring bandits who kidnaped him yesterday rom a taxicab in front of the Huron street entrance of the Allerton hotel, 701 North Michigan avenue.

Hauser, who represents the firm of his brother, Leo Hauser, 22 West 48th street, New York, arrived in Chicago Monday and registered at the Palmer house. It was his first visit to Chicago. He made several calls on jewelers. Yesterday he paid a visit to S. Buchsbaum & Co. at 243 East Huron street. An employé of the company summoned a taxicab for him as he left.

Cab Is Forced to Curb.

As the cab drove west in Huron street a Ford sedan pushed it to the curb in front of the Allerton. Two men, wearing handkerchief masks and carrying pistols, menaced the driver, Charles Perconti, 1241 Otis street. They opened the rear door of the cab and dragged Hauser into the street. They shoved him into the rear seat of the sedan, holding his head down so he could not get a glimpse of them. The car sped north in Michigan avenue.

About ten minutes later Hauser was thrown from the robbers' car in an alley behind 2058 Lincoln avenue. He called the police and was taken to the East Chicago avenue station, where he told his story to Capt. Martin Mullen and to Sergts. Thomas Alcock and James Frawley of the jewelry detail from the detective bureau.

Search Clothing in Car.

Hauser said that after he was placed in the car the two bandits who held him in the rear seat called to the driver: "Go ahead, Clarence."

Then they began a systematic search of his clothing. They took one wallet filled with gems from an inside overcoat pocket, another from his inside suit coat pocket, and a package which had arrived only yesterday from New York out of his hip pocket. They also robbed him of $110 in $10 bills and a small amount of change.

Hauser said he could not tell the exact valuation of the diamonds, which were insured for $25,000, because the inventory list was in the stolen wallets.

Hauser told the police that the bandits manhandled him while he was in their automobile, and once struck him on the head with a revolver. He could give the police no description of the robbers, explaining that they held his head down. His only clew was that one of them had a small foot and wore a shoe with a pointed toe.

ALIEN DEFIES COURT AFTER 6 YEAR RELIEF FRAUD; YEAR AND $200

Julius Micholowicz, 47 years old, 1417 West Huron street, an alien, was found guilty yesterday of obtaining $265 worth of relief under false pretenses. He was sentenced to one year in the Bridewell and fined $200 by Judge Gibson E. Gorman in the South State Street court.

Attorney G. B. Foley, respresenting the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, told the court that Micholowicz received relief from 1929 to Sept. 25, 1935, although two of his sons were working. The defendant said he would never repay the money because "there are big shots getting graft money."

"That's gratitude," Judge Gorman said in pronouncing sentence. "This is the only country in the world that will support aliens, yet you have taken gross advantage of the kindness."

WOULD-BE SUICIDE FREED.

Joseph Sylvester, 22 years old, 9608 Avenue G, who attempted to commit suicide by swallowing poison Thursday, was freed on a disorderly conduct charge yesterday by Judge Edward Scheffler.

TRIO CONFESS 25 HOLDUPS; CAUGHT IN 10 MILE CHASE

Three young robbers who engaged in revolver battles with five squads of police in a ten mile chase over the city streets early yesterday were being held last night as suspects in more than 25 holdups after they admitted a series of oil station raids. Two of the youths and a bystander were wounded during the gun play.

One of the trio, Nathan Duncan, 21 years old, 7844 South Peoria street, was shot behind the right ear and last night was in a critical condition at the Bridewell hospital. Edward Tormey, 17 years old, 6514 Ross avenue, the other wounded gunman, was shot in the right shoulder. The third under arrest is James Van Zandt, 19 years old, 921 Harper avenue.

John Alexander, 27 years old, 2034 Orchard street, a waiter, was walking along the sidewalk near Congress street and Wabash avenue when he was struck in the shoulder by a bullet fired during the battle.

The police were holding for investigation the wife of Tormey, Alice, former St. Leo High school student, his bride of nine days. After the shooting Tormey fled from the robber car but later was arrested with his young wife in a hotel at 824 West 62d street.

BALLOT RECOUNT IS ORDERED IN VOTE FRAUD CASE

County Judge Jarecki yesterday ordered a recount of ballots cast in the 40th precinct of the 42d ward in the election of Nov. 6, 1934, after he heard testimony from a watcher for a citizens' committee that the Democratic precinct captain passed out 50 cent pieces to voters ten feet from the election officials.

The watcher was Dick Anderson, a member of the University of Chicago wrestling team, who was the first witness to testify in the trial of five election officials of the precinct charged with contempt of court for vote frauds.

Anderson also testified that at 5:52 p. m. all the lights in the polling place went out and remained out for five minutes. Every time some one lighted a candle it would be taken away, he said. The trial will be resumed today after the recount. Defendants in the case are Joseph Michelotti, John Garbarino, and Cilio Castellini, Democratic polls officials, and Edward J. Ludwig and Lowell E. Brolliar, Republican officials.

Without a smile Mr. Roosevelt said his budget message of Jan. 6 balanced the budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1937, except for relief which is still to come. The budget message contemplated expenditures of about 6 billion 750 million dollars against estimated receipts of 5 billion 650 million dollars to put the administration further in the red by 1 billion 100 million dollars.

Sees Additional Bonus Load.

The President was asked how the estimate was changed. He replied by the bonus passage and the outlawing of the AAA. By paying the bonus now instead of 1945 the additional cost to the taxpayers, he said, is 120 million dollars a year because until the bonus was passed the government was putting up between 150 and 160 million a year to meet adjusted service certificates and will now have to put up 270 to 280 million dollars a year.

This additional cost he described as a new tax. The cost of the soil conservation AAA substitute, which he set as roughly 500 million dollars for tax collections which will be lost by July 1 and 500 million more to carry on after that date, he insisted is really a substitute levy because the money would have come into the treasury had the AAA been upheld.

Half Billion Permanent.

The tax of 500 million dollars to raise funds after July 1 is to be permanent, he said, while that to make up for collection losses in the present fiscal year is to be a temporary tax which can be spread over 2 or 3 years.

Mr. Roosevelt then explained his windfall taxes which in effect will bear down on those who challenged the constitutionality of the AAA. He said it seemed to him unfair and inequitable that taxpayers who went to court and did not pay their taxes and had them returned should be put on the same footing as those who did. He said he proposed to handle the problem by putting a tax on those who benefited by the return and not necessarily the original taxpayer. He said he got the word "windfall" out of a paper, not a newspaper.

Tax experts said collection of this tax might cost more per dollar than it would return. They pointed out that it will be extremely difficult for the government to show that the receiver of processing taxes benefited by their return against argument that the benefit was passed on to the customer.

City Will Sue to Collect Court Costs from County

The city council finance committee yesterday directed Barnet Hodes, corporation counsel, to institute suit against the county to enforce payment of $1,344,107 which the city claims is due for costs on county cases tried in the Municipal courts during the last four years.

RENEW SEARCH FOR RICH CANADIAN WHO DISAPPEARED IN 1919

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 28.—(AP)—The Evening Telegram said today it was informed the Ontario government is taking definite steps to reopen an investigation into the 17 year old mystery of the disappearance of Ambrose J. Small, millionaire theater owner.

Small disappeared in December, 1919, and nothing has been heard of him despite a world-wide search.

Patrick Sullivan, independent investigator on behalf of the theatrical magnate's sisters, says the newspaper, has conferred with Atorney General Roebuck and will also talk with Maj. Gen. V. A. S. Williams, commissioner of provincial police, relative to "startling facts" in Sullivan's possession.

concluded a five day hearing on the issue.

Since the commission is not expected to rule for several months, the carriers will continue for the present on central time, as they have in past summers.

The time change measure was passed overwhelmingly by the city council because of a preponderance of favorable testimony at public hearings, but opposition groups are now circulating petitions for a referendum on the time change in the Nov. 3 election.

Proponents of the change, including Ald. B. A. Cronson [4th], who introduced the ordinance, asserted in city council hearings that it would provide 210 extra hours of sunlight every year, unite Chicago more closely with the financial and industrial sector of the nation, improve health by offering children and adults more time out of doors, conserve light and fuel costs, and reduce the trafic hazard by giving more daylight to the rush trafic hour.

I. C. C. CONCLUDES HEARING

The hearing in the Morrison hotel on the city's petition to allow the railroads to conform to eastern time was concluded yesterday before Clyde B. Aitchison, member of the interstate commerce commission. Mr. Aitchison told parties to file briefs by March 31 and answering briefs by April 21. The commission, he said, will then study the case for some weeks before making its decision.

Edward J. Noonan, engineer for the Chicago railway terminal committee, told the commissioner that the railroads in Chicago can easily adopt eastern time for their systems by accepting a consolidation plan offered on Feb. 11 by V. V. Boatner, chairman of the Chicago Terminal coordinating committee, or simply by coöperating with the city in its time change.

Chicago's petition for the railroad time change was technically a reopening of Michigan's similar case of 1931. Michigan, Indiana and part of Ohio, as well as Chicago, are likely to be affected by the commission's ruling.

After the hearing Aitchison was sworn in at the Traffic club for a new term as commissioner.

made more attractive than it has been in the past."

Chairman Dissents.

The dissenters were led by Charles D. Mahaffie, chairman of the commission, who declared that the railroads could not expect to compete with automobile trafic at the lowered rates.

"Where only one person travels," Mahaffie said, "the cost by train and by automobile may approximate each other rather closely, depending chiefly upon the cost of a railroad ticket compared with the cost of gasoline consumed by that particular automobile.

"When two or more travel the setup is radically different. For two persons the alternative presented is that of 4 cents or 6 cents per mile for both together by rail [on the two rates in question] compared with from 1 cent to 2 cents per mile for both in a private automobile."

The majority apportioned the existing passenger mileage of the traveling public in the country at 90 per cent for automobiles, 7 per cent for railroads and 3 per cent for buses.

Trafic Study Made.

Porter's opinion made an exhaustive study of railroad trafic history in the United States from 1871, the first year for which figures were available, when the record was four billion passenger miles.

Railway travel reached 16 billion passenger miles in 1900 and continued to increase at about five per cent a year until a peak of 47 billion passenger miles was reached in 1920. It was pointed out that in this year there was an increase of 20 per cent in the base fare and a depression in business.

In the next year, 1921, passenger revenues dropped 10 per cent and in 1923, although economic conditions were as good or better than 1921 the passenger revenue was still about the same as for 1921. Beginning with 1924 the rail travel of each year fell off at rates varying from 1 to 8 per cent until 1930, when the drop was 16 per cent; in 1931, 25 per cent; in 1932, 35 per cent, and in 1933, 12 per cent.

The per capital travel in 1933 was less than in any year since 1880, having dropped from 348 miles in 1912 and 343 miles in 1923 to 256 miles in 1929 and 130 miles in 1933. In like manner the average per capita money expenditure for rail travel in 1933 was less than in any year since 1871, having dropped from $6.94 in 1912 and $10.39 in 1923 to $7.21 in 1929 and $2.62 in 1933.

The commissioners voting with Porter were Clyde B. Aitcheson, Carroll Miller, W. M. W. Splawn, and Marion M. Caskie. Voting with Mahaffie were B. H. Meyer, Frank McManamy, and William E. Lee. Commissioner Hugh M. Tate did not participate in the case.

SAVING ON RAILROAD FARES TO IMPORTANT POINTS BY NEW RATE

The savings to railway passengers under the new schedule of rates ordered by the interstate commerce commission are illustrated in the following tabulation. It compares the present railroad fare under the 3.6 cents per mile rate and the new fares under the 3 cents per mile first class [in Pullman trains], and 2 cents per mile coach rates between Chicago and important eastern points.

Boston	36.63	30.53	20.35
Buffalo	18.81	15.68	10.45
Cincinnati	10.26	8.55	5.70
Cleveland	12.26	10.22	6.81
Detroit	9.81	8.18	5.45
Fort Wayne	5.33	4.44	2.96
Grand Rapids	6.63	5.53	3.68
Indianapolis	6.62	5.52	3.08
Louisville	10.80	9.00	6.00
New York	32.70	27.25	18.17
Philadelphia	29.46	24.55	16.37

The above rates are railroad fare only and do not include Pullman charges. Riders between Chicago and eastern cities now pay the 3.6 cent a mile rail rate whether they ride in coaches or Pullman cars. The Pullman charge is extra, but the savings to the Pullman rider [first class] will be further increased by the one-third reduction in the Pullman charge under the new schedule.

HOUSE VOTES 14 MILLIONS EXTRA FOR FARM OFFICE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—[Special.]—Without a record vote, the house today passed and sent to the senate a $161,863,000 agriculture department appropriations bill for the fiscal year of 1937. The total was more than 14 millions in excess of the 1936 appropriation.

At the same time, President Roosevelt issued an executive order allocating 7 million dollars from a sum not to exceed 30 millions which he set up to provide for crop production loans following his veto on Wednesday of the 50 million dollar crop production or "seed loan" bill.

Announcement of the order was made after the departure of a senate delegation which conferred with the President to determine his intention regarding seed loans in the event his veto should be sustained. The veto met with considerable opposition in the senate, which was quieted by the promise that loans would be made to small farmers from relief funds.

The bill carries an increase of $8,356,000 for coöperative agriculture extension work. The bureau of public roads got an increase of $8,940,000. Soil erosion and moisture projects obtained increase of $21,800,000 and the bureau of biological survey was given $395,000 more.

Sharp reductions were made, however, in the office of the secretary of agriculture for salaries. "Elimination of diseased cattle" was cut 10 millions and a "special research fund" was cut by 9 millions.

SLUR ON CUNNING OF COYOTE STIRS WRATH IN HOUSE

Westerners Insist Animal Can't Be Trapped.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—[Special.]—A mild assertion today by Representative James W. Wadsworth [Rep., N. Y.], that coyotes were easy to trap brought a number of western congressmen to their feet with wildly shouted defenses of the animal's elusive cunning.

For nearly an hour, the house debated the stirring question of whether coyotes could be captured without difficulty. In the end, the coyote defenders seemed to have won the battle, and Wadsworth, both amused and bewildered about the excitement he had caused, withdrew laughingly from the field.

Opposes Spreading of Poison.

Representative Charles I. Faddis [Dem., Pa.] had offered an amendment to the department of agriculture appropriations bill providing that a $600,000 item for destroying predatory animals should not be used for the purchase of poison to kill such animals. Poison laid out for coyotes, wolves and similar animals often results in the death of valuable game, he contended.

Arising to support the amendment, Wadsworth remarked that poison need not be used to destroy coyotes because they were easy to trap.

"I once made the mistake of offering some small Texas boys 50 cents a pair for coyote ears," he remarked. "They went to work in the range country and at the end of two weeks, I had to withdraw the order. They brought in dozens and dozens of them."

"Shrewdest in the World."

A dozen congressmen from western states were immediately on their feet demanding wrathfully to be heard in answer to this deadly insult to the intelligence of the coyote.

"The coyote is the shrewdest wild animal in the world!" yelped Representative Edward T. Taylor [Dem., Colo.]. "He is cunning, foxy, and it is impossible to catch him by traps."

"Has the gentleman from New York ever tried to trap a gopher?" bellowed Representative Thomas F. Ford [Dem., Cal.].

"I've trapped harder animals than that," interjected Faddis, "such as fox, mink, and otters, and I bet I could trap a gopher."

Representative Compton I. White [Dem., Idaho] admitted that you could trap a coyote, but only by "setting a great number of traps about forty feet apart so that the coyote, circling around, would step in one."

Mrs. Greenway Joins Fight.

"I think I shall have to go back to the Texas Panhandle and find a dozen 12 year old boys to send up to Idaho," Wadsworth remarked.

"What does a New Yorker know about coyotes?" inquired Representative Roy E. Ayers [Dem., Mont.]. "It is almost impossible to trap them. We'll pay your small boys $5 for each coyote caught."

Even Mrs. Isabella Greenway, the Arizona representative, got into the argument. She conceded that a coyote might be trapped, but that a gopher or prairie dog could never be captured.

There was much further argument, during which Wadsworth, chuckling, finally left the chamber, and the members with enthusiasm shouted down the Faddis amendment.

12 OZ. BABY BORN HERE TINIEST IN MEDICAL HISTORY

Jacqueline, Now 6 Months Old, Weighs 34 Ounces.

Birth of an infant said to be the smallest ever recorded in medical history—a girl weighing an estimated 12 ounces—was reported yesterday by authorities at St. Anne's hospital, 4900 Thomas street. The child was born on Jan. 14. Her weight today is two pounds and two ounces, and she is said by hospital attendants to be in "perfect health."

The child has been christened Jacqueline Jean Benson. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Benson, 5914 Dakin street. When Jacqueline arrived, Dr. Edward P. King said she was too small to be weighed and placed her immediately in an incubator which has been her home ever since.

Not until 18 days after birth was Jacqueline weighed, the scales then recording 20 ounces of which several ounces represented the weight of the blanket upon which she lay.

Real Figure to Remain Mystery.

"Of course we'll never know what she really weighed at birth," said Dr. King yesterday, "but the estimate of her weight which I gave the hospital was 12 ounces."

If this estimate is correct Jacqueline is the smallest baby ever recorded. Records at the American Medical association showed yesterday that the smallest baby hitherto reported weighed 13 ounces at birth.

"Aside from her tiny size Jacqueline is a very unusual baby on another count," said Dr. King. "She is a six months baby and it is indeed rare when a child born after such a short period of gestation lives more than a few minutes.

Child Is Perfectly Formed.

"We didn't think she was going to live either, but we had an incubator in the delivery room and we popped her right in. Then we did everything we could to keep her alive. Although tiny she is perfectly formed.

"She was given oxygen from the start. She went along and along, and now I believe that she will live. I'm going to keep her in the incubator until she weighs five pounds. Then she can be taken out.

"She is being fed mother's milk through a rubber tube to her stomach. I guess that now she is beginning to be able to swallow, and the routine feeding is being augmented by a few drops from an eye dropper. The incubator is constantly kept at 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit."

Mrs. Benson left the hospital ten days after her daughter was born. She is 28 years old. Jacqueline is her first child. Benson is a printer employed by R. R. Donnelley & Sons.

CONTEMPT TERM FOR NOT PAYING TYPIST IS VOIDED

Judge Daniel P. Trude of the Circuit court ruled yesterday that a six month contempt sentence imposed Feb. 4 on Alexander Moseley, 1515 Kingsbury street, was invalid. Moseley, head of a coffee sales concern, was sentenced to the county jail by Judge Oscar F. Nelson of the Superior court for failure to pay a $250 stenographic bill incurred by his wife, Mrs. Kathleen Moseley, in her suit for separate maintenance.

After serving two days in jail, Moseley filed a habeas corpus petition in the Circuit court. He was released immediately on a $500 bond set by Judge Trude, pending a hearing. Yesterday Judge Trude issued the habeas corpus writ and the bond was returned to Moseley.

Judge Trude held that the contempt sentence might have been legal if it involved money which Moseley was to pay to his wife, but when it concerned a payment to a third person it amounted to imprisonment for debt.

Acquit Delander of Fraud; Ex-Clerk of Will County

Albion F. Delander, 46 years old, county clerk of Will county for twelve years until 1934, was acquitted by a jury last night of charges of embezzling $8,000 in county funds during the years he was clerk. The verdict was returned before Judge Claude Saum in the Will county Circuit court at Joliet after the jury had debated two hours and twenty minutes. Delander asserted that the shortage in his accounts was occasioned by the closing of banks where some of the money was deposited.

WARNS SCHOOLS AGAINST SOCIAL STUDY EMPHASIS

Dr. Conant Sees Peril in Current Trend.

BY MARCIA WINN.

Dr. James Bryant Conant, president of Harvard university, in an address last night before the Progressive Education association at the Palmer house, voiced a warning against the overemphasis of social studies in the secondary schools of America.

Dr. Conant's words came as a surprise at the end of a day's session at which were made repeated suggestions that school curricula be built around the child's emotions, his movements, and his "functional values."

"In devising the new curricula we are apt to lose sight of the importance of the old line subjects to these professional leaders," Dr. Conant said.

Tells Current Trend.

"In some schools increasing emphasis is being placed on social studies, art, and music—tending to drive out the mathematics, languages, and the classics.

"Is it fair to the exceptional youth to so change the curricula that he will not have the opportunity to have the solid background that is so necessary for him?

"The purpose of education Dr. Conant defined as "discovering the exceptional man in every department of study," and yet, he said, "today we are so preoccupied with the education of the many that we neglect that of the few."

Looks Ahead 200 Years.

"Two hundred years from now will it be said that in our concern with material ills we ceased to be interested in the advancement of that knowledge from which our civilization has sprung?" he asked the educators.

"Will it be said that in an effort to enrich the life of the average man we have neglected to provide for those who would have continued the advance?"

Dr. William E. Blatz of St. George's School for Child Study at the University of Toronto, speaking on an "adventure in education," told the educators that child and teacher alike should be taught "how to emote."

"Forget emotional eradication and set up a plan by which we can teach children how to emote," he urged. "We should teach all individuals that, and we should start on the teachers."

Life Not Series of Crises.

"Teach them that life is not a series of crises," he urged further, "but of challenges. Too much today depends on failures. They should be taught that whether they fail or not does not matter, that life is a toast, not a menu. Here's life: Forget the spinach and applesauce and baloney."

The theory that "self-control arising from an understanding of the purpose of social behavior" should be taught children who misbehave was advanced by John N. Washburne of Syracuse university.

"Neither a kick nor icy disapproval is progressive," Prof. Walsh burne said. "The substitution of disapproval for bodily punishment is, in fact, the most psychologically alienating of all punishments, for psychological alienation lies at the very core of insanity and delinquency."

TWO MEN WILLING TO BE NAMED FATHER OF FLORIDA TRIPLETS

Miami, Fla., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Parentage of triplets born to a 25 year old Miami woman may be decided by scientific tests as the result of an amazing story unfolded here before Juvenile Judge W. H. Beckham.

The 5 month old children were in a nursey here today as Judge Beckham, frankly puzzled, wondered what to do about the case. Two men are willing to be declared father of the triplets.

The woman, severely lectured by Judge Beckham at a hearing, told two stories. First she said a Miamian was the father. Later she said a West Palm Beach man was the parent.

An attorney representing the Miamian asked the court to withhold decision in the case for a year, meanwhile keeping the children under observation for development of physical characteristics that might point to the true father.

Judge Beckham was inclined to this idea, but if the physical development fails definitly to prove which of the men is the parent scientific tests may be brought into the case.

The woman was held for the Criminal court on a charge of child desertion, but she was not imprisoned pending her payment of half of the nursery board.

FOUR MOTHERS IN STORK DERBY TO SPLIT PRIZE

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Four Toronto mothers, leading contenders for the $500,000 "Stork Derby" prize under the will of the late Charles Vance Millar, have agreed to share the stakes if any of them is awarded the money, Mrs. Arthur Hollis Timleck, one of the pace makers, said today.

A fifth mother, who regards herself as a "Sure Winner" of the prize willed to the Toronto woman having the most children between Oct. 14, 1926 and Oct. 14, 1936, refused to enter the agreement. She is Mrs. Matthew Kenny, who recently gave birth to a stillborn baby which she claimed was her 13th child since 1926.

The four mothers entered in the agreement to share the bequest of the former Toronto lawyer and sportsman are Mrs. Timleck, mother of nine children born since 1926; Mrs. Ambrose Harrison and Mrs. Gus Graziano, who have the same number, and Mrs. Steffano Darrigo, who claims 10.

22 UNPLEDGED IOWA DELEGATES NAMED BY G. O. P.

Landon, Borah Favored Over Dickinson.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 28.—[Special.]—Iowa Republicans in state convention today chose their twenty-two delegates to the G. O. P. national convention and headed them for Cleveland in June without instructions on presidential candidates. It is the first state to name a full delegation.

Although Iowa is the home of Senator L. J. Dickinson, who is on the list of presidential possibilities, there were no "favorite son" committments, and the delegates go to the national convention conclave untrammeled, and in nobody's vest pockets.

As the keynoter, J. O. Shaff of Camanche, said in his speech:

"It is imperative that the nomination made [for President] shall, as it will, spring from the people."

Sentiment for Others.

"Hell Roaring Dick," as the Iowa senators is known in the corn belt, was not in attendance. He had not sought a "favorite son" instruction. Among the 1,700 delegates sentiment as informally gathered was stronger for Gov. Alf Landon of Kansas or Senator William E. Borah of Idaho than for the local candidate.

Observers for Landon and Borah were on the scene, but merely as observers. Among the delegates there was talk that if Dickinson's name was presented for an indorsement of presidential candidacy, supporters of Landon would put in his name, as might Borah's friends. Conjectures seemed general among the delegates that in such an event, a stampede might ensue towards Landon.

Fail to Mention Dickinson.

Strangely enough for a convention, the name of the senator was not mentioned during the proceedings. The nearest approach was during the roll call on delegates-at-large, when Dickinson county was called, but no one was there with a response.

Delegates at large are ex-Gov. John Hammill, Britt; ex-Gov. Dan Turner, Corning; Robert Coldflesh, Des Moines; Harrison E. Spangler, Cedar Rapids. Alternates: John Huston, Ottumwa; Ben Butler, Waterloo; J. O. Shaff, Camanche; Homer Husch, Essex.

Senator Dickinson is faced with a battle for renomination as senator. His chief opponent in the June 1 primaries is Edwin C. [Buck] Manning, mayor of Ottumwa, whose grandfather settled there 100 years ago and who is running on a one plank platform: "The Republican party demands new faces."

Expect Complimentary Vote.

Despite the lack of instructions, belief was expressed generally at the close of the conclave that the Iowans will give a complimentary vote to the senator on the first ballot or two at Cleveland, although Landon followers dispute this, and declare the Kansas governor is favorite of a majority of the delegation

In the heart of the cornbelt, a pivotal battleground in the impending campaign, the Republican convention was keyed to the idea: "The backbone of the New Deal is broken in Iowa."

Where two years ago, a G. O. P. meeting would have had difficulty in in attracting much more than a corporal's guard, 1,700 delegates swarmed to town, while others were held back by snowdrifts in northwest counties. They shook the Coliseum at times with their noise and applause, as speakers ripped into the New Deal, and the experimentation in regimented farming and in agrarian collectivism in Iowa.

Lash Wallace and Aids.

In the home town of Secretary Henry Wallace, the delegates blew off the roof when Robert G. Simmons of Lincoln, Neb., tore into "Wallace, Tugwell and Mordecai Ezekiel" as the three prophets of the "goosestep" in agriculture.

"To keep America free is our chief responsibility," cried Simmons.

An object lesson of what the "more abundant" life and enforced scarcity is doing to Iowa, first in corn, first in hogs and first in AAA corn hog checks was set up in the hotel lobbies. Glass inclosed cases contained exhibits of Argentine corn beef, Brazilian corn beef, Poland cooker ham, Italian string beans, French canned carrots, Uruguayan canned beef, as among imports which have grown under the brain trust doctrine of scarcity.

Abundant for Foreigners.

"The more abundant life for foreign rivals of Iowa farmers," the exhibits were labeled.

With it went much delegate talk about Wallace's "hi-bred" corn, and surmises whether the seed corn enterprise of the secretary of agriculture will bring this season a crop of seed corn from Argentina, whither an expert was sent several months ago to take advantage of the winter growing season.

At the end came a battle over delegates at large, as a result of which the two former governors were named.

Herbert Hoover's name, mentioned in one speech as that of an "Iowa boy" was loudly cheered.

After attacking the New Deal for "an insidious attempt to change our form of government," and dwelling on violated campaign pledges by the Roosevelt administration, and the need for retrenchment and a reduction of the tax burden, the platform says:

"The power to tax carries the power to destroy. Twenty-five per cent of the nation s' earnings are taken for taxes."

Iowa's Farm Idea.

"The stabilization of agriculture is an economic problem and not a political one.

"The American farm market is the market for all the foodstuffs, with an obligation on the part of the American farmer to provide the American people with a generous food supply at prices which are profitable to him and fair to the consumer.

"With the utmost friendliness to neighboring countries, we insert that there is no place in America for the competing farm products or their substitutes of these outside peoples until American agriculture finds that it is unable to supply the American market.

For Soil Conservation.

'We propose that our program should embody the following features:

"1. A program for the conservation of soil fertility and prevention of erosion and flood losses, federally financed as being a matter of national public interest and welfare.

"2. Premiums should be paid to each farmer on land devoted to approved methods of soil conservation.

"3. The federal and state government should coöperate in such a program, but the administration thereof should be through existing state agencies.

"4. A definite plan of warehousing of staple agricultural products in storage was established first by the Republican party. It is essential that this program be perfected.

"5. Such action should be taken as is necessary to insure the American farmer rates comparable to the rates granted to American industry.

"6. The interest rate on federal farm loans at all times should be consistent with the current rates of interest on federal, county, and municipal bonds.

"7. We condemn the national practice of the expenditure of hundreds of millions of dollars of taxpayers money to place millions of new acres under cultivation, in competition with land already under production, until such time as needed by population expansion.

"8. There is no place in the American system of government for any permanent plan which will take away from the farmer his independence or deprive him of the right to be in the final control of his own acres."

CARNIVAL SPIRIT PREVAILS IN NEW YORK

TWO BOYS ON WAY TO CHURCH RUN DOWN BY AUTO

Two 8 year old boys, on their way to attend Lenten services at St. Rita's Catholic church, were seriously injured last night when they were struck at 63d street and Washtenaw avenue by an automobile driven by Adolph D. Thommen, 3400 West 61st place. They are Carl Kramer Jr., 2419 West 63d street, and Francis O'Toole, 6326 South Artesian avenue. The Kramer boy suffered a fractured skull and the other lad a broken leg.

The fathers of the boys signed complaints charging Thommen with reckless driving, and he was held by the police pending outcome of the boys' injuries.

ENGINEERS FAVOR AUTO INSPECTION UNDER CITY LAW

Evanston Program Is Given Approval.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Urbana, Ill., Feb. 28.—[Special.]—Compulsory mechanical inspection of automobiles, such as is operating in Evanston, Ill., and as such as is planned for Chicago, today was approved by the twenty-third annual conference on highway engineering at the University of Illinois here.

G. E. Weaver, garage equipment manufacturer of Springfield, Ill., told an assembly of 400 city, county, and state engineers of the trafic accident reduction that has accompanied such motor vehicle tests in Evanston and in Memphis, Tenn., pioneer in compulsory inspections.

Fatalities Are Reduced.

"Taking into consideration its increase in registrations," said Mr. Weaver, "Memphis' tests of brakes, lights, and steering have cut street fatalities 25 per cent and have lessened personal injury accidents 51 per cent in two years.

"The Evanston testing stations have shown that 25 per cent of the cars in this city have less than 60 per cent of the braking capacity that was originally built into them. This braking inefficiency is corrected before the owners receive an okay requisite for a city license. Experience has shown that the cost of such service to the public is about 60 cents per car."

Plan to Use Wheel Tax.

Chicago plans that its compulsory inspection will be financed from the city wheel tax fund.

Preceding Mr. Weaver on the program, Ralph L. Lee, engineer of the General Motors corporation, told of developments by the automotive industry for safety, the 'improved' responsiveness and the increased strength of the new models. For example, he said that the average 1936 car can stop from 60 miles an hour in the same distance that the average 1928 car required to stop from 40 miles an hour.

In regard to sporadic proposals to limit maximum speed mechanically, Mr. Lee said that the top speed capacity of today's automobiles is a by-product of surplus power essential to satisfactory acceleration, hill climbing and to moderately rapid cruising without engine strain.

ONE DIES, 2 HURT AS AUTOMOBILE DROPS 40 FEET

Roy Jennings, 40 years old, 404 South 2d street, St. Charles, was killed last night and two persons were injured when an automobile plunged down a 40 foot embankment on route 25, south of Batavia, after a tire blew out. The other victims were Miss Minna Stahl, 25 years old, maid in the home of Logan Healy, 821 South 7th street, St. Charles, and James Healy, 3 years old, son of Miss Stahl's employer. Miss Stahl was taken to the St. Charles hospital, Aurora, with a leg injury. The child escaped with a few scratches.

Angelo Damora, 59 years old, 2340 West 24th street, a newsboy, died in St. Anthony's hospital shortly after he was hit while crossing 26th street at Western avenue by a truck driven by Cornelius Boer, 23, of 1726 West 14th place.

Mrs. Margaret Marford, 55 years old, 915 Lafayette avenue, died in the County hospital of injuries incurred on Wednesday when she was struck at Lawrence avenue and Sheridan road by the automobile of William Suchier, 34, of 834 Lawrence avenue.

The body of an unidentified man who was fatally injured by two trucks at 47th street and Ashland avenue on Thursday was identified by relatives as that of Frank Skupien, 45 years old, 4745 South Marshfield avenue.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 158 persons had been killed by motor vehicles in Cook county since Jan. 1, according to figures from the coroner's office. In the same period 135 were killed and 2,263 injured within the Chicago city limits.

BROOKS PRAISES STATE'S HONEST ELECTION BILLS

Nash Calls Them Move to Beat Roosevelt.

The permanent registration bills for honest elections, which have been passed by the Illinois house and will be called for passage in the state senate next week, received praise and condemnation in large portions yesterday.

Wayland Brooks, a leading Republican candidate for governor, issued a statement urging passage of the Schnackenberg-Hubbard-Brands permanent registration bills. Before the Democratic county central committee Chairman Pat Nash and Senator Harold G. Ward, Mayor Kelly's legislative spokesman, declared that more than 250,000 persons would be disfranchised if the measures become law.

Passage roll call on the bills will probably be had in the senate next Wednesday. A test vote last Wednesday showed that they lacked five of the twenty-six necessary votes. Since that time proponents declare that they have picked up additional votes.

Elections Here a "Disgrace."

"These bills," Brooks declared, referring to the honest elections legislation, "should be passed. The question is the most important before the people of the state today. Elections in Cook county during the last four years have been a disgrace and a sham.

"Permanent registration will restore to the voter the control of elections; give Chicago and Cook county honest elections; make certain a Republican victory at the November elections; smash the Nash-Kelly political machine control; and deal a death blow to boss control.

"Permanent registration may even determine the election of the next President of the United States.

"Every liberty loving citizen should take advantage of this opportunity to urge his state senator to be present and to vote for and work for the passage of this honest elections law.

"The Nash-Kelly combine is vigorously opposing this bill. Keep your eye on the senate this week. Watch to see who fails to vote in favor of these bills unchanged and those who are absent or who do not respond to roll call, and then you will be able to judge for yourself who is lined up with the Nash-Kelly machine."

Finds Roosevelt Is Target.

Democratic Chairman Nash told the county committee, meeting at the Morrison hotel, that "the forces behind the registration measures have one principal aim—the defeat of President Roosevelt."

"I maintain," he said, "that if permanent registration is good for Chicago, it is good for all of the state."

The Schnackenberg-Hubbard-Brands bills would impose permanent registration only upon the cities governed by election boards, seven in addition to Chicago. Nash sought to have the house pass a bill for statewide registration. The Chicago Democrats in the house voted for it and against the Schnackenberg-Hubbard-Brands bills.

Applauded by Veterans.

More than 300 ex-service men cheered Brooks last night when he was the guest of the Illinois Republican War Veterans' league at the Morrison hotel. He was introduced to the crowd by Ferre C. Watkins.

Five o'clock this afternoon is the deadline for withdrawal of state and county primary nominating petitions. From Springfield it was reported that Dr. John A. Moore of Bloomington would withdraw from the race for state auditor in favor of Homer Mat Adams of Urbana. Both support Gov. Horner.

There were other reports that at least one downstate Republican candidate for governor would withdraw, reducing that crowded field to eight.

Completing his first week of downstate campaigning, Otis F. Glenn, who seeks the Republican nomination for United States senator, told Chicago friends he had spoken to large crowds down in Egypt and found his campaign "in fine shape."

ROOSEVELT'S NAME ENTERED IN PRIMARY IN PENNSYLVANIA 1ST

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 28.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt's name was entered formally today in the presidential preferential primary in Pennsylvania. Petitions to place it on the Democratic ballot two months hence carried about 7,000 signatures from sixty-two counties.

Mr. Roosevelt is the first presidential candidate of either party to enter the primary in this state.

Howard M. Overstreet, who resigned last week as a trafic policeman in Washington to enter the campaign, has obtained petitions here to place his name on the Democratic ballot for the presidency.

DISMISSES SUIT AGAINST COUNTY BOARD MEMBERS

Court Holds City Club's Case Groundless.

Judge John W. Preihs of Pana sitting in the Superior court here dismissed yesterday a suit brought by the City Club of Chicago seeking penalties of $1,646,200 from 58 men and women [several of whom are dead] who have been members of the county board since 1910. The bill alleged that the defendants failed to require proper auditing of county funds and asked that they be assessed $200 for each of 8,231 such "offenses."

The suit was a qui tam action, similar to one filed by the City club last June against Robert M. Sweitzer, former county treasurer, under which the plaintiff, as a taxpayer, would be entitled to half the amount of the judgment. The club, however offered to donate its share, if received, to the county. The action against Sweitzer still is pending.

Holds Cause of Action Absent.

In dismissing the suit against the county board members, Judge Preihs sustained the contention of Assistant State's Attorney Jacob Shamberg that the City club had no legal cause of action unless "they had sustained some injury which is special and peculiar to themselves." Such injury was not shown, the court held.

"The plaintiffs, the City club, have no right under the statute to institute or maintain this suit as individuals on behalf of the state of Illinois," Judge Preihs said. "This is a suit which, if maintained, must be instituted by the state's attorney's office of treasurer.

The Origin of the Litigation.

The suits filed by the City club followed the ouster of Sweitzer from the treasurership by the county board last June and concomitant disclosures of inefficiency and antiquated practices in auditing county funds. Sweitzer was removed as treasurer when he failed to account for a shortage of more than half a million dollars in his accounts as county clerk, the office he held from 1910 to 1934.

Yesterday Sweitzer filed an appeal in the Illinois Supreme court from a ruling of Judge Joseph Burke of the Circuit court dismissing his quo waranto proceedings to regain the office or the attorney general."

BORAH IS CONSIDERING ENTERING CALIFORNIA PRIMARIES IN MAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—[Special.]—Senator William E. Borah is considering entering the California primary in his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination, it was disclosed here today by Carl G. Bachman, chairman of Borah's campaign committee.

"Very favorable and encouraging reports have been received as a result of a survey now being conducted by E. Weaver Campbell, a well known attorney of Los Angeles, who was authorized to make a preliminary survey in that state," Bachman said. "Through direct contacts with many of Senator Borah's friends and supporters it is evident that the people of California are anxious for Senator Borah to enter the state primaries."

As the deadline for the filing is March 26, Senator Borah will make his decision on entering California within a few days, Bachman said.

ROBBED BY CUSTOMER.

Stefan Lukomski reported to the Racine avenue police that a patron of his restaurant at 1256 North Paulina street had robbed him of $9, three quarts of whisky, and a box of cigars early yesterday.

PART OF HAGOOD REPORT DELETED, BYRNES CHARGES

Blanton's Questions Are Blamed for Incident.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—[Special.]—Charges that Representative Blanton [Dem., Tex.] questioned Gen. Johnson Hagood in detail about the WPA at the celebrated secret committee meeting and then deleted his own questions from the record were sent to Secretary of War Dern tonight by Senator Byrnes [Dem., S. C.] The general's remarks in reply to these questions were left intact in the record, it was charged. Gen. Hagood was punished for his remarks, being deprived of command of the 8th corps area.

One of the criticisms heard of Gen. Hagood was that he was not, according to the committee record, really answering questions when he criticized the WPA, but was making a "stump speech." Senator Byrnes sought to dispel this impression in his letter.

Recalls Executive Session.

It was Senator Byrnes who led a delegation to the war department yesterday in Gen. Hagood's behalf. In his letter tonight he said:

"I heard Congressman Blanton tell you that at the time Gen. Hagood was invited before the subcommittee of the house appropriations committee, composed of five representatives, the committee was in executive session, no one other than the members of the committee, the witness and a stenographer being present; that after Gen. Hagood presented the needs of the war department for housing the enlisted personnel Congressman Blanton injected into the discussion the expenditures of the Works Progress administration; that in the discussion that followed, Gen. Hagood participated.

"The congressman stated that the record as taken by the stenographer contains all statements made by Gen. Hagood, but from it there were deleted questions and statements of members of the committee."

Mr. Blanton could not be reached this evening to comment on Senator Byrnes' charges. Senator Byrnes also informed Secretary Dern that Gen. Hagood had telegraphed the house appropriations subcommittee on Feb. 8, asking this his entire testimony be deleted from the record of the hearings at which he testified.

Chairman Parks [Dem., Ark.], in charge of the war department hearings, who personally invited Gen. Hagood to testify, promptly retorted:

"I would have been glad to eliminate his testimony, but the general's request came after the record had been published and delivered."

Sends Wire to Subcommittee.

In the letter sent to Secretary Dern, Senator Byrnes pointed out that on Feb. 8 [the same date the bound copies of the hearing were delivered by the government printing office] Gen. Hagood wired the appropriations subcommittee as follows:

"Higher authority has directed that army officers give out no information in reference to army appropriation that is inconsistent with budget as submitted to congress. Please eliminate my entire testimony from the printed copy of the hearings, but if this cannot be done at least strike out everything that is inconsistent with the budget or could be construed as criticism of the New Deal."

The message was received after 1,200 copies of the hearings were delivered to the committee and had been distributed to newspaper men for release two days later.

Study Investigation Proposal.

When Gen. Hagood read of his testimony, Senator Byrnes told Mr. Dern, he immediately sent a telegram to Senator Byrnes and some house members, saying he was "deeply shocked at being accused of criticizing the President."

Meantime the resolution introduced by Senator Metcalf demanding an investigation of why Gen. Hagood was removed from his command was referred by the senate military affairs committee today to a subcommittee which in turn will report to the full committee next Friday.

ROBINSON READS ANOTHER'S MAIL TO RAP GENERAL

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Former Senator Arthur R. Robinson, Republican of Indiana, today said a personal letter from Maj. Gen. Frank C. Bolles of Omaha, his commanding officer overseas during the world war, may have been the basis for recent criticism by Senator Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.].

The former senator said he received a letter today from Senator Robinson inclosing a personal letter from Gen. Bolles which the Arkansas senator said he had received and opened by mistake.

The letter from Gen. Bolles told of having seen a list of possible presidential candidates in a magazine article. Robinson's name was listed among others. The former Indiana senator said Gen Bolles wrote: "Naturally I am pulling for the candidate from Indiana."

On Wednesday Joseph Robinson criticised Gen. Bolles for being "actively engaged in politics with a candidate for the presidency." Quick denial came from Gen. Bolles.

"I don't know what is the matter with them in Washington," said the former Indiana senator. "They must have the jitters. Gen. Bolles is my old commander. We write to each other every month or so. I have no idea what his politics might be, if any. I doubt if he ever voted in his life."

"Relieved" of Job

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Postmaster General James A. Farley today "relieved" Mrs. Anne C. Parsal of her position as acting postmaster at Benton Harbor, Mich., pending final disposition of an indictment returned against her in federal court.

Farley ordered Postoffice Inspector Clifton C. Garner to take charge of the office at the close of business on Saturday.

Mrs. Parsal was indicted Thursday on charges of having conspired to solicit campaign funds from employés of the Berrien county, Michigan, welfare commission.

HANSEN FATHER OF WIFE'S CHILD, COURT DECIDES

Husband Wins Divorce; Boy Goes to Mother.

George Hansen, 45 years old, an electrical engineer, is the father of the 7 year old boy born to his wife, Esther, in 1928, Judge Rudolph F. Desort of the Superior court ruled yesterday. Hansen and his wife separated in July, 1927, a month after their marriage. He declared at previous hearings that he wanted to be convinced the boy, Cliff, was his son.

After ruling on the boy's paternity, the court awarded a divorce to Hansen on the ground of desertion. His wife's bill, based on a similar charge, was dismissed. The judge gave the custody of the boy to Mrs. Hansen, who is 35 years old and lives at 831 South 19th avenue, Maywood. Hansen was ordered to pay $7 a week as alimony and support money. He lives at 1920 North Central Park avenue.

Blood Tests Ordered.

At a hearing Feb. 5 Judge Desort ordered Hansen and the boy to submit to blood tests in an effort to determine if they were father and son. The judge was informed yesterday that the blood tests gave no positive proof, merely indicating that Hansen might be the father.

Judge Desort held, however, that as Hansen and his wife had lived together for a month after their marriage and neither charged the other with infidelity, the legal presumption was that Hansen was the father of the boy.

Tells of Meeting.

Hansen testified at previous hearings that after he and his wife separated in July, 1927, he did not see her again until a meeting in February, 1935, when she told him she had a son and he was the father. Mrs. Hansen asserted that she met her husband on the street in 1933 and informed him of the boy's birth.

In dismissing Mrs. Hansen's divorce bill and awarding the decree to Hansen on his cross bill, Judge Desort took cognizance of a note Mrs. Hansen left when her brief honeymoon terminated. This note said: "My ideals have been shattered. I am the master of my fate—I am the captain of my soul. I will be a slave to no man."

This indicated that Mrs. Hansen was the deserting party, Judge Desort said.

Retired Policemen Sue for $206,867 "Back Pay"

Two hundred and sixty retired policemen filed suit in the Superior court yesterday to compel the city to pay them a total of $206,867 they claim is due for wage deductions under the city's economy campaign from 1932 to 1935. The Illinois Supreme court ruled on Feb. 19 that the city must pay 230 other retired policemen $25,000 for 14 days of payless service in 1931.

ARTIST'S SECOND M'VEAGH SUIT TO BE HEARD MAR. 26

Hearing on the second suit brought by Miss Louise Hagen, New York artist, against Eames MacVeagh, 60 years old, son of the late Franklin MacVeagh, pioneer Chicago grocer, was set yesterday for March 26 in the Municipal court.

Miss Hagen seeks a judgment of $3,250 for alleged breach of contract, charging MacVeagh owes her that amount for the period from January, 1935, to January, 1936 inclusive under an agreement made in 1929 by which he was to pay her $250 a month for the rest of her life.

In a similar action for payments due in the preceding ten month period Miss Hagen was awarded a judgment for $2,500 by Municipal Judge Joseph H. McGarry last Sept. 15.

At the trial Miss Hagen, now 47 years old, testified that MacVeagh was the father of her 24 year old son. She asserted that for twenty-five years he lavished gifts and attentions upon her.

In 1929 MacVeagh married Miss Zelie Barthelmy, daughter of Antonin Barthelmy, for ten years French consul general in Chicago. He asserted at the trial that he was financially unable to pay Miss Hagen.

N. U. BUSINESS HEAD EXPLAINS INFLATION PERIL

Funds Invested to Return Fixed Income.

The danger of inflation is a real threat to Northwestern university, Harry L. Wells, business manager of the university, declared in an address last night before 800 alumni at a meeting in Thorne hall on the McKinlock campus. The meeting was in celebration of the tenth anniversary of the Northwestern University Foundation fund.

Inflation, Mr. Wells said, becomes a matter for real concern in view of the university's large holding of fixed income assets. Salaries constitute a large portion of the university's expenditures and as living costs rise a problem would be presented, he added.

Mr. Wells referred to the recent statement of former President Hoover, a trustee of Stanford university, that actual or possible inflation resulting from New Deal monetary experiments created a serious problem for endowment funds.

University Owns Common Stocks.

Mr. Wells said that an increasing percentage of Northwestern university's investment funds is now being placed in common stocks and other equities. Common stocks are purchased for investment of funds in which the donor gives discretionary powers to trustees, he said. Most of the 7 million dollar gift of the late Roger Deering, who died on Feb. 2, will come to the university in the form of high grade common stocks. What disposition will be made of the bequest has not been decided, he added.

Mr. Wells said that the educational operating budget of the university will be balanced this year for the first time in nine years.

"Each year since 1927," he said, "the university has sustained a small deficit, but in 1933 the deficit grew to a peak of $175,000. It was reduced in 1934 to $100,000 and in 1935 to $69,000.

Predicts Balanced Budget.

"For the academic year 1935-'36, on the basis of figures now available, we shall be able to balance the budget. The three factors which have made possible a balance budget are an increase in student enrollment, increased income from investments, and decreased expenses."

Fred W. Sargent, president of the Chicago and North Western railway, chairman of the university committee on development, spoke on the university's building program. A new student union and a new chemical building are needed, he said. The building plan should include dormitories on McKinlock campus and a new music building and additions to various other structures, he added.

WHAT! NO FIG LEAVES IN 5 BURLESQUE ACTS? JUDGE IS INCREDULOUS

"Are you sure they weren't fig leaves?" the magistrate urged.

Patrolman Hunt was sure the girl he had seen impersonating Eve at the French Casino had worn three maple leaves and "a kind of leafy headdress" and nothing else.

Then the policeman described how the girl dropped two of the leaves as the master of ceremonies intoned, "He loves me—he loves me not—"

Patrolman Hunt described four other "shocking" scenes that made up the revue.

But in the end the magistrate sighed and wrote "dismissed" on the blotter. He indicated that thirty-eight feet was too great a distance for a patrolman, more or less preoccupied with a steak sandwich, to tell whether the girls were wearing skin tights or a birthday ensemble.

BOYLE UNION TIES UP CONSTRUCTION OF POLICE RADIO

A strike of electricians, members of the union headed by Michael J. Boyle, has held up progress on the state's new $300,000 police radio system for the last six weeks, it was learned yesterday. The first station of the state police chain, WQPS at Springfield, had been scheduled to open tomorrow, but state officials declared yesterday that they did not know when it will be completed.

According to Ernst Lieberman, chief engineer for the state highway department, the union demands that the radio operators be members of the electricians' union. Mr. Lieberman pointed out that in every state where a similar radio system is operated the operators are members of the state police.

Maidens of Aurora Lead Bachelor Hunt.

Today is leap year day, which comes only once in four years. Out in Aurora the unmarried girls have organized a real drive on the matrimony shy males of the town. They have persuaded the authorities to turn civic government over to them for the day.

Miss Ruth Reed, 23 years old, who has been appointed temporary corporation counsel in Aurora, announced last night that no mercy will be shown the bachelors.

"Every one of these public enemies," she said, "will be served with a warant. If he's 21 and has a job he can get out of a severe punishment by making a proposal. If he doesn't, he goes to jail."

The prisoners will be given a second chance in court and if they still persist in remaining untrammeled they will be fined. One silk dress per refusal to propose will be the penalty.

Joliet Women Rule.

Joliet also has voted to allow an all-feminine administration to take over its affairs today.

The Aurora fining system is in accordance with an old Scottish custom. Dr. Tom P. Cross of the department of general literature at the University of Chicago recalled yesterday that in 1288 the Scots passed a law providing a fine of not to exceed one pound for any unmarried man who refused a woman's proposal in "lepe yeare." The bachelor could gain exemption only by showing that he was "betrothit to ane ither woman."

Dr. Cross also produced a rare book, published in London in 1606, entitled "Love, Courtship, and Marriage," and quoted from it:

"Albeit it nowe become a part of the common lawe in regard to social relations of life, that as often as every leap yeare doth return, the ladyes have the sole privilege during the time it continueth of making love, either by wordes or lookes, as to them it seemeth proper; and, moreover, no man will be entitled to benefit of clergy who doth in any wise treat her proposal with slight or contumely."

The establishment of leap year by adding a 366th day was decreed by Julius Caesar in 46 B. C. after astronomers figured that the length of the solar year was 365 days 6 hours. This was not quite correct and it was later found that to even up the discrepancy it was necessary to skip a leap year at the ends of centuries unless they could be evenly divided by 400. The year 2000 will be a leap year; 1700, 1800, and 1900 were not.

Origin Is Uncertain.

Scholars have been unable to determine the origin of the custom making women aggressors in courtship in leap years.

The persons whose rare birthdays arrive today were planning parties all over Chicago last night. Mrs. Simon Straus, 3154 South Michigan avenue, will have only 22 candles on her cake, although she was 17 when the civil war began. Mrs. Elizabeth Hunt, 452 Maryland avenue, Gary, will observe her "twentieth" birthday.

EDISON TRAINING TO BE GIVEN TO 100 YOUTHS YEARLY

New York, Feb. 28.—(AP)—Owen D. Young, national chairman of the Thomas Alva Edison Foundation, announced tonight a program for selection and training of one or more youths from each state annually under the same general plan begun by the inventor before his death. The purpose is to find youthful talent and train young scientists to carry on Edison's inventive researches.

Whereas Edison's plan called for selection of only one youth, Young announced, the new plan will differ to the extent that as many as 100 may be selected in a year. Workers as well as students will be eligible.

BEG YOUR PARDON

An item yesterday concerning the disappearance of Thomas P. Hamby and Phyllis Snyder stated that the girl's mother, Mrs. Clara Snyder, lived at 6316 South Hoyne avenue. Anna Schroeder, who lives at that address, said the Snyders never resided there.

1849 HOME BEING RAZED; LINCOLN ONCE A VISITOR

One of Chicago's oldest landmarks, the house at the northeast corner of Ridge avenue and Clark street, at the intersection of Thorndale avenue, erected in 1849 by Nicholas Kransz and once visited by Abraham Lincoln, is being wrecked by its present owner, Peter P. Kransz, son of the builder. The corner is to be used for a filling station.

Nicholas Kransz, who came to this country from Luxemburg nearly a hundred years ago, at one time owned several hundred acres in the vicinity of the house now being wrecked. The Nicholas Senn High school, nearby, stands on the ground he once owned.

Finance Committee Balks at Paying Furniture Bill

The city council finance committee yesterday voted not to pay bills of approximately $600 presented by a loop store for draperies and other furnishings purchased for a conference room in the Western avenue pumping station in 1928. It was reported to the committee that the purchase was authorized by a former Republican mayor.

SATURDAY NEWS OF NEW BOOKS

Miss Brande Tells Reader How to Live

Unusual Book Gives You Sense of Pep.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Wake Up and Live," by Dorothea Brande [Simon & Schuster, $1.75]. Published yesterday.

"Freedom, Farewell," by Phyllis Bentley [Macmillan, $2.50]. Published on Tuesday.

"A Tree Grown Straight," by Percy Marks [Stokes, $2.50]. Published on Thursday.

"The Happy Alienist," by Wallace Smith [Smith, Haas, $2]. Published on Monday.

There could not possibly be a more varied group of books than this week's armful . . . like a spring bouquet . . . no, more like sulphur and molasses or beef, iron, and wine.

Tonic certainly is Dorothea Brande's "Wake Up and Live." She wrote as stimulating a book about writing as any one yet has done in "Becoming a Writer," the way being, according to her, to sit down and write [explained in words of one syllable, but with stirring examples of how].

She has also learned how to live [as well as how to become a writer] and the means of that learning, its application and its results she tells about in "Wake Up and Live" in such a stimulating form.

"Wake Up and Live" is not one of the usual success books . . . there are a few, but not many formulas [disciplines, Miss Brande calls them]. Instead this book shames you into facing life instead of evading it. Most people live far below their possibilities because they subconsciously wish to fail, she says . . . failure is much easier and much pleasanter in most cases than success. The elaboration of the whole idea is fascinating and exactly the spring tonic that most of us need.

Two Novels Stories of Busy Living.

The two most important novels of the week are both records of lives that were lived to their uttermost . . . separated by centuries in time and psychology, however. Phyllis Bentley, who has always written of her own period and her native Yorkshire goes back to the early days of Rome for her scene and to Julius Cæsar for her hero. With the same feminine acuteness for details of life and living that characterized her Yorkshire novels, the background of Rome and Gaul and Spain and Africa is pictured.

Her hero, however, is no domineering worker in a woolen mill, nor an owner, autocratic as those characters in her novels have been, but a man with a passion for power beyond even the ambitious of his day. Many readers may see in this portrait the original of many later gentlemen with political dreams who autocratically exile freedom from their countries.

"A Tree Grown Straight" Good Story of Youth.

Percy Marks' "A Tree Grown Straight" is about a young man of today who has "grown straight" psychologically, a hero almost as unusual as is Miss Bentley's. It is so seldom as to be almost never that we meet a hero like Andy Ross, and almost never, outside of books on child and adult psychology, do we find parents like Dr. Ross and his wife. For Andy's parents always and invariably helped him through his crises in exactly the best way for Andy. Those crises are the usual, normal ones of American childhood and youth . . . taking medicine, facing the death of a dog, throwing stones at an alien just because he is an alien, having a little sister, facing the death of a human beloved, the first sex experience, first love, college with its social advances, travel, economic depression, drudgery.

Andy, through his father's and mother's understanding but nonmeddling, grows straight psychologically as he does physically by the normal exercise of his own healthy muscles. There is nothing unusual about him at all and yet he is, as the author remarks, the rarest of human beings.

There is unquestionably a good deal of good psychological data in the pages of "A Tree Grown Straight," but it is, first of all, a very good story of the growth of a boy into manhood, with nothing of the case history or propaganda about it.

That "A Tree Grown Straight" is full of invaluable hints to parents about how to help their children is no more than putting down on paper of the facts that life could teach normally intelligent parents if they took the trouble to put as much thought on their offspring, as they do on the stock market or the bridge table, or even on the ideals of the local union and calories in food.

"The Happy Alienist" Is Story of Insanity.

"The Happy Alienist," by Wallace Smith, may be psychological also, but it is cuckoo. It is about a great psychiatrist in Vienna who fell in love but ended by "murdering" his wife and his best friend. It is the book upon which the libretto of the operetta "May Wine" is based. It is all as mad as mad can be, but amusing . . . literary fare exactly like the "combination of pastry, puffed with custard and suffocated with whipped cream and tall glasses of Pilsener beer," which Mr. Smith describes as "peculiarly attractive to the crowds" on a Viennese spring afternoon. It is the molasses of our spring sulphur and molasses, the wine of our beef, iron, and wine.

Two Terrifying Books Claim to Tell Facts.

Unadulterated sulphur, beef and iron of our spring tonics are found in "Fighting the Underworld," by Philip S. Van Cise and "American Chamber of Horrors." They are factual books about terrifying facts, the first about the underworld and the latter about the food we eat, the medicines and cosmetics we use.

Philip S. Van Cise was elected district attorney of Denver when Denver was the summer metropolis of the confidence gamesters, when many of the police, judges, and prominent citizens of Denver were profiting from the fleecing of tourists.

Mr. Van Cise, a veteran of the world war, applied his army training as well as his good legal head to the business of cleaning up Denver. It was a long job, and one in which he made some serious blunders [which he confesses], but eventually on one memorable day he rounded up the whole confidence gang, including its "brain," Lou Blonger.

The story is fascinating, for it describes the business of organized crime operating under protection. Incidentally, one of the men who helped in the Van Cise roundup was Frank Norfleet, that intrepid Texan who was himself "taken" twice by con men for $45,000, who then turned detective and made a little private roundup of his own that has gone down in criminal history. His story of that adventure was published in 1924 under the simple title "Norfleet." It came into my hands in 1927. I started to read it, was fascinated by it, wrote a piece about it, and it became, in Chicago at least, a best seller. It is one of the "naturals" of literature and recommended as a thorough spring bracer.

"Chamber of Horrors" Attacks Drug Frauds.

"American Chamber of Horrors" is "the inside story of the government's fight to protect consumers against dangers to health, life, and pocketbook," so says the jacket and "The truth about food and drugs," says the subtitle. It is almost as full of startling material as was "Skin Deep," and some of it is the same material, like the horror story of the beautiful woman who used a concoction on her eyelashes and soon was blind and an invalid.

It tells about dirty cream and butter so vividly that you think the only solution is to go out and buy one of the smaller breeds of cow and keep her on the back porch. Poison lurks behind so many labels that you are terrified to look in a drug store window. Facts—from government research—fill its pages. But those pages are more statistical, less "exciting reading" than were the pages of "Skin Deep," perhaps because more exact secrets about individual concoctions are shared in "Skin Deep."

Two Novelists and a Crime Fighter

PHYLLIS BENTLEY. PHILIP S. VAN CISE. PERCY MARKS.

Phyllis Bentley in "Freedom, Farewell," and Percy Marks in "A Tree Grown Straight" offer us the two most important novels of the week. Philip S. Van Cise, in "Fighting the Underworld," the week's thriller about capturing crooks. These, a light novel, a presentation of the pure food and drugs case and a stimulating book, "Wake Up and Live," are all reviewed today.

London Times Collects Book of Vox Pop

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—Those who do not know the London Times may be excused for thinking that it must be a very solemn, official sort of paper. It is nothing of the kind. And one of its most amusing and stimulating regular features is the collection of correspondence which appears daily. This ranges from the latest fancy of Bernard Shaw to a letter from a clergyman who finds that swallows have nested in his top hat. It is varied, charming, pompous, ingenious, and always interesting.

Another amusing feature is the last leading article, which is always in lighter vein, and which sometimes reveals genius for the peculiar delights of nonsense. Now the man who writes many of these lighter leaders is Douglas Woodruff, well known to certain Londoners as a wit; and it is a happy coincidence that a selection is to be made from the Times correspondence by none other than Woodruff himself.

This selection, to be called "Dear Sir" [Methuen], will include the first letter ever printed in the Times, but for the most part it is to consist of letters written in the last twenty years, about food and dress, literary history, strange personal experiences, and such things. Mr. Woodruff contributes a preface of some length, and the book should be one for idle hours and much pleasure.

It is good news that we are to have another new book, this time not a novel, from the Countess Russell, who now allows her publishers to describe her, briefly, as "Elizabeth." The book is called "All the Dogs in My Life" [Heinemann], and that title makes clear what its contents will be. What it does not make clear, to those unfamiliar with this author's most delicious work, is that Lady Russell's wit, her kindness, and her delicate malice, devoted here to pets, whereas formerly it has been expended upon men of wrath, should be at their best.

I do not know whether it is too much to hope that Lady Russell is writing her autobiography, but this is the favorite occupation of many much less authors, and hers would shine among such candles as an evening star.

MYSTERIES OF THE WEEK

BY MORTIMER QUICK

It seems to me that Dorothy Sayers has achieved true eminence in the craft of mystery story writing. In England a book from her pen is an event not merely in her chosen field but of literary distinction. In America we are timid about taking her quite so seriously, but what she offers we read with avidity.

How we are going to take "Gaudy Night" [Harcourt Brace, $2.50], just published in America, I am not so sure. It has made an enormous stir in England both as novel and detective story, but it is so distinctly British, so localized, so rooted in the Oxford tradition that it may leave us a little cold and uncomprehending.

If you have been in the habit of reading Mrs. Sayers you will remember that her recurrent heroine, Harriet Vane, was once tried for the murder of her sweetheart. Without Lord Peter Wimsey's faith and inspired detecting she would have been found guilty. But he saved her and in the process fell in love with her and though you suspect Harriet of returning his love, she has never consented to marry him. Now in this long book their love story culminates and they explain themselves to each other while they work together on a singular case.

The mystery begins on "Gaudy Night" at Oxford, which nearly corresponds with reunion festivities at our American universities. "Poison pen" letters and threats begin to come to the faculty and students of a women's college and Harriet, who is an alumna and has returned for the occasion, is drawn into the case. All sorts of unseemly things happen which are described in detail in what to us is an almost unknown language. Initials and Oxford terms abound which may be translated from the contex but which to the mere American add fresh mystery to the involved plot. The problem is a psychological one and it is on a psychological basis that Harriet and Lord Peter solve the mystery. That women go queer when they lead their lives too much with other women forms the basis of discussion. This Harriet Vane does not choose to believe but she fights a discouraging fight through nearly 500 pages.

I predict that you will be immensely interested or immensely bored, and whichever it may be you will emerge from the book with masses of information about English university life, its students, tradition, patois, and customs. Much of this you will find engaging, some of it distinctly tiresome, but you will have to admit, with her fellow countrymen, that Dorothy Sayers is "in a class by herself."

A mystery story that I have long remembered is "The Red House Mystery," by A. A. Milne. It wasn't the variety of story that the fanciful Milne was expected to write, so it was not very widely read. Now it is reprinted by Dutton [$1] and it is all my backward fancy painted it.

It is characteristic of those early and less sensational days in that it contains but one rather gentle murder. It has a nice cast of characters well in the Milne tradition and is thoroughly sound as well as entertaining. It is also short and simple, creating some mental confusion but offering no great deception.

You couldn't spend an evening more pleasantly than in its perusal, and if you have a convalescent friend who dabbles in mystery it's the ideal gift.

Van Loon Translations.

Simon and Schuster announce that arrangements have been completed for a Dutch edition of Hendrik Willem Van Loon's "Ships—And How They Sailed the Seven Seas." In addition Mr. Van Loon's "Man, the Miracle Maker" will be published in Italy. These mark, respectively, the 69th and 70th translations of Mr. Van Loon's work into foreign languages.

BORZOI BOOKS

I will give $50

to the Chicagoan who can best explain the strange situation described below:

Every Monday morning The New York Times prints the results of a nation-wide survey of book sales in leading cities throughout the United States. This week, as always in recent months, Clarence Day's LIFE WITH FATHER was reported on the non-fiction best-seller list of every large city in the country except Chicago! Published on August 1, 1935, a selection of the Book-of-the-Month Club, praised enthusiastically by such a great variety of critics as Heywood Broun, Alexander Woollcott, Isabel Paterson, Carl Van Doren, William Lyon Phelps, Henry S. Canby, and Francis Hackett, the book has achieved an enormous success and a sale probably exceeded only by Anne Lindbergh's "North to the Orient." I have printed 134 thousand copies and have been selling an average even this year of 1,700 copies a week. Moreover it has just been published in London and bids fair to repeat its American success there.

Thus English-speaking people everywhere — except Chicago — adore LIFE WITH FATHER. Can you explain why? How is it that a book that deals so delightfully with family life—a universal and timeless theme, surely!—fails to achieve the same degree of popularity in your city as elsewhere. If you can explain it, write me. I will award a prize of $50, to the best letter (of not more than 500 words) received by me before March 25th from a resident of Chicago.

HITLER'S OFFER OF FRIENDSHIP AGITATES FRANCE

Nation Stands Divided on Nazi Leader's Plea.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 28.—With a Franco-soviet alliance voted by the chamber of deputies—with evident misgivings—but still awaiting ratification by the senate, opinion in this country was thrown into an extreme state of agitation today by a sensational offer of friendship from Reichsfuehrer Hitler. The offer was conveyed in an interview to Bertrand de Jouvenel and published in the Paris Midi.

Opponents of the Franco-soviet pact, who still hope to block ratification by the senate, pounced on the Hitler interview as a supreme argument against what they consider an irrevocable and dangerous commitment.

"This is our last chance," they cried. "If we choose friendship with Russia instead of friendship with Germany it means another war."

Call Offer a Trap.

Admirers of soviet Russia and some conservatives who are congenitally suspicious of Germany retorted:

"Don't pay any attention to what Hitler says. It's a trap."

The more sober citizens also lifted their voices. They asked themselves with real anguish just how far it was safe to believe in Hitler's sincerity. What they do know is that he has been objecting loudly to the Franco-soviet pact.

One passage in Jouvenel's interview with Hitler in which the Nazi leader retracted all the harsh things he said about France in his book "My Battle" is enough by itself to make the interview a diplomatic development of supreme importance.

Here Is Hitler's Offer.

"You will do well seriously to consider my offer of an understanding," Hitler said in the interview. "Never did a reich leader make such proposals or so frequently. I beg of you to take note there are certain decisive moments in the life of nations and today France, if she will, may put an end forever to the German peril which your children, generation after generation, are learning to dread. You have won the opportunity, and if you do not take it yours will be the responsibility before your children. You have before you the German people, nine-tenths of whom have full confidence in their leader, and that leader says to you, 'Let us be friends.'"

Meanwhile the French government is officially supporting the mutual assistance pact with Russia, but displaying an obvious lack of enthusiasm in the process. The military aspect of the alliance is complicated by financial considerations. It has been an open secret for some time that ratification of the treaty will be followed by a substantial credit to Russia to enable the soviet to obtain munitions and other necessities for strengthening defenses.

Point to Russia as Defaulter.

Any such suggestion brings a howl of indignation from the holders of billions of francs of worthless Russian bonds floated in France by the czarist government.

In trying to reassure members of the foreign affairs committee of the chamber today on the matter of a projected credit to Russia Pierre-Etienne Flandin, foreign minister, and Georges Bonnet, commerce minister, were not very clear. While not refusing to demand some kind of settlement from the soviet, they defended the proposed credit—which will be over 500 million dollars—on the ground it is calculated to aid French industry rather than Russia.

No French gold will go to Russia, Flandin said. The Paris government merely will guarantee French exporters payment on their goods up to 80 per cent of their value. This will be done through advances of government funds to exporters at 6 per cent interest. In return for these advances, which will only be repaid when the soviet settles up, French industry will supply Russia with 666 million dollars in goods.

While the chamber committee was discussing the question of credits to Russia, the senate foreign affairs committee started to study the pact. Its chairman, Henry Berenger, had a long conference with Flandin on the subject and the semi-official press predicts the pact will pass through the senate easily and rapidly.

MRS. ELEANOR COIT LUDLAM GETS DIVORCE

Mrs. Eleanor B. Coit Ludlam of Chicago was granted a divorce yesterday at Minden, Nev., from Thomas Russell Ludlam of New York. Cruelty was the ground alleged for the decree, and the court restored to the wife her former name, Eleanor B. Coit.

Born Eleanor Babcock, the daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. Robert Hall Babcock, she became the wife of A. Merrill Coit in 1913. Mr. Coit died in 1930. Mrs. Coit then lived abroad for several years. She was married to Mr. Ludlam in Rome on June 29 of last year. They resided in New York until their separation recently.

Mrs. Coit is the mother of three daughters — Elizabeth, Eleanor, and Cecelia Coit.

Burglars Loot Flat of Author of Lincoln Book

The flats of Mrs. Eleanor Gridley, 5844 Harper avenue, and Mrs. Edith Webster, 5723 Dorchester avenue, were looted by burglars last night. Mrs. Gridley, who is the author of a book on Lincoln entitled "The Journey from a Log Cabin to the White House," reported that two fur coats valued at $350 had been taken from her place. Mrs. Webster said jewelry and dresses valued at $250 had been stolen from her.

SWISS REPULSE GERMAN PROTEST ON BAN OF NAZIS

Berlin Aims to Put Tax on Tourists.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 28.—The German government tonight received Switzerland's reply to the German note protesting against the prohibition of Nazi organizations in Switzerland.

While the text is not yet obtainable, diplomatic circles believe that Switzerland has declined to cancel the order suppressing Nazi units. As a possible result, Germany may impose a 1,000 mark tax [about $400] on German tourists to Switzerland.

The abolition of all Nazi organizations was ordered by the Swiss federal council after the assassination of Wilhelm Gustloff, Nazi organizer, at Davos. Gustloff was slain by David Frankfurter, Jugo-Slav Jewish medical student.

Poland Arrests Nazis.

Polish-German relations also are somewhat strained despite the recent visit to Poland of Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, minister of aviation. This is due to arrests made by Polish police of leaders of the German Nazi party in upper Silesia.

Germans living on the Polish side of Upper Silesia organized a secret Nazi association. The leaders met regularly in the border town of Beutsen where they held secret meetings in a darkened room. The Nazi chieftains were compelled to take an oath of allegiance. Polish officials posing as Nazis were able to gain admittance to the meeting and tipped off police who arrested the Nazi leaders en bloc.

Railway Row Unsettled.

The new incident follows the Polish-German controversy over payments due Poland for railroad services across the Polish corridor. No agreement has been reached yet. As a result railroad service from Germany to East Prussia has been greatly restricted.

MISSION BUILDING WRECKED BY FIRE; FAMILY ESCAPES

Fire caused damage estimated at $15,000 last night as it wrecked a two and one-half story building which extends from 454 West Division street to 1212 Clybourn avenue. The Moody Italian mission occupied the first floor of the building and used part of the second floor as Sunday school rooms. The flames apparently started in these rooms and spread rapidly, forcing Frank Amella, his wife, Marie, and their ten children, who lived in another part of the second floor, to flee to the street. Soon after firemen arrived the roof collapsed, but none was hurt.

Bandit Pair Arrested Shortly After Holdup

Joseph Kuper, 23 years old, 1518 Augusta boulevard, and Frank Cholewinski, 22 years old, 4829 South Winchester avenue, were arrested by the New City police last night a few minutes after they had held up Miss Marie Logas, 4307 South Lincoln street, of $6 near 48th and Paulina streets. Kuper drew a pistol when cornered and attempted to shoot Lieut. John McAvoy, but was overpowered by other policemen before he could fire.

Bribery Charge Hurled in Campaign to Save Hauptmann

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 28.—[Special.]—Gov. Harold G. Hoffman today received a report from Col H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey state police, charging that persons representing themselves as the "governor's aids" offered bribes to troopers assigned to the reopened Lindbergh-Hauptmann investigation. The offers consisted of promises of favor and official preferment should Schwarzkopf be removed in the course of the fight to save Bruno Richard Hauptmann from the electric chair, the report asserts.

The fact that Schwarzkopf's trusted lieutenants promptly informed him of the effort to undermine the police case against the convicted killer of little Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr. was frankly stated in Schwarzkopf's fourth weekly report to Hoffman on the progress being made.

Claim Names Not Given.

When the sensational character of the report was learned, the governor could not immediately be reached for comment. Officials in the statehouse, familiar with the situation, however, insisted that the names of state police members who were approached to betray Schwarzkopf were not given in the letter.

The state police superintendent from the beginning has refused to divulge the contents of any of his reports to Hoffman, insisting that it was the governor's prerogative to make public the letters. This Hoffman has refused to do, although repeatedly indicating his dissatisfaction with the "routine nature" of Schwarzkopf's communications about the investigations.

Critics of the governor have repeatedly charged that the real motive behind his revived interest in the case was a desire to oust Col. Schwarzkopf, for whose job Hoffman is said to have slated Col. Mark O. Kimberling, warden of the prison where Bruno is awaiting execution the week of March 30. In addition the Republican governor would "look with favor," even his advisers admit, on the resignation of Wilentz and Hauck, both Democrats.

In view of this, Schwarzkopf's report may be the opening wedge to a bitter legislative battle over the entire Lindbergh situation next Monday night. The first verbal tilt over Hoffman's stand created a riotous disturbance at the assembly meeting last Monday, and since then the Young bill to continue Schwarzkopf in office has been reported back favorably from committee.

Fisher in New Attack.

Prosecutor Hauck was the subject of a fresh attack launched this afternoon by Hauptmann's chief counsel, Lloyd Fisher of Flemington—an attack known to have the governor's approval.

"If Prosecutor Hauck doesn't take some action against Millard Whited, who a year ago swore he saw Hauptmann near the Lindbergh home although four years ago he signed a statement that he never saw anybody in the vicinity, something must be done to compel Hauck to perform his sworn duty," Fisher declared.

BATTLE ON PAPER WILL CLIMAX WAR GAME TOMORROW

Guard, Reserves Clash in Unique Offensive.

A unique war game in which the entire Illinois National Guard has been participating since last November will be climaxed tomorrow with a theoretical battle against an enemy to be represented by organized reserve units.

The scene of the hypothetical activities will be the 131st Infantry armory, 1546 South Michigan avenue, which will serve as headquarters for both sides. About thirty command posts with all the necessary communication facilities have been set up there.

The battle ground over which the fictional armies will be deployed is an area of about 100 square miles northwest of Chicago. The National Guard will hold a line running through Arlington Heights and the reserve army will hold positions on a Des Plaines line.

Real Test of Strategy.

In contrast with the ordinary war training activities, neither side will know the strength or exact location of the enemy. Not until the "battle" starts at 11 a. m. will staf officers be told of the hpyothetical movements and then only as they are supposed to occur. The game will end at 5:45 p. m.

Col. George C. Marshall, senior instructor of the National Guard, who is in charge of the problem, will transmit information of attacks, counter attacks, artillery fire, etc. He and other instructors of the guard will be umpires.

By studying maps, officers of divisions, brigades, regiments, and battalions will march their men, organize supply services, place bivouacs, locate airplane landing fields, and decide what is necessary to meet the military situations given to them. Decisions will have to be made as rapidly as would be necessitated by actual conditions of warfare.

Problem Studied for Months.

Since last November members of the National Guard throughout the state have been practicing the game, studying the problems of deploying forces in the vicinity of Arlington Heights.

Brig. Gen. Thomas S. Hammond, acting commander of the 33d [Illinois National Guard] division, will head his own forces in the war game, and Col. Philip Fox of the organized reserve, will command the guard's "enemy."

"This war game," said Col. Marshall, "gives the National Guard officers training they are unable to get in any other way. A staf cannot be drilled in teamwork in an armory as can be done with privates, for they must deal with maneuvers that occur only in time of war.

"Only once every two years is the entire division assembled together, and then only for about ten days in summer camp. Every other year the artillery trains alone so we cannot get the teamwork that is necessary to thoroughly train an officer."

THE TRAP IN THE INCITEMENT BILL.

Senate bill 2253 as passed is on the house calendar as No. 203. It was introduced by Senator Tydings at the request of army and navy representatives. Senator La Follette asks that it be reconsidered, saying that the senate imprudently passed a bill striking at the freedom of the press. A proper construction must be put upon the senator's ideas. His conception of freedom of the press is one of great latitude and embraces the freedom to incite.

The bill is of two sections, the first providing a punishment for any one who with the intent to spread disaffection works upon members of the army and navy, advising or soliciting them to disobey the laws and regulations, and who in undertaking this publishes and distributes books, pamphlets, letters, or other writings. The second section provides that any such book or writing or publication may be taken from any house or other place in which it is found, or from any person in whose possession it may be, under a search warant issued under the law to punish acts of interference with foreign relations, the neutrality and foreign commerce of the United States, to punish espionage and better enforce the criminal laws of the United States, and for other purposes.

The main object of the bill was to reach the communists and other agitators who try to foment disloyality and disorders in the army and navy. The armed forces of a country are the favored points of boring in when communists try to subvert government. There is no question of the discipline and loyalty of the American army and navy, but individuals can be tampered with and if they are so foolish as to have their heads turned they will be punished. Justice should not stop there. As Lincoln said: "Must I shoot a simple minded soldier boy who deserts while I must not touch a hair of the wily agitator who induces him to desert?" The original purpose of the bill was innocent of the intent with which it might be used by an unscrupulous government. That intent, however, and not the other purpose must be taken into account.

Section 2 of this bill is loaded with dynamite. Citizens all over the country have had unpleasant experiences with federal agents sent out of Washington to invade their offices and demand all the papers in their files. Every organization which has made itself known as an opponent of Mr. Roosevelt has experienced these visitations. Senator Black's agents have been particularly obnoxious. The purpose of the inquisitions notoriously has been to intimidate opposition, to make open criticisms of the government appear dangerous, and to show individuals that their hostility to the Roosevelt program will expose them to unpleasant consequences. The citizens are given to understand in remarkably plain terms that if they do not watch their conduct they will find themselves in serious trouble. No doubt many timid persons have been affected by these warnings and threats. The stouter hearted have not, but they have had plenty of trouble.

Under the authority of the bill in question search warants could be issued for almost any invasion of private rights a dictatorship would want to make. The possession of almost any sort of controversial writing could be construed as an offense. An American citizen in Germany, a German returning to the land of his birth, is in peril now because he had with him some documents given him by an anti-Nazi living in Austria. The same thing could happen in the United States and almost any critical document could be construed as tending to cause disaffection in the army or navy. Gen. Hagood's references to the Works Progress folly caused him to lose his command, it being regarded as a violation of army discipline for him to discuss a New Deal spending program when in the course of his duty he appeared before a house committee taking up army appropriations. The New Deal is a sacred cow and any one who says anything against it is inciting to disaffection and disloyalty.

The bill is a rip in the American charter of liberties and no federal government which behaves as the one now in power could with any safety be granted such an authority to raid the homes and business places of American citizens. The opposition does not have to prove this. The acts of the federal government prove it.

THE RULERS OF JAPAN.

To the simple occidental mind the most mysterious Asiatic figure is the emperor of Japan. Here is a ruler so sacred and revered that he is virtually untouchable. Where he walks is a holy path. Authority, celestial and earthly, making him supreme, does not keep his public servants from being murdered in the course of their governmental duties by the army officers to whom he is the final word. The western mind cannot make even a patchwork of this.

Four years ago Premier Inukai was slain just as Okada was this week, and in 1930 Premier Hamaguchi was assassinated. Three prime ministers in six years were slain by Japanese in the service of patriotism. Many other public servants have suffered the same fate in this period. The slaughter of this week was on a larger scale than the previous assassinations and indicated a deliberate attempt to destroy the civil government. The military was defeated in the elections and resorted to murder to maintain control.

When the emperor invites a Japanese statesman to organize a government he is in effect offering him to immolation unless he conforms to the military dictates. If the ruler were a figurehead, it might not be so strange that he couldn't protect his people from his army. The emperor is the supreme being and he is not a hermit from public affairs. He is the head of the army as well as of the state. The picture in which he is most often seen shows him on his white horse at the head of his troops. He is a civilized ruler who has been educated in the modern manner, having traveled extensively under tutors while he was crown prince. Devotion to his person is the first rule of Japanese military fidelity and loyalty and the inspiration for the acts of valor associated with the history of the Japanese army. Devotion to him is the excuse given in extenuation of military uprisings against civil government and the assassination of public men intrusted with administration.

Although the mysteries of Asiatic thought and emotions cloud the occidental understanding, the formula of a sacred head of state and a dominant governing class is old and simple. The Merovingian kings of France were put in the highly revered order of demigods toward the end of their dynasty in order that they might be controled and the country governed in fact by the mayors of the palace, who later gave the Carolingian line to France when it became safe to overthrow the enfeebled royal family. The device was to persuade the ruler that he was too exalted to take direct charge of his kingdom and to persuade the people that his withdrawal from worldly affairs was a sign of his divinity.

The mayors of the palace succeeded so well that they made it difficult for themselves to achieve their real purpose. One attempt to put the figurehead aside, prematurely undertaken, ended in a complete failure. Later a Carolingian found the right time and took over, preparing the way for the kingdom of Charlemagne. The device is an old one, but the emperor of Japan, although granted the attributes of divinity, is not merely an effulgence withdrawn from the conduct of public affairs. What the average western mind will find impossible to understand is why this authority is not used to keep the army in its place and protect statesmen from being massacred whenever the army thinks that civil influence is exerted contrary to the welfare of Japan and to the detriment of the emperor's honor. It would seem that there was the power to make a tenure of office that would not have the expectancy of vacancy by assassination.

SENATOR HOLT WANTS HIS.

Senator Rush Holt of West Virginia, the youngster of the Conscript Fathers, who came to senatorial age after he was elected, feels that he is being pushed around by the Works Progress and he knows that he is not the man who will stand for it. Senator Neely, the older senator from West Virginia, has been about more and knows how to git thar fustust, or is it ferstist? Calling Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest!

In these golden days with a silver lining the man who gets there first gits the mostest men. Senator Holt says, in open meeting standing by his seat in the senate, that Senator Neely has made off with all the jobs Harry Hopkins had to give in West Virginia. Senator Neely says he hasn't, but the younger New Dealer persists with documents and lists of names. It's wash day for West Virginia in the senate.

Senator Joe Robinson, the Arkansas elder statesman, whose only wish is to have everything go smoothly, asks the boys not to be so explicit in discussing the benefactions of a good neighbor government. Is it really necessary to talk of patronage and jobs and the pay roll when only the good of the human race is being considered in Washington? Why bring up the pay roll? People will begin to think that there's politics in them gold hills.

Senator Robinson's advice was that of ripened experience, but it could not satisfy Senator Holt. So the airing went on. How can Senator Holt be a good neighbor to WPA when WPA is not a good neighbor to him? WPA is getting to be known as the Worst Pain of All. It has to be pretty bad to be that.

Editorial of the Day

THE NEW LOBBY GROUP.

[Peoria Transcript.]

A powerful new "lobby" has developed in this country during the last few years. It is especially active in Illinois, New York, and other states in which there are large urban centers. This group is composed of professional social workers.

Although this lobby was not powerful enough to prevent the Illinois general assembly from disbanding the state emergency relief commission, it showed great power and tenacity during the contest over the commission.

The social workers' lobby is more formidable than almost any lobby in existence. It does not have much money with which to influence legislation, but it has something just as important. That is direct contact with thousands of voters who are interested in getting something from the government.

Thus, if a legislator offends the social workers' lobby, it would be an easy matter for local social workers to pass the word to their "clients" that the legislator was their enemy and that it would be to their advantage to vote against him and have their friends vote against him.

In Illinois there are more than a quarter million families on the dole. That represents more than a half million votes, and a half million votes will swing almost any election. There are nearly 4,000 families in Peoria county in direct contact with social workers. That represents more than 5,000 votes.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the gibes fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

THE WORLD HAS GROWN so small that no great epochal event can take place anywhere without affecting and disturbing all the countries on the globe. Look at the terrible, the calamitous effect the Japanese revolution is going to have here in the U. S. A.; silk stockings will not only cost more, but maybe if the Japs keep fighting among themselves and stop weaving silk our girls can't get silk stockings at all. Then not a stenographer or lady secretary will appear in the office, not a debutante be seen on the street, not a waitress appear in the restaurant with our ham and eggs. If the girls can't get their silk socks they'll just go into hiding, that's all. What! appear before people without silk stockings on? Never! never! never! Death first!

AND IF THE JAPS are going to employ all their time in fighting each other or picking out some other country to fight as soon as they get things settled among themselves people in America are going to be deprived of the opportunity of buying priceless, two thousand year old Japanese Satsuma, cloissonnés, porcelains, ivory carvings, screens, bronzes, swords and armor. For naturally if the Japs are busy fighting they will have no time to manufacture these things any more. How can anybody sit down and make a two thousand year old bronze vase if he has only an hour off between battles? Why, they couldn't turn out antiques in such a short time even in France and Italy and their mills are geared up to turn out age old masterpieces mighty fast.

OBITUARY.

When Ezra Tuthill died the papers vied
To do him honor in obituary,
Columns of praise were written of his life—
They held him up a shining luminary.

Flowers by the wagonload were brought
To decorate the room in which he lay,
Men of repute from out the business world
Came to his bier their last respects to pay.

A most successful man in every way,
A Captain of the throng—a pioneer
In everything that went for worldly gain
And progress—a leader without peer.

Beneath her heavy veil his widow wanly smiled—

JAZBO OF OLD DUBUQUE.

THE BORAH MANAGERS say that Herbert Hoover in 1920 didn't know whether he was a Republican or a Democrat. Well, at times in the distant past I have often wondered whether Mr. Borah was certain whether he was vegetable, animal, or mineral. I was in doubt about it myself. Politics are queer. You must admit that; they are certainly queer.

"FARLEY KEEPS Hands Off State Delegate Slates."—Headline. I find that hard to believe. I don't believe Jim Farley could keep his hands off of anything from a raging, man-eating royal Bengal tiger to a cyclone. I don't think Jim Farley would hesitate to grab an avalanche by the tail and try and throw it back over the mountain.

Quoth the guys who made the Bible long ago;
Would, oh would they'd teach us where to smite ye judges nowadays
Who set a fine—and let the speeder go!

JAMES EQUITABLE MCNAMARA.

ONE GOOD USE I can make of Feb. 29 is to tell you about Thomas Curtis Clark's new book of poems, "Home Roads and Far Horizons." I don't have to tell you about Thomas Curtis Clark's poems; the Line's been publishing them for years and has never published enough of them to suit its readers. No one writes better of quiet things and gentle folk. He has a simple, unshakable belief in the beauty of earth and the goodness of man that has been a light to thousands of people for years. Some one once wrote me that Thomas Curtis Clark never failed to see the forest for the trees. I liked that and I thought it was true. There are more than a hundred of his best poems in "Home Roads and Far Horizons," and, remembering how much you have liked every one we have printed, it is difficult to choose one that you liked best. But of course you will remember this lovely one:

How far is it to Avalon,
That shining place of dreams
Where care and sorrow trouble not,
Where morning casts its beams
Forever down on friendly lands,
Where children play in happy bands?

So far it seems to those who toil
In brutal haunts of greed;
So far to those who strive and sweat
In poverty and need:
And yet their eyes oft look upon
The shining heights of Avalon.

For faith can build a road that leads
From penury and night,
And hope can glimpse the palaces
Of fairy realms of light,
And love can find—fate cannot bar!—
Where Avalon and beauty are.

THE SONG WRITERS are having a dreadful time down in Washington seeking protection against the radio. They say the radio puts their songs on the air and in two weeks people are tired of them. What to do? I've got an answer for the song writers; write songs that people won't get tired of in two weeks. R. H. L.

WINTERTIME PAINS.

COLD weather, with its train of exposure and wet feet, always breeds a crop of infections. Perhaps bacteria unaccustomed to snow and sleet seek shelter in the warm noses and throats of human beings. At any rate inclement weather conditions outside, and hot, dry, stuffy air indoors mean a drop in physical resistance for most of us. Dormant bacteria may grow and many cases of muscular pain—erroneously called rheumatism—may result.

Those who are so unfortunate as to suffer from lumbago or sciatica are familiar with the excruciating pain that can exist in the lower back region. However, trouble at the base of the spine may not be due to either of these conditions. There may be arthritis, disease of the sacroiliac joint, or growths in the lower abdomen or the rectum. Sometimes a bad posture is responsible for severe disability.

The pain of lumbago may come suddenly and generally follows exposure or overstrain. Sometimes it will appear as the patient is stooping over; a sharp, stabbing, crampike pain that will cause him to cry out and prevent his resuming an erect position. The attack may last for days or even weeks.

Lumbago is also called muscular rheumatism, or fibrositis, and is similar to wry neck that may come on after a slight cold or sleeping in a draft. This "stiff neck" situation, however, is far less painful. By most authors the cause of lumbago is laid to the existence of some local diseased area which ordinarily will not produce symptoms until the patient has dropped in resistance, permitting the absorption of pus to take place.

What can be done? Certain authorities believe that vigorous massage or quick movement of the involved muscles, regardless of the shrieks of the patient, will result in a speedy cure. Few patients, however, are willing to accept this suggestion. Our chief reliance, therefore, is upon rest, heat, and adequate elimination. It may be necessary to use some hypnotic drug to provide reasonable comfort. Heat will dilate the blood vessels and increase the circulation and thus aid in carrying away toxins. The injection of absolute alcohol has been advocated, and the use of potassium iodide has been attended with success at the hands of many physicians. Most patients do well in bed at home. If the infection does not yield to ordinary routine treatment physical therapy may be required. This includes radiant heat, ultraviolet, and gentle massage.

Sciatica, on the other hand, is a true neuralgia [pain in the nerve], particularly affecting the sciatic nerve which runs down the back of the leg. It is far more common in men than in women and has much the same origin as lumbago. A nerve depot [ganglion] becomes inflamed and pain may be felt along the entire course of the nerve. It is described as "gnawing or burning" and usually begins in the back, sometimes in the hip joint, or on the posterior surface of the thigh. It may persist for weeks or even months and often incapacitates the victim.

In sciatica a focus of infection should be sought and removed if found. After even a minor surgical operation—such as the extraction of an infected tooth—the symptoms will probably be aggravated for the first week or two inasmuch as drainage of the area is succeeded by the liberation of considerable poisonous material.

It was formerly thought that if we could only stretch the nerve this would relieve the situation. This plan has now been discarded and the treatment is similar to that employed for lumbago, namely, elimination, plus rest and as much comfort as can be afforded by heat.

We must not forget the frequency with which infections of the lower bowel are followed by acute attacks of lumbago or sciatica. A culture of the stools may show virulent streptococci and both the diet and the colon will then require attention.

No one should disregard an aching back or thigh, particularly if the pain continues for several days or accompanies movement.

EXPOSING CHILDREN.

Mrs. S. writes: In what words can we describe mothers who are so utterly ignorant and thoughtless of other people's children that they allow them to come in and play with children confined to their homes with fever, sore throat or cough? Three times this winter I have found my son in a home with a sick child. The mothers thought nothing of allowing my boy to handle the toys of the sick children.

I am not narrowminded and I realize that each child is as precious to his parents as mine is to me. Common sense tells me not to follow a plan that might injure a child's health.

Instead of handing out literature to foreign and underprivileged people it would be a great help indeed to teach simple rules of hygiene to all mothers.

REPLY.

Every child should be trained early in life to stay away from those who are ill. Supervise your child's activities and help him to learn good hygienic principles. He will thus protect himself.

HEARTBURN.

S. C. writes: What is heartburn?

REPLY.

The word describes the pain which is felt behind the breastbone and over the stomach area. It usually means that too much hydrochloric acid is present in the gastric juice. Occasionally a severe form is confused with the pain of angina or coronary disease. The condition generally comes on two or three hours after eating and is often accompanied by the return of sour tasting fluid to the mouth.

Water brash may be associated with heartburn. This is characterized by a profuse flow of saliva and the expectoration of clear fluid which appears to come from the stomach but which probably originates in the esophagus.

THUMB HURTS.

B. B. writes: I have occasionally had very severe pains in my right thumb. Although it lasts only a short time, it swells badly and is very sore. What does this indicate?

REPLY.

From Across the Sea

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TIENTSIN, China.—Japanese interests have just opened an office here of an organization known as "Ko-chu Kungs-su" which apparently is chartered to do everything from sheep raising in Mongolia to the construction and operation of railways anywhere in Asia. An exact translation of the title of the company is difficult, but it is supposed to convey the meaning of Japan-Manchukuo-China economic "bloc."

The initial capital is 10,000,000 yen [about $3,000,000], but the regulations permit an expansion to 50 or 100 million yen as circumstances may require. The head office for the present will be in Dairen with the chief branch here and another in Tokio. Other offices are shortly to be opened in Peiping, Nanking, Shanghai, and Hongkong.

According to reports here the initial capital was supplied equally by the government controled and operated South Manchurian railway, the Manchukuo government and a combination of financiers representing the "big four" of Japanese banking, business, industrialism, and shipping—the Mitsuis, Mitsubishis, Sumitomos, and Yasudas. The chairman is S. Sogo, former director of the South Manchuria railway.

As the railway served as the spearhead of imperial Japanese enterprise, which brought China's four northeastern provinces within the sphere of the Japanese empire, so do the Japanese hope today that Ko-chu Kungs-su will serve a similar purpose with respect to China's five northern provinces, Hopei, Shantung, Shansi, Chahar, and Suiyuan, with inner Mongolia thrown in for good measure.

Modeled somewhat along the lines of the old British East India company which exercised potent influence in bringing India, Burma, and the Straits Settlements into the British empire, the Japanese entertain similar ambitions with respect to their new enterprise. The Asahi Shimbun [Tokio] in reporting the formation of the company said that it was inspired by the army and navy to "guide" the people in connection with Japan's exploitation of the resources of North China.

The Japanese will pay much attention to railway development and mining. Two railway lines will be constructed immediately, one connecting the rich iron and coal and, possibly, oil resources of Shansi province with the coast at Tientsin. The other line which the Japanese are anxious to complete is an extension of the railway running east and west through Shantung province to northern Honan province, where further coal and mineral resources await exploitation.

There is considerable mystery about the supposed oil resources of Shansi province, as the Standard Oil company drilled several experimental wells in that province about a quarter of a century ago, but was unsuccessful in finding paying quantities. Recently the Chinese have been doing some drilling on their own which has led to rumors of important finds. Now it is said that the Japanese are looking toward Shansi and other areas still further west which might solve the all-important problem of fuel supplies for the imperial navy.

The Keishin Nichi-Nichi Shimbun, leading Japanese paper at Tientsin, listed the following as Japan's economic program in North China:

1. Improvement of agricultural products, particularly cotton, under Japanese technical guidance with a view to profitable exchange of Chinese agricultural products for Japanese manufactured articles.

2. Exploitation of mines in North China with Japanese technical and financial aid.

3. Development of communications and transportation systems in North China with Japanese assistance—capital and technical advice.

4. Establishment of organs for the promotion of Sino-Japanese trade to provide closer contact between the traders of the two countries.

5. Revision of China's customs tarif downward and the restoration of the system which prevailed prior to 1929 when China's tarif was controled by foreign powers.

There is deep international significance in the Japanese scheme to convert North China into a vast cotton plantation because the Japanese desire to become independent of supplies from the United States. They fear increased prices which might make it difficult for the Osaka mills, even with their great labor differential, to compete with British Manchester. But beyond all else they fear a restriction of American supplies in the event of war in or about the Pacific.

NEEDS REPAIRS.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—[Friend of the People.]—I wonder if something could be done about the building north of my property which is leaning on my house. No notice has been taken of orders to have the building repaired. This I consider detrimental to my home. We have had to repair quite extensively owing to the building leaning over and on our property. H. D.

This is a three story building, brick on first and frame on second and third floors. Building is partly occupied. Our inspector reports building is structurally safe at this time, but front and rear stairs are in need of repairs. Owner has been notified to repair and put front and rear stairs in safe condition, and if this notice is not complied with we will proceed as the law directs.

C., and he will be assisted to make his application for a new certificate of citizenship. FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT, INSTRUCTIVE.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—May I express my gratitude and appreciation for the very wonderful dental chart and story by John A. Menaugh in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE of Sunday, Feb. 23?

It is the best piece of dental educational material that has ever been publicized.

As a rural public health nurse, I wish some means could be furnished to place in our 150 rural schools a copy of this chart. I have already ordered a dozen issues of THE TRIBUNE of that date, but these will not go very far in covering the great need for just such information in the rural schools.

HARRIET FULMER, R. N.,
Supervisor, Rural Public Health Nursing Service.

A GRATEFUL DENTIST.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—I wish to take this opportunity to compliment you on the dental illustrations and written information in your graphic section of last SUNDAY'S TRIBUNE. Several of my patients have referred to this educational work and have been reminded to come in for a checkup on their teeth. I hope you keep up this good work for the good of human health.

ANOTHER OPPONENT OF GROUP INSURANCE.

Chicago, Feb. 26.—The article in this column captioned "Group Insurance" on Feb. 25, signed by "One of the Sufferers," presents the sentiments of many with whom I have come in contact in the course of my business of selling insurance.

I honestly believe that group insurance and the sale of any intangibles, such as stocks, bonds, shares or memberships, by any employer to his employés should be prohibited by law.

If the definition of a racket which in effect is the compelling of a person to part with his money through intimidation or while under duress is correct, then I believe group insurance as sold to many people rightfully can be called a racket.

Furthermore, most group insurance policies are a contract between company and employer, the terms of which briefly stated are that both employer and employé contribute to the paying of the premiums, but only the employer and not the employés receives the dividends. And who ever heard of any employer sharing these dividends with the employés?

It is very true that it gives the person who ordinarily would be rejected by an insurance company a chance to procure a life insurance policy, but it is equally true that it has the effect of stopping others from getting insurance at a younger age and smaller premium, and building up a small reserve.

LIVE AND LET LIVE.

ANTI-COUGHLIN.

Chicago, Feb. 26.—I am a Catholic, but not ashamed of Congressman O'Connor or proud of Father Coughlin. O'Connor may have been disrespectful, but his anger was justifiable.

Father Coughlin may speak as a citizen; nevertheless, he was ordained to save souls, not to meddle in politics. When he first came on the air his religious sermons were beautiful and inspiring and made one forget the sordid things of life. Now the sweetness has turned to bitterness. Indulging in personalities certainly is not Christian charity.

Any parish priest, even though not possessed of the gift of gab, who is sincerely ministering to the needs of his parishioners, is doing more for the Catholic church and the glory of God than ten Father Coughlins. LAYMAN.

MUD.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—THE TRIBUNE has been shooting mud and everything, using a Big Bertha, at the administration ever since it went into power, and now because Farley accused Hoover of being confused in his own mind old limber brained Orr puts a big squirt gun in Farley's hands and accuses him of being the mud slinger. "Consistency, thou art a jewel." On top of that, and to climax the spectacle, one of your heavy brained editors makes the humorous statement that the only way to put a halt on a runaway stock market is to elect a Republican next November. C. F. D.

CIVIL SERVICE.

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 24.—In a recent issue of THE TRIBUNE you carried a news dispatch from Washington, D. C., in which President Roosevelt is quoted as favoring legislation placing all postmasterships under civil service rules. Although this may make admirable reading to the gullible public, it will only remind the thousands of men and women with civil service status in this nation, who have been waiting for years to secure government positions, rightfully theirs by the merit system, of the shabby treatment given the civil service principle by President Roosevelt.

The President states the reason civil service rolls are not used in staffing his many bureaus and agencies is the fact that it is difficult to draw up a civil service roll on short notice for temporary work. However, the decennial census requires a temporary staf and abides by civil service rules in selecting it. This example is not followed by the so-called New Deal. Frank Kent, able Baltimore Sun commentator, estimates that of the 200,000 government employés added since March 4, 1933, only 10 per cent were appointed from civil service rolls.

The almost complete ignoring of civil service procedure by the present administration is the worst blow the cause of efficient government has suffered in decades. It is regrettable that the President does not follow the lead of a great Democratic President from his own state of New York, Grover Cleveland, in the matter of civil service.

It is amusing to see such an outburst in favor of civil service at the White House in a campaign year, after the President has cast aside any interest in civil service for three long years.

However, every one in the country who has a civil service rating still has the right to vote as well as their families and friends. They may be able to bring home to the President and the many weak-kneed legislators in congress the fact that they believe in the civil service by their one and only weapon—their votes!

COIN HARVEY'S SCHOOL.

Algona, Ia., Feb. 25.—Your interesting editorial entitled "Coin Harvey's School" failed to mention the book in reply, "Coin at School in Finance," which broke the spell of Harvey's book and contributed materially to the election of McKinley.

"Coin at School in Finance," the style and illustrations of which followed the Harvey idea, was written by George E. Roberts, then editor of the Fort Dodge [Ia.] Messenger. In recognition of Mr. Roberts' notable service in the campaign, President McKinley made him director of the mint, which position he filled for some years. On retirement he served for a time as president of a Chicago bank, then became associated with the National City bank, New York City.

For many years Mr. Roberts has served as the bank's economic adviser and has edited, and still edits, the bank's monthly letter on economics, which is one of the most valuable economic publications of the day, admired by many thousands of readers for its clear and readable exposition of economic problems. Mr. Roberts also served as one of the bank's vice presidents till retirement three or four years ago.

Editor, The Advance, Algona, Ia.

THE REPUBLICANS HERE LEARNED THEIR LESSON.

Valparaiso, Ind., Feb. 24.—In today's editorial, "'Another Boom,'" in which fear of a runaway stock market appears, the statement is made that "the country's best, and, indeed, its only hope of avoiding another crash is to elect a Republican President and a Republican house of representatives next autumn."

Immediately after the last Republican election a runaway market put on extra steam until it blew up. Therefore, I am unable to see how the election of Republicans will have anything to do with halting a runaway stock market. My humble prediction is that a much higher market will get under way after the coming election regardless of which political party gets into power.

SCOTTI, BARITONE KING OF OPERA, DIES IN POVERTY

Only 4 Mourners Follow His Body to Grave.

NAPLES, Italy, Feb. 28.—(AP)—Four mourners only followed to the grave today the body of Antonio Scotti, king of operatic baritones, who sang for 33 successive seasons at the Metropolitan opera in New York and died here in poverty.

Scotti, a bachelor, died of arteriosclerosis in an international hospital Wednesday, but the fact became known only today. He was 70 years old.

Without a family, Scotti had spent recent months almost in isolation. Italian newspapers were unaware of his death. There was only a paid obituary notice inserted by friends in the Mattino of Naples.

Notice Praises Scotti.

It said Scotti "in his glorious lyrical career held high the prestige of Italian art on the stages of the world."

Friends asserted the one time opera star had been ill for a decade, although he retired only three years ago. He had been living on funds supplied each month by the Music Lovers' Foundation, Inc., of New York, they said. They explained his poverty by saying he spent his money on attempted cures.

CAREER OF FORTY-THREE YEARS.

Antonio Scotti, close friend of Enrico Caruso, was unique in years of stardom in opera. He received ovation for 43 years in every corner of the globe where grand opera is sung.

He was in his 24th year when he made his debut at the old Royal Opera at Malta, singing in Aïda. Previous to that time he had been intended for the priesthood by his parents. He was born Jan. 25, 1866, in Naples, and spent his early life there. His singing in a Naples church attracted interest to his voice.

In 1899 he was engaged by the Metropolitan Opera company and came to New York. American opera lovers were devoted to him. On his 25th anniversary with the Metropolitan, in 1924, the audience stood and pelted him with roses for twelve solid minutes.

Great figures of the music world and the public which loved him paid a touching tribute to Scotti in his farewell performance at the Metropolitan Jan. 21, 1933. He sang his favorite rôle, that of the sinister Chim-Fen, the opium den proprietor in "L'Oracolo."

"I am an old man now," Scotti said shortly before his farewell. He was 67. "I am very sorry to retire—the stage, it is my life—but I want to retire in time. I want to give young people a chance."

Asked if he would take up teaching, he replied: "No, I am too severe. I have heard too many great singers."

Old Guard Thinned.

Scotti's death thins to a scattered few the old guard of the Metropolitan opera—the artists who "sold" grand opera to the American public. Caruso is long dead; Marcella Sembrich, who died in New York last year, made her debut with Scotti at the "Met" in 1899. Geraldine Farrar, long ago retired from the opera stage and is living a rural life in Connecticut.

Giulio Gatti-Casazza, general manager of the Metropolitan for so many years, retired last year and went back to Italy. Herbert Witherspoon, former basso at the "Met," succeeded Gatti-Casazza, and proclaimed a policy of accentuating "The American aspects of opera." Witherspoon did not live to carry out his program. He died of a heart attack on May 20, 1935.

Another opera singer, Edward Johnson, took Witherspoon's place. He, too, wanted to make some changes. His oft-announced intention is to "give opera to the masses."

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: He Wants to Be Alone

ARTHUR BYAS, EVANGELICAL PASTOR, DEAD

The Rev. Arthur J. Byas, pastor of the Second Evangelical church and superintendent of the Evangelical Deaconness hospital for the last two years, died in the hospital on Thursday after an illness of a month. The Rev. Mr. Byas lived at 1908 Sedgwick street. He was in his 58th year.

Born in South Shields, England, the Rev. Mr. Byas came to Chicago while a young man. He studied in the Evangelical seminary in Naperville and was ordained to the ministry 31 years ago. He held pastorates in Prairie View and Freeport, Ill., and in the First Evangelical church, 10323 Ewing avenue, Chicago. From 1927 to 1931 he was district superintendent of the Evangelical church for the Chicago area and of the Naperville district from 1931 to 1934.

The Rev. Mr. Byas is survived by his widow, Clara; two sons, and seven daughters. Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon in the First Evangelical church. Bishop George E. Epp of Naperville will officiate. Burial will be in Mount Greenwood cemetery.

BIGGEST COUNTY PRISONER DIES OF HEART AILMENT

William Coleman, 56 years old, whose weight of 372 pounds made him the largest prisoner ever held in the county jail, died of heart disease last evening on the double hospital cot provided for him at the jail.

Coleman was sentenced last Nov. 27 to serve a year for obtaining money under false pretenses, after he pleaded guilty to cashing $2,800 worth of bogus checks at the Hotel Sherman. Judge Cornelius Harrington first sentenced him to the Bridewell, but there wasn't a door there through which he could pass. Warden Frank Sain found Coleman too big for the county jail's cell doors and provided a special room for him off the jail hospital.

Coleman was arrested in Washington, D. C., and easily identified. At his trial he called himself "a large operator." His body was taken to the county morgue.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Listeners seldom have a chance to find out how the big shots of radio really feel about their work. Most of them are guarded in their statements to newspaper men. Here, however, is a letter Fred Allen wrote to an acquaintance in which he tells all. And all is not sweetness and light since the letter was not intended for publication. We do, however, have Allen's permission to use it. However you may feel about Mr. Allen when you finish, you will credit him with a degree of candor and frankness. The letter:

"It is impossible to write a standard show that will hold up week in and week out. . . . When you develop someone on a radio show you cannot afford to keep them. As soon as they are known other offers come and they leave, quite naturally.

"The Russian character we had is now in Hollywood making around $1,000 a week. A dialectician I had now has a good political job in Albany and naturally his dignity cannot be lowered to the point where he can be heard on a radio program. The boy who has been writing with me is leaving to start a year's contract in Hollywood.

"With an hour radio show you have to limit the salaries. The people contribute nothing but a distinctive reading. The script has to be written, strengthened and perfected and radio actors seldom offer a suggestion or help in any way. Once you have built them up they can get plenty of offers and there are few around here to replace them.

"Jack Benny has the best formula in radio, but there is a great difference between assembling 11 minutes of talk—in four sections—and concocting a weekly hour of fun. Our dialog runs 40 pages weekly. Jack gets more money for his program than our entire outfit gets. He can joke about Jello. You can't inject much comedy into the commercial talks when the sponsor is selling a laxative.

"I could do a swell half hour but if one is to last in radio the thing is never to get too big. The bigger they are the sooner they disappear. Where are all the big radio names of the last four years? The secret of working steadily in radio is to please the men you are working for and to pray that the product will sell.

"The 'fans' raved about Penner, Pearl, and all the others, but the fans can't keep them on the air. Many of the most popular shows do not sell the sponsor's products and big business men aren't in radio to make a name for Kate Smith.

"If listeners knew only one-half of all the things a comedian has to contend with they would be more inclined to light candles so that he might retain his sanity instead of writing letters about conditions which the comedians cannot remedy and which all the letters will never fix. Shows are dominated by clients and advertising agencies, and performers have become rich by doing what they are told.

"Well, to hell with it. I have my headaches and I hope you haven't any but 'Town Hall.' You can always tune out but the pains I get are here to stay. FRED ALLEN."

MARY E. HUGHES' $100,000 WILL IS FILED IN COURT

The will of Mary Elizabeth Hughes, 87 years old, who died last Dec. 15, was admitted to probate yesterday and her attorney, Ednyfed H. Williams, was appointed administrator. Mrs. Hughes was the widow of Gen. Alexander Hughes, utilities magnate, once attorney general of the Dakota territory. Under the will her $100,000 estate will go to her son, E. A. Hughes, retired Chicago utilities executive.

Another son, Frank, of Glendive, Mont., filed notice in the Miami, Fla., Probate court last December that he would contest the will on the ground that Mrs. Hughes was not sane in 1930 when the will was executed. Mrs. Hughes maintained a winter residence in Miami.

The will of Solomon Wedeles, 71 years old, retired grain broker who died last Dec. 1, was also admitted to probate. The will disposes of a $58,300 estate to cousins and friends.

The $37,000 estate of Edward Hertzberg, bookbinder, who died on Jan. 1, is to be divided among five persons, including his son and daughter, according to the terms of his will which was filed for probate.

FLOOD HITS OHIO VILLAGE AS ICE BREAKS; CALL AID

Swollen River Sweeps on Toledo; Fears Grow.

Toledo, O., Feb. 28.—[Special.]—The huge ice gorge in the Maumee river broke at Independence dam at Grand Rapids, O., twenty miles upstream from here, at 8:30 o'clock tonight. Flood waters and huge cakes of ice swept through the streets of the village, and by 9 p. m. there was four feet of water in Main street, one house had toppled into the river and others were in danger of collapsing.

Frantic calls for help were sent to nearby cities and 150 members of the CCC unit at Bowling Green were rushed to the village in automobiles and trucks.

The Toledo fire department was asked to send rescue equipment at once. The crest of the flood was expected to reach Toledo by early morning.

Maumee Bay Still Gorged.

The breaking of the gorge at Grand Rapids brought nearer to Toledo the threats of a flood which have caused concern here since the ice broke up earlier in the day at Damascus bridge, near Napoleon, 14 miles upstream from Grand Rapids.

With the torrent rushing on Toledo, and with Maumee bay still gorged with ice, so that the rising waters here could not be carried away, the menace in Toledo is becoming serious.

Extra guards were stationed on the banks of the raging stream and at all bridges while anxious residents watched hopefully for any sign that the jam in the bay was preparing to move out. At 3 p. m. the river was above the tops of docks. River men feared it would go considerably higher and cause much damage.

Bridge Saved by Breakup.

The breakup at the bridge near Napoleon saved the structure from being swept away and came as planes were preparing to bomb the jam to relieve pressure. Sandbag reinforcements had been placed about Independence dam at Grand Rapids, already weakened by the weight of the ice, and it, too, was believed saved by the breakup.

Pittsburgh Flood Subsiding.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 28.—(AP)—After disgorging ice along miles of lowlands, the turbulent Allegheny river began falling late today and churned its waters into the Ohio toward the neighboring states of West Virginia and Ohio.

The flood reached its crest in Pittsburgh within a fraction of the highest level recorded here in nine years, submerged river front streets, and forced men and women to use rowboats to leave their marooned houses.

Mountaineers Abandon Homes.

Wallace, Idaho, Feb. 28.—[Special.]—Many mountaineer dwellers abandoned their homes today to escape the menace of crashing snowslides, that have taken a toll of sixteen lives in the west this winter.

Even as they fled the rumble of devastating avalanches continued to echo through the Coeur d'Alene mountains, where two major slides occurred in the last two days. Three persons were killed when a slide crushed a railroad coach Wednesday.

TRAPPED BY ICE 3 DAYS; ESCAPES DEATH IN RIVER

Cottage Caretaker Saved After Crawl Over Floes.

Otto Studer, 55 years old, was rescued late yesterday after he crawled over 600 feet of piled up ice in the Kankakee river from a group of summer cottages ten miles southwest of Joliet, where he had been marooned since last Wednesday.

Chief of Police Nicholas J. Fornango of Joliet led a rescue party which maneuvered a boat through a portion of the three mile ice gorge. They picked up Studer exhausted from his perilous journey. He was taken to the home of Mrs. George Naal, near by, and a Joliet physician started there to give him medical attention.

Studer, who is caretaker of the cottages, said the rising water drove him to a garage near Chief Fornango's cottage early in the week. The water went higher and since Wednesday, he said, he lived on a table with the icy river only a few inches below its top.

He tore off rafters from the ceiling and built a fire on the table, Studer said, but the smoke became so thick he had to put the fire out. Yesterday when he heard the shouts of rescuers the trapped man made a break for safety.

He climbed out of the window of the garage, and started over the ice, using a hand sickle to catch hold of the blocks. Several times he fell into the water, he said, but he finally managed to crawl back on the ice chunks and to complete his trip.

Town Alarmed by Plight.

Residents of Lorenzo, the nearest town to the group of summer cottages, had been concerned about Studer's fate since Wednesday, when they saw the water rising to the eaves of some of the cottages. They could not launch a boat because of the ice jam, which extends from a highway bridge across the river at the Will-Grundy county line to the cottages.

Several airplanes flew over the desolate scene yesterday, and Nels Mundell, manager of the Joliet airport, dropped a package of food for Studer. It missed its mark, and fell into the water. Later Mundell landed his plane in a muddy farm land near the cottages, but he was unable to approach the garage where Studer was waiting, cold and hungry.

The caretaker said his food supply ran out Wednesday, and for two days he had neither food nor drinking water.

PARENTS WIN $400 FOR OPERATION BY MISTAKE ON BABY

New York, Feb. 28.—(AP)—Parents of 2 year old Robert Lyman will receive $400 for the "mistake" circumcision of the child at Mount Morris Park sanitorium.

Supreme Court Justice Bernard L. Shientag approved an agreement on that amount today by parties to a $25,000 damage suit brought by the child's Roman Catholic parents.

Mrs. Alfred Lyman, the mother, said the operation was performed a week after birth in February, 1934, when hospital authorities believed him the son of a Jewish patient.

STOLEN CHECKS CASHED.

A man who stole a check book from the J. F. Butler real estate office at 22 South Pulaski road on Dec. 30 has since cashed 12 of the checks for a total of about $100, Butler reported to the police yesterday.

RELIEF FAMILIES' MARCH BUDGETS TO BE CUT 14 PCT.

IERC Can't Trim Salaries to Cushion Blow.

A cut of about 14 per cent in the budgets of families on relief in Illinois will be made in March, it was indicated yesterday when the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, allocating $5,293,122 for the month's needs, admitted that no more than $4,583,000 in state funds is in sight to meet these expenditures.

This sum will be prorated among county relief committees, the relief commission indicated, and they will be left to put the necessary individual reductions into effect as they see fit.

Salaries Can't Be Cut.

The $710,000 deficit will all come out of the living expenses of the 168,425 families on full relief and the 22,180 families whose wages from the Works Progress administration are supplemented by IERC funds. Leo M. Lyons, executive secretary of the IERC, assistant commission member that it would be "impracticable" to cut down salaries of administrative employes.

Overhead, including $539,769 for administrative "salaries," will thus amount to $1,132,891, against $538,000 in February, when $5,839,833 was spent. On the basis of $4,600,000, an outside total, the March expenditure overhead will be 14.8 per cent, against 7.14 per cent in February.

Give $42,000 for Lost.

Commissioners yesterday decided there would be no use and delving further into the mystery of 42,000 cases "lost" when that many relief clients were certified to for WPA jobs but never assigned to projects. A Washington order last week set the state's WPA quota at 200,000, and that figure has been nearly reached.

The IERC is carrying a load of 80,000 more families than the peak load as estimated in December by federal "experts," and IERC Chairman John C. Martin admitted he saw no hope for early improvement in that situation, saying: "That will be our problem from here on out."

COURT IS ASKED TO RECONSIDER TVA DECISION

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—(AP)—The Supreme court was asked today by a group of preferred stockholders of the Alabama Power company to reconsider its recent decision that the Tennessee valley authority has the right to dispose of power generated at Wilson dam in Alabama.

Reconsideration of decisions often is requested and almost invariably denied.

The petition by Forney F. Johnston, counsel for the stockholders, contended that "the nonfederal and illegal uses of the property" should be considered and the action should not be dismissed "under circumstances which so gravely burden and impair the right of the petitioners to free their investment from overt acts under a program that is palpably violative of the functions of the federal government."

STOLEN PRISON RAZOR FOUND IN STATEVILLE CELL

Guards in the Stateville penitentiary yesterday found a straight razor secreted in a mattress in one of the cells in cell house F, Warden Joseph E. Ragen announced. The razor was similar to the weapon with which James Day slashed Richard Loeb to death in the prison last Jan. 28.

Thomas McCarthy, the convict in whose mattress the razor was found was placed in solitary confinement, but his cellmate, whose name was not revealed, was not punished. McCarthy has served nine years of a sentence of ten years to life for robbery with a gun, imposed in Cook county.

The warden said that the razor found yesterday was one that was reported stolen from a prison barber about two years ago. There are 11 other razors, stolen in the last ten years, which still are unaccounted for, it was learned. A tip from one of the convicts led to the discovery of the hidden weapon, Warden Ragen said.

ARTHUR LOEW'S WIFE ON WAY TO RENO FOR SUIT

Mrs. Barbara Smith Loew, 24 years old, former Follies girl, was en route yesterday to Reno, Nev., where she will establish residence to file suit for divorce against Arthur M. Loew of Glen Cove, N. Y., vice president of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Picture company. Attorney Sidney R. Korshak, a friend of Mrs. Loew, said that she left Chicago Thursday night after coming here from New York. She will charge cruelty in her divorce action and will receive a $100,000 settlement from Loew, Korshak said he was told. Loew is a son of the late Marcus Loew, theatrical magnate. He was formerly the husband of Mildred Zukor Loew, daughter of Adolph Zukor, motion picture producer. She divorced him in 1930. The present Mrs. Loew divorced Oscar Levant, a pianist, in 1932 and married Loew the same year.

Chicago Hospital Gets Operation for Texas Boy

Fort Worth, Tex., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Fred Cornell, 9, went to a hospital today for a tonsil operation that his mother offered to finance through sale of her body for laboratory experiments after death. The operation was arranged through a Chicago hospital to which the mother, Mrs. Jennie Cornell, WPA worker, made her offer. The institution, however, declined to accept the offer.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

Signs of Spring.

February 28, 1936.

THE warm days of the last week brought several evidences of nearing spring and the boys on the experimental farms were easily impressed by these signs.

They mean the end of a hard winter which has seen the men freezing their fingers, toes, and ears; spending a lot of time trying to thaw water pipes, tractor engines, and automobile motors; skidding around the farms trying to do all the chores; expending extra efforts in order to take care of the farm animals during the extreme cold weather, and staying close to their firesides on cold winter evenings.

One of the boys on the Wheaton farm saw a flock of gild geese going north the other day for the first "spring tip." John Rawlings noticed that the four raccoons in the pens behind his house ended their winter "rest period" and had come out of their dark "cells," and when we were on the Yorkville farm the other day we noticed that the squirrels were having a gay time running through the woods in their search for food.

Some of the boys have been finding the exact opposite of "signs of spring" on the Wheaton farm during the week. In collecting saw logs in various parts of the farm they found at least two dozen dead rabbits. The cottontails had gone into their burrows during the extreme cold weather and had either been snowed under and frozen to death or had died from starvation.

Rawlings had to turn circus performer recently in order to rescue a turkey. The bird had flown high up into a tree near the sheep barn to roost. It probably had a good nap during the night, but evidently when it attempted to get down to the ground the next morning one of its feet became entangled in the branches of the tree.

It was hanging head down 30 feet from the ground, flapping its wings and making a general hullabaloo when Rawlings noticed it about daybreak. He used a ladder to get part way up the tree, but had to climb the rest of the way to make the rescue. When the bird was released it flew to a safe landing on the ground, apparently none the worse for its "hanging."

Dick and Roany, a team of draft horses which has been on the Yorkville farm for 17 years, have proved that they know their way around the place by this time. Russell Johnson, who lives on the north side of Fox river, has been driving Dick and Roany back and forth across the river every day going to and from work.

One day this week, however, he decided to leave the team at home and drive his car to Louis Thurow's house. He got stuck about a half mile from home, and went back home and hitched Dick and Roany to a wagon to pull him out. After the team had done its work there was no one to drive it because Johnson had to manage his automobile.

He hitched his car to the wagon, then let the team pull the wagon and the car. Dick and Roany decided that they needed no one to tell them where to go, so they went straight to their old haunts behind Louis' house—where they had been driven all winter.

SYNOPSIS.

Inspector Sandy Ross of the department of justice and Special Agent Buck Wasey motor from Reno to Vinton City in search of information on Sociable Joe Willis, suspected of assisting in armored car robberies. Sociable Joe is warned by ex-Marshal Titters, at whose home the federal men have called. Sociable Joe admits having wanted money, which he says he won gambling, and which he turned over to Titters to return to the authorities. Sandy and Ross start on their way back to Reno. On a dangerous road a car crashes into theirs, driven by a girl.

INSTALMENT VI.

ROMANCE AND EXCITEMENT.

"I must have passed out," the girl said with an attempt at a smile.

"Scared us nearly to death!" Buck exclaimed. "I'll wake up in the night thinking about it!"

Sandy bent beside her.

"O, it wasn't that bad. Here, suppose we put you in our car."

She perked her head.

"I don't know. I don't seem to have any knees——" Then she looked up into Sandy's face. "Would you give me a lift?"

Ross did not know that he catalogued her in this swift moment. He had no realization of noticing that she had a remarkably likable face, with an appealing friendliness about it; that she was bright featured, yet wistful appearing; that her hair, discounting the trickery of moonlight, seemed chestnut brown, and that her frank appearing eyes had a degree of sparkle and life to them that he liked. He knew none of these things consciously; he only knew that he had placed a strong arm about her and was lifting her, that she seemed surprisingly light, and that he was glad to hear her tell the solicitous Buck that she was not injured—only scared to death. At last they placed her in the car and, standing at the door, contemplated the result of the collision.

"Guess you've smashed your car," said the special agent. The girl spoke from behind upraised hands, as she continued to smooth back her unharnessed wealth of hair.

"I wish it were mine," she answered ruefully. "It's rented. That makes it all the worse, doesn't it?"

"Sure, they charge any old price they feel like on those rented cars," agreed Buck.

"That's cheering." The girl tried to laugh. Then she flared. "They shouldn't have sent it out with bad brakes. How was I to know the brakes wouldn't hold?"

"Brakes?" Buck started. "You weren't trying to drive down this mountain road on your brakes?"

"Of course. What else does one do?"

"You drive in gear. Let the

"Touring, I suppose?"

gears do the braking," he gusted with a heavy sigh. "No wonder you were taking up all the road. Brakes burnt out."

"But every now and then they held," the girl insisted.

She admitted that with a laugh.

"I'm from back in Missouri." Then: "I suppose you live around here."

"O sure." Buck felt this question demanded a change of subject. "Well, about this jam we're in. I've got a tow rope in the back of this bus somewhere."

Sandy agreed, and turned from the door with his comrade. The wheels of the rented car were blocked to prevent another descent of the mountain. Then the federal men disengaged their own car, turned it around and hooked into the stalled machine from Reno. Finally Buck was placed in the rear car, to guide it down the hill, while Sandy proceeded in the van with the girl.

"If you feel me yank back on you you'll know I'm running a little heavy on this low gear!" Buck shouted above the sound of Sandy's motor. The girl's car had been left dead.

"O. K. I'll drag you over the level spots." The start was made.

Going down the mountain, Sanderson Ross, the youngest inspector of the federal bureau of investigation, felt strangely light hearted. He told himself that it was not because an engaging girl sat beside him, voicing both her thanks and her apologies. Rather, it was something greater, which, for the moment, he could not catalog. Sandy Ross had no time for women, although many had indicated that they had plenty of time for him. There was too much to do, too many parts of the country demanding his presence, too many long stretches of work which might lead him anywhere at any time, for him to be able even to think of women. So it was not merely the presence of a girl. Yet he found himself liking this procedure of dragging down the mountain in low gear with a crippled car behind him and a feminine form outlined by the moonlight in the seat beside him. At last he said:

"Touring, I suppose?"

"I?" the girl faced him suddenly, as if pulling herself from revery. "No—I got into Reno tonight on the late bus." Then abruptly: "I'm—I'm just visiting."

Again she turned toward him, as if in surprise. She gave an explanatory laugh.

"O, no. Nobody knew I was coming. I thought I'd make it a surprise." Her tone changed. "There'll be a surprise all right when the repaid bill for that car comes in. You see, I got a round trip ticket. And didn't bring much money."

"O, that car may not be hurt much."

"Well," she placed her hands in her lap and sighed. "we'll know more about that when we get to a garage. I suppose they keep open at night around here."

"No—I've—I've heard it wasn't."

"Whom are you visiting there?"

The girl raised a hand to her lips, as if to stifle a cough. Or it might have been hesitation in framing an answer:

"The name is the same as mine—Bronson."

There was a rising inflection as if to ask if Sandy Ross knew the name. He replied that he was not widely acquainted in Vinton City, most of his time was spent in Reno. He looked into mining some, he said, as did his partner. She remarked that it must be interesting. Back where she came from, in Kansas City, there wasn't much that was romantic.

She turned then and sat for a long time looking out over the tumbled hills, the spire of a deserted shafthouse in the distance, the ghostly gray of old mine dumps where the hills once had given of their fortunes.

"Mining must be wonderful," she said finally. "You know—there must be romance in it, excitement, something different——"

"And full of risks."

"Isn't all of life?" she asked. There was a queer, aching reflection in her tone. "Risks—and heartaches?"

Sandy could not argue that point. He knew too many risks, he had seen the inside of too many prisons, watched too many persons in emergency hospital wards, each with heartaches. He changed the subject, back to mining, and the story of the old Comstock lode with its fortunes made and fortunes lost, its millionaires, its effect upon national politics, its building of far away cities from the massive stores of its wealth.

Thus they went down the mountains, with the cool breath of hill country air drifting through the lowered windows, the headlights strangely yellow against the silver of the moonlight, the outjuts of mountains and the upshoots of trees softly velvet in the paleness of the night. After a time she talked a little of home, somewhat vaguely and in generalities. She told her first name—it was Jane.

"Not plain Jane, however," thought Sandy, and wondered why. He reflected that he was influenced by this girl not because she was pleasant, not because she had frank, likable characteristics, but because she was some one to whom he could really talk without repression, without the constant weighing of words, the eternal mental effort necessary to design a phrase so that the other person might answer in a manner to impart information.

A Friend in Need

Asks for Chest of Drawers.

"Dear Miss Brown: I wonder if one of your readers has a discarded chest of drawers that I might have. My husband has a part time position which pays only a small wage and we are unable to pay for anything but rent and food. We recently started housekeeping with a few odd pieces of furniture which were given to us by friends, but none of it contains any drawer space. I find it difficult to keep our clothing and that of the baby in order."—Mrs. J. C.

Honesty in Child Fruit of Early Training

Parents Must Teach It by Patient Logic.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

The mother cat teaches her kitten to "hold his claws"—she's likely to cuff him when he doesn't behave as she thinks he should. He learns through her disapproval. He isn't born knowing all the things she wants him to know.

So a normal child is no more born knowing the many thousand things he has to learn than the roly-poly fluffy kitten.

A normal child isn't born honest, for instance. Neither is he born dishonest. Our approval or disapproval have to serve in place of a moral code for him during the early years.

Early training in honesty is every child's due—whether this honesty has to do with word or deed.

To train a child in these two honesties much more is needed than a rigid code of morals on the parents' part. But training he needs in his early years.

We train a child to honesty of word and deed in several ways:

We must first understand little children—how strong their sense of possession is, and how gradually they come to recognize the difference between mine and thine. So we must understand how often they confuse fact and fancy.

We must respect their belongings if we want them to respect ours.

We must always tell them the truth if we expect them to be truthful to us and to others.

We must never use fear as a means to our ends.

We must explain matter of factly, step by step.

We must not use the labels "lying" or stealing.

In a word, we lead them step by step, suiting our teaching to their slowly growing understanding, until honesty has become ingrained in their natures.

"Untruthfulness—Its Causes and Cures" is the subject of a fully written leaflet which will be sent out on receipt of a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Cordon Exhibit by Members Is a Gay Affair

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The Cordon club, Fine Arts building, is showing an interesting exhibition of etchings, drawings, photographs and water colors by members. It is a gay and informal affair.

Bertha E. Jaques is represented by a beautifully handled etching, "Jimson Weed." Mrs. Jaques probably has done more than any other artist of Chicago to draw attention to the plant life of Illinois. Her etchings of flowers, fruits and seeds are great favorites with every one. A folio of her prints would be a distinct asset to any school library.

Katherine Wolcott gives a touch of foreign wonder to the show with the introduction of five delightful water colors from abroad. The three in one frame are particularly fascinating.

Beatrice S. Levy presents us with "The Stuffed Horse," a captivating nursery piece, and several block prints of interest. Lucy S. Silke offers "Dunes," an excellent drawing in charcoal.

Marie Blanke exhibits a group of greeting cards that are unusually attractive and two or three colorful flower studies. Dorothy Short has intriguing color in "The Santa Fé Trail." Flora Schofield is effective in her clever limning of fish; the two compositions are extremely nice.

Matilda Klemm has a gay "Study in Rhythm," dancing girls and a fawn, and several excellent pencil sketches. Susan Wade Peabody and Agnes Cook Gale are among the other contributing artists whose work makes the show.

Book bindings by Virginia Chester illustrate a fascinating craft of a little different kind. The exhibit will run to March 25.

Sudduth Goff, Chicago portrait painter, is closing an exhibit of recent portraits in Evanston and bringing them to the Chicago Woman's club where his exhibition will continue the first two weeks in March.

According to CULBERTSON

EXCESSIVE COURTESY.

The exquisite courtesy exchanged between declarer and adversary on certain hands reminds one strikingly of the Alphonse and Gaston cartoons of long ago. The declarer painstakingly maneuvers himself into a position from which only the opponents or heaven can extricate him. Gallant Gaston, in the person of one of the defenders, gallops to the rescue with shining sword. Their helpless partners, temporarily united under the banner of suffering, smile weakly and commiseratingly at each other, each wondering who is to be the final victim.

Error for Error.

♦ A K Q 10 9
♣ 7 6 4 2.

WEST	EAST
♠ 8 4 2	♠ J 7 5 3
♥ 9	♥ K Q 10 6 3 2
♦ 7 6 4 3 2	♦ 8 5

SOUTH
♠ A K Q 10 9
♦ J
♣ A 9 5 3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 diamonds	Pass
3 spades	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
4 spades	[final bid]

West opened the singleton heart and declarer won with the ace. He then laid down three top trumps and, being disappointed that the jack did not fall, saw no reason to force it out. Obviously, he should have done so in oder to guard the diamond suit from trump interference. The defenders then never could take more than two heart tricks and the trump, declarer's ace of clubs acting as an impregnable fortress. But after the three top trumps the diamond was led and overtaken in the dummy. East had to follow to two diamond leads, but on the third round, to his partner's astonishment, he carefully conserved his high trump, discarding a heart. The fourth and fifth rounds found him still with a lover's grip on his beautiful trump. Declarer, feeling he had executed some rare type of coup, discarded losing card after card, eventually conceding the cherished jack of trump and a diamond trick.

Obviously, had East ruffed at his earliest opportunity, the contract would have been defeated one trick, since only two losing cards could have been discarded. East must have sensed, from his partner's stony face, that his performance had not been especially brilliant, and he remained discreetly silent, but the declarer was more fatuous. He laid himself wide open with a gay, self-satisfied: "Well, how did I play it, partner?"

North's answer was more succinct than elegant. "Lousy!" he growled.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: What is the penalty in the following situation? Dealer bid one spade. Second hand doubled. Third hand passed and fourth hand redoubled his partner's double.

Answer: In rubber bridge the redouble is canceled and the offender's side must pass whenever it is its turn to call. The player on the offender's left may cancel the double of the offender's partner. In duplicate bridge only the offender's partner is barred. The offender himself may bid again.

Furtwaengler Appointed to N. Y. Symphony

New York, Feb. 28.—[Special.]—Wilhelm Furtwaengler has been appointed general musical director of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony society for the season of 1936-'37, it was announced today.

The distinguished German conductor, who now divides his time principally between Berlin and Vienna, where he directs the Vienna Philharmonic and the State opera, will conduct the first twelve weeks of the twenty-four week season of the New York orchestra. Plans for the second half of the season will be announced later.

Mr. Furtwaengler's appointment was made public two weeks after the announcement that Arturo Toscanini, the famous Italian conductor, would not return to the leadership of the Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra next year.

Mr. Furtwaengler directed the New York Philharmonic orchestra for parts of the seasons of 1925, 1926, and 1927, but has not visited the United States since that time.

In December, 1934, he resigned as conductor of the Berlin Philharmonic orchestra and of the State opera because he objected to Nazi regimentation of art. Four months later he made peace with Reichsfuehrer Hitler and resumed his leadership of the Berlin orchestra. He is 50 years old.

Jeritza Rages as Doorkeeper Locks Her Out

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Maria Jeritza sang calmly and beautifully to a Pittsburgh audience—but inwardly she raged.

First, she had been denied admission at the stage door.

Then she had walked through hall after hall of the Carnegie museum wearing lounging pajamas, tramping over marble floors instead of resting in her dressing room as she had planned.

Jeritza came early, but the doorkeeper had his orders. He didn't know the singer. Besides, he thought, pajamas were hardly the garb of a famous prima donna.

She pounded on the door. They argued. Finally she got in through a roundabout way. An attendant led her through the museum to the music hall.

To the conductor of a symphony orchestra she explained:

"I have been in a museum! I, Jeritza! I have been in a museum! I look at stuffed birds. I look at stuffed animals.

"I wander through Carnegie museum! I say to the man, 'Let me in. I am Jeritza! Let me in, I am on the radio at eight!' And he says, 'Then you are already on . . . so no matter!'"

Museum Tours.

The story?

Well, Michael's a smart young fellow who wants to produce plays. He makes a bet with his Uncle Carlton, who's a high mucky muck in the meat packing business, that he can start from New York in his underwear, without a red cent, and, ten days later, arrive in Los Angeles with a complete outfit on his back, $100 in his pocket—and that, during the trip, he will have induced some girl to fall in love with him.

If Mike wins the bet, he's to get $15,000 to back a show. If not—a butcher's apron for him!

As you will surmise, such a wager could get a young man involved in all sorts of strange situations. This one does.

Gene Raymond, that incredibly popular young man whose feminine admirers break record attendances and storm stage doors when he's on a personal appearance tour, plays Michael with ingratiating enthusiasm and a pleasant sense of humor.

Wendy Barrie is charming as the girl who invests the working out of the bet with such unexpected glamor. Helen Broderick as Paula's worldly wise aunt is rib tickling, and William Collier Sr. portrays delightfully Michael's shrewd, twinkly Uncle Carlton. Supporting players are pleasing and the director used his wits and a light hand.

"DANGEROUS WATERS."
Produced by Universal.
Directed by Lambert Hillyer.
Presented at the State-Lake theater.

Again a pal and a gal bring sorrow into Jack Holt's screen life!

But is he downhearted? NO!

Because the pal really IS a pal and the gal who'd tried and failed to make him NOT a pal is ousted out of our hero's life, leaving a nice, clear space for a nice, clean girl, who has loved him long and who, you know, is bound to restore his faith in women and insure for him a future of happy days.

Mr. Holt is discovered as Jim Marlowe, first mate of a steamer with fire in its hold, a captain about to die, panic-stricken passengers and a mutinous crew.

The captain dies and Marlowe's masterly handling of the situation wins him a citation and the captainship of another boat.

BUT—for reasons the picture shall show you—Mr. Holt falls into disfavor, finds himself blacklisted. His pal, Dusty Johnson, refuses to ship without him. . . .

Marlowe's attractive wife, who is far from being the faithful spouse he believes her to be, makes a desperate play for Dusty, who spurns her advances. . . .

And now into the tale comes the S. S. Gibraltar, insured for $200,000—which sum her owners and first mate are in collusion to collect. Marlowe and Johnson, unwitting of any plot, are hired as captain and third mate. Mrs. Marlowe goes along. . . .

If you like excitement—and aren't too blasé—I think you will find this swiftly moving sea melodrama to your liking, approve of all the acting, and find that the director did a nice job.

In answer to a query I know I'm going to get—Yes. The sad faced woman seen writing at a desk in the lounge of the S. S. Gibraltar is Clara Kimball Young.

See you tomorrow.

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

AN Englishman returning from a tour of the U. S. S. R. was asked his opinion of that nation. As part of his answer he told the following story:

U. S. S. R.—Russian—Wedding—Enthusiasm—Slip.

"A soviet peasant girl, after many hardships, finally reached Leningrad to take an examination for a government post on which she had set her heart. She took the examination and felt confident of the answers to all the questions but one, 'What is the inscription on the Sarmian wall?'

After considerable gnawing at her pencil she hesitatingly put down, 'Religion is the opiate of the masses.' Doubt assailed her as to the correctness of her answer. Her anxiety was so great that she trudged seven miles to the Sarmian wall. There, blazoned in clear lettering, was the inscription, 'Religion is the opiate of the masses.'

The girl breathed a sigh of relief, got down on her knees, crossed herself, and folding her hands in prayer, muttered, 'Thank God!'"

IF you think most weddings sound alike, in the newspaper accounts, you might like to hear about an Alaskan wedding, as offered in a dispatch printed in the Denver Mining Record on Feb. 22. The bride stepped from an airplane, completing a flight of 5,500 miles from Jamestown, N. Y., to be greeted by every miner of Jack Wade Creek, near Valdez, and other nearby creeks.

"As she stepped from the plane in her bright red ski suit and white mukluks, she was greeted by the beaming bridegroom and scores of miners," the account reads.

"All the boys were dolled up in Sunday clothes and new ties, something seldom seen on the creeks—and were shaved and slicked up to the last touch. A prancing dog team of 20 malamutes with a big basket sled was provided and the bride and bridegroom dashed away to their new home, where the wedding and a big feast took place."

A mukluk is a kind of sealskin boot worn by the Eskimos, according to the dictionary.

BOBBY, who started to school recently in Evanston, came home for lunch and announced that report cards were soon to be distributed.

"What grade do you think you'll get on your report card," his grandmother inquired.

THE incident occurred in a La Salle street law office, according to Herbert S. Futran. Two of the principals in a legal conference were a young lawyer, his diction proclaiming his Harvard education, and a Scandinavian client, robust and red faced, and anything but a silent Swede. In fact he dominated the conversation for an hour, his talk sprinkled with Swedish colloquialisms, and y's substituted for j's. The young attorney was eager to make an impression, as it was his first solo case, and finally, in a last desperate effort to stop the stream of verbosity from his client, he pounded his fist on the table and said, "All we're interested in is seeing yustice done."

The "yustice" came from Harvard lips like a trumpet call. The others in the room wondered if the Scandinavian gentleman would resent what actually was a slip of the tongue, after listening to similar solecisms for so long a time. But the client got up, walked over to the young lawyer and smote him on the back.

"By golly, us Swedes must stick together," he said genially.

Cornell Polo Team Plays in City Tonight.

BY JUDITH CASS.

BACHELORS, beware, if you do not want to become benedicks, for today is the day when spinsters can feel perfectly free to propose, and, although we have no law such as Scotland adopted in the thirteenth century making it legal to fine a bachelor if he refused the offer of a young or old lady's hand and heart, it would be ungallant, to say the least, for a gentleman to say "no" to one of the fair sex who should go a-wooing today.

Every one of the 366 days in leap year is "open" for those unmarried women who want to take advantage of leap year, of course, but the intercalary day, Feb. 29, is the one when no bold feminine wooer would expect anything but success in her courting. So those bachelors who want to remain so had better remain at home today and tonight, and not even answer the telephone!

The young bachelors who are on Cornell university's polo team will not run much of a risk today, for they will not have a chance to meet any of Chicago's girls until after the game tonight, and it probably will be almost March 1 before they reach the dance the Cornell Club of Chicago is giving at the Casino.

The team arrives this morning, but the whole day will be spent practicing with the exception of a short interlude at noon, when the Chicago Cornellians are giving a luncheon for the polo players at the Merchandise Mart. Knowing that the dance will be a gay and late one, the local hosts have planned nothing for the visitors for tomorrow, so they will be free to sleep until they take a late afternoon train back to Ithaca, N. Y.

Games to Be Played at Chicago Riding Club.

The polo match will be in the Chicago Riding club, with the Black Horse Troop team opposing the easterners.

Steve Roberts and the Lawrence brothers, Tom and Jack, will play for Cornell, with Warner Jones and Henry Untermeyer as alternates. C. C. "Bud" Combs, who originally was scheduled to be the number one man, had to remain in the east at the last moment on account of a severe cold. Tom Lawrence is a three goal player, Jack rates two goals, and Steve Roberts one. The team has won all but two games this season.

Playing against them will be James A. [Big Jim] Hannah, Lieut. Stevens Hammond, and Capt. Roy D. Keehn

Katharine Cornell Is Ill; Cancels Pittsburgh Date

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

A new lipstick, created by a famous fashion designer, comes in five beautiful shades. Its smooth texture gives the lips a smooth, somewhat moist looking coating of color.

A high priced but awfully nice lipstick that recently moved into town with the entire cosmetic line created by a fashion designer offers five shades with conventional names that don't half tell their story. Every single woman who has tried them—and we happen to know dozens, since they were distributed at a big fashion show not long ago—is enthusiastic about the beauty of the shade of her choice and the texture of the lip rouge itself.

We've been using one ourselves, one with the noncommittal title of "medium," and find it a beautiful, rich red that's as lovely as anything we've ever tried. There aren't any confusing undertones to pop up as the hours wear on and the shade itself stands up just as well in either soft or bright night light as it does in daytime glare.

There are four other shades, with the usual printed distinction of light, vivid, dark, and raspberry, but each in its own way is unusual and charming. The vivid is particularly good—no hint of orange but a clear, unbelievably lively red.

The texture is just about perfect, landing squarely in the happy medium land between dryness and creaminess. As every woman knows, the lip rouge that is dry or that dries the lips is to be avoided, particularly in winter. At the same time the too greasy stick can be maddening because it smudges. This is just about right. It has plenty of body, but it has moisture, too, and coats the lips in a suave, somewhat moist looking coat of pretty color. It stays on well.

Its case is distinguished—ivory enamel with discreet raised lettering on its head. You'll find it and its sister products of cream and powder in a couple of shops.

Shawn's Men Dancers Win Big Audience

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Ted Shawn and his men dancers performed at the Studebaker last night according to schedule, although an accident on the road coming into Chicago resulted in serious injuries to two of the company. After the leader was satisfied that the men were out of danger he made a hurried revision of the program, gave a public explanation of the reason for the changes, and managed to delight a crowded house with the numbers he had chosen.

Shawn's powerful solo dance, "John Brown Sees the Glory," is an ambitious attempt to carry into the realm of choreography one of the most profound experiences of which a human is capable—the dawn of an inward conviction of a mission. There is creative thought of a high order in the original conception and in the labor, which Meeker and Shawn shared, of clothing such an abstraction in music and motion.

A series of workers' songs of central Europe revealed the troupe in merry mood, quick to execute physically the droll implications of the music and to formalize deftly the pictorial possibilities inherent in the types of man. This observation applies to the second of the three episodes, the "Vagabonds' Song." The "Song of the Proleterint" and the "Millers' Song" were made of sterner material.

The particular virtue of Shawn and his company lies in the competent way they blend cerebral appeal and excellent dancing. The latter is never lost sight of through preoccupation with the former. An audience is amazed and delighted by the sheer beauty of expert dancing and miming and can give whatever excess of attention may be possible to the implications of the pieces. In some cases there are no implications. The exquisite "French Sailor Dance" is an example.

The Armour Institute of Technology Musical clubs broke with tradition last night by appearing in a downtown theater. Friends of the school and the scholars filled the Goodman to capacity.

The result of the work of Gordon Erickson, musical director, was demonstrated in a program that offered both glee club and orchestra opportunities to be heard in vividly contrasting types of number. The soloists were John Johnson, trumpeter; Robert Paulson, saxophonist, and Frank Hrachovsky, tenor. George Ormsby played the piano accompaniments.

An interesting announcement comes from the office of the Chicago City Opera company. Plans are afoot to work out an arrangement with the Metropolitan opera of New York whereby important soloists on the eastern roster will be available for occasional appearances with the resident company. Pons, Flagstad, and Martinelli were among those mentioned.

The WPA Concert band, Alfred J. De Grazia, director, is playing a schedule of programs in various parts of the city. Last night the organization appeared at Olivet institute.

New Practical Joker Appears in Hollywood

Craig Reynolds Seeks Title of Studio Pest.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 28.—[Special.]—A new practical joker has appeared in the movie colony to challenge the laurels of Jack Dempsey, who popularized crawling under a banquet table and lighting matches on the soles of people's shoes; Harpo Marx, who would sit in the laps of ladies visiting on movie sets, and Vince Barnett, who would find the sore spot in some stranger's personal prejudices and then massage it with sandpapered words. The newcomer is Craig Reynolds, a newly named and newly contracted actor at Warner studio. He has been applying himself in an effort to obtain the general nuisance laurels.

The "triple threat carpet tack" and the special chair cushion, which contains a dry cell battery that makes you hot at point of contact when you sit down, are two of Reynolds' favorites. But since the young actor changed his name from Hugh Enfield to the new screen cognomen, he has uncovered a new bag of tricks.

Many persons will remember Enfield as the lively young fellow formerly in Mary Pickford's stage cast of "Coquette," who offered to take Mary on a motorcycle ride one night and who never permitted America's sweetheart to get off his gas bike until he drew up to a curb in Santa Barbara, 100 miles distant.

Since the young man, a recent graduate of Pasadena playhouse and other little theaters in California, began his Warner screen career, his specialty has progressed from the articulated mechanical snake which wiggles toward script girls and feminine stand-ins to a special set of false whiskers and toupees with which he impersonates various studio executives, and makes fellow players jittery by storming onto sets denouncing imaginary errors of commission or omission. Then there is the rubber chair he keeps in his dressing room, on which to invite visitors to sit.

But Reynolds' championship idea is a specially made camera. It took him and a couple of ingenious mechanics, working on his original idea, nearly six weeks to build this camera. His victim holds the little gem to get a confidential shot of somebody else around the set. When the victim presses the button the camera squirts water in the picture taker's face; a device not unlike a mousetrap snaps him smartly across the fingers and the camera falls apart, disclosing a live white rat.

Those working with Reynolds in "Murder in the Big House" have found it profitable to accept his invitation to "play straight" for him in lining up somebody else. Patricia Ellis had one experience which made her ask the studio not to cast her with Reynolds in any more films unless it was in his contract and hers, that he wouldn't pick her for a victim any more.

Duncan Renaldo, recently out of McNeil Island federal penitentiary for misstating his nationality in a federal immigration inquiry, is back in films. He was a well known figure in pictures when "Trader Horn" was made. Renaldo is playing a male ballet dancer in "Moonlight Murder" and is teamed with Benita Hume in the mystery story whose cast is headed by Chester Morris, Madge Evans, Leo Carrillo, H. B. Warner, and Bruce Cabot at M-G-M.

John Lee Mahin, writer who collaborated on "Hell Below," "Small Town Girl," and "Wife Versus Secretary" at Metro studio, has an odd clause in his new contract. It stipulates he can act in a story he writes if he wants to.

Joan Bennett attended a studio preview the other night and ran into two savage autograph hounds. One snatched her hat right off her head for a souvenir. Another whisked her handkerchief out of her hand.

Mary Ellis has leased Norma Talmadge's Santa Monica beachside home for as long as Mary wants to keep it during her stay in California.

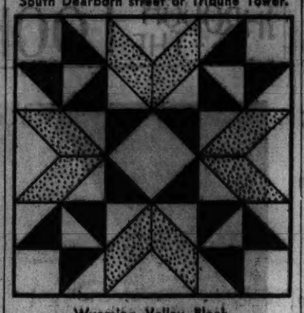
Quilt Block Is Commemoration of Historic Event

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.



Wyoming Valley Block.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Wyoming Valley Block" had its origin in the east, specifically Pennsylvania, to commemorate the terrible Wyoming Valley massacre which took place many years before the piecing of this block. The story of the massacre was one which was told and retold to the Pennsylvania children. The finished squares measure 15 inches, and 36 blocks are required for an entire coverlet.

For a limited period Nancy Cabot offers 10 quilt patterns of her own choice at a price of 10 cents for the group (12 cents by mail). Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street, or Tribune Tower.

Confidence for 'Own Good' Is Purely Malice

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Set it down as gospel that when you are moved to tell people things for their own good, there's a mean motive stirring in you who do the telling. If one had the other person's "own good" in mind, the last thing to be done would be to pass on the word that means trouble.

Sarah undertook to enlighten a friend of hers that she was second choice in a recent invitation. This was delivered for the friend's [Ruth's] own good. Ruth fell hard for the boy, talked about him, as girls will, in terms of high enthusiasm. The nicest boy she ever met, was her pronouncement in Sarah's presence. So Sarah, thereupon, felt impelled to acquaint Ruth with the fact that said young man had first asked another girl that particular night. The other girl turned him down. So Ruth was second choice. Sarah allbis her mean message to the effect that she knew Ruth wouldn't play second fiddle to any one if she knew it.

It wasn't right and no one knows it better than Sarah. She had mischief in her heart when she delivered the information. No kind person could or would say a thing like that. Sarah was a sorehead and probably because she didn't get the chance at playing second fiddle.

What does it matter, anyway, if you are second on the invitation list, as long as you get there and you get better acquainted with a youth? Who, these days, is holding out on such trivial formality? Not smart girls who take their fun as they find it for an evening out. As in Ruth's case, this second fiddle act may lead to the big solo job with the love-strung orchestra. However, that's neither here nor there. It's the blatherskite, trouble dispensing tellers for "your own good" that stir our ire. There isn't any such human being on this earth as a kindly motived passer-on of bad news. The human constitution, and we say human, is above harboring any such characteristic.

When you hear that phrase, "I'm going to tell her for her own good," believe that you are listening to some one with a personal ax to grind, and the mischief she plans is a deliberate attempt to make somebody suffer.

Cornell Polo Team Plays in City Tonight.

There will be a curtain raiser between the Hornets and the 122d Field Artillery, with Lieut. [Laddie] Pachl, Capt. Bill Everett, and Lieut. Bert Doherty in the Hornets' lineup, and Lieut. Waldo Zimmerman, Lieut. Dick Strauss, and Lieut. Bob Hepple playing for the field artillery.

Among the Cornellians who are bringing parties of friends to cheer on their players and who are going on to the Casino afterward for supper, dancing, and keno are Col. and Mrs. Edward Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Vose Jr., Col. and Mrs. Edward J. Blair, Mr. and Mrs. Ross McKinstry, Mr. and Mrs. Towner K. Webster Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Harney Bassett, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Little, Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Selpp, Mr. and Mrs. Erskine Wilder, and Mr. and Mrs. C. Longford Felske.

Among those rooting for the other side will be Gen. and Mrs. Thomas S. Hammond and the Roy D. Keehns, whose sons are playing for the Black Horse troop.

Gay Parties Tonight on North Shore.

Lake Foresters are having a Dutch treat dinner-dance tonight at the Deerpath inn and quite a number of friends of the north shore town's year around colonists are going out from town to take part in the festivities. It is not a costume party, but since every one was told to come as-you-please there undoubtedly will be a wide variety of costumes.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Connors and the junior H. Edward Manvilles arranged the party, which will be preceded by several large cocktail parties, the Connorses, the Stephen Hords, and the junior William B. McIlvaines being among the hosts. The Daniel Freemans and Alexander Baldwins of New York are spending the week-end with the Manvilles, and Mrs. Dodge Bushnell, formerly of New York, is going out from Chicago to spend the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Connors.

A bit south of Lake Forest, at Fort Sheridan, there also will be a jolly party tonight, for the Fort Sheridan Dramatic club is presenting "Gold in the Hills," a gay nineties melodrama. It will be given in the gymnasium, which has been turned into an old-fashioned beer garden for the affair. Supper will be served at 7 and the show will be given later. There will be dancing during supper and after the show. The cast is composed entirely of officers and their families, 31 in all.

The Indian Hill Country club in Winnetka is having a dinner-dance tonight and at the Shawnee Country club in Wilmette the last of the North Shore Fortnightlies will be given. Ladies' choice and other amusing features, novel to this generation, of the old-fashioned cotillion, will be revived for the occasion.

Cliff Dwellers to Have Party.

At the Cliff Dwellers there will be a leap year party tonight with dinner at 7, followed by a program of dances by Eloise Moore and Florence Kope, and later dancing by members and their guests. Ralph Fletcher Seymour is chairman of the committee.

Any one who goes to the Key club this afternoon may be interviewed about his or her ideas about leap year, for this club has been chosen as the one in Chicago in which an interviewer for a radio broadcasting system will talk to four or five persons before a "mike" that she will carry through the club, starting at 4 o'clock.

Miss Leslie Blanchard, dean of women at Hollins college, Virginia, will be a guest at a luncheon of the Hollins alumnæ today at the Woman's Athletic club. Miss Blanchard, who is here for the Progressive Education association's conference, will speak on "Modern Trend of Education in the Liberal Arts College."

Mrs. Howard B. Erminger Jr. is in charge of arrangements, with Mrs. Keister Talbot, president of the Chicago Hollins club, and Mrs. Lewis Baher, former president, assisting her.

Birthday Luncheon for Judge Cutting.

Mrs. Oakley Kissam Brown is giving a luncheon today at the Arts club for Judge Charles S. Cutting, who is celebrating his 82d birthday tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Rowan are entertaining at cocktails this afternoon for Miss Frances Conant of St. Louis, who is visiting them for a week. The Rowans are occupying the Alden B. Swifts' apartment until the former Lydia Swift's parents return from Australia in April.

Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, Mrs. Emmons Blaine, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, the Charles H. Swifts, the Albert H. Wettens, and Mrs. Americus F. Callahan will be among those entertaining box parties tomorrow afternoon at the concert to be given in Orchestra hall by Aleo Templeton, the talented young pianist.

Mrs. William S. Monroe is giving the four tickets she has taken to blind people who, no doubt, will find the concert of especial interest because Mr. Templeton is blind and so plays, of course, entirely by ear.

Mrs. John E. Baker of Lake Forest is entertaining at luncheon tomorrow at the Casino for Antonio and Renee De Marco, afterward taking her guests to the Templeton recital.

Ralph Bellamy and his wife, Catherine Willard, will be the especial guests of the Tavern tomorrow at its Sunday breakfast party.

Italian Consul to Give Reception.

The consul general of Italy and Signora Mario Carosi have cards out for a reception for Signora Olivia Rossetti Agresti next Wednesday, from 4 to 6 o'clock, at their residence, 2350 Lincoln Park West.

Mrs. Byron S. Harvey and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Stewart Harvey, have left to spend several weeks in Santa Fe.

Mrs. Byron S. Harvey Jr. is planning to come from Kansas City, where she and her husband are living now, in about a month for a visit in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Pirie are leaving today to spend several weeks in Bermuda.

Mrs. Woodbury S. Ober is taking her children today on a visit to their grandparents, the Donald R. McLennans, in Palm Beach. Mrs. Ober plans to be away at least a fortnight.

Miss Enid Stoddard arrived in town yesterday and will be at the Whitehall for two or three weeks while she renews old friendships and works on portraits of the Lee Alberts and their young son.

New Version of Shirtwaist

WOMAN'S AND MISS' FROCK.

Women have granted the shirtwaist frock such an overwhelming popularity, that season merges into season with this type of dress still holding a large share of the limelight. Variations have been created on the basic theme of the shirtmaker dress, and the one illustrated today, pattern No. 3487, presents a soft shoulder yoke as its claim to individuality. The gathers in the bodice, where it joins the straight yoke, create soft fullness which is flattering and feminine. The pert pocket carries on the tradition of all shirtwaist frocks. The little turn-down collar is pretty, and is accented by a girlish bow. Your favorite buttons may march down the front in an imposing row.

This model is exceedingly attractive in cravat print silk crepe, but you may choose your own fabric and color and be in the fashion limelight with individuality as your keynote.

Style No. 3487 is designed for sizes 14, 16, and 18 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material.

BY MARY MEADE.

Hello again, cooksters! This is a day that comes around only every four years. Did you remember? So how about cooking something pretty special just to celebrate?

We can't think of anything more special than chocolate nut drop cookies. Can you? Besides, we think it's just the recipe that will please our 11 year old friend in Marshfield, Wis., Faith P.

If you're all set for the Leap Year Special, now here's the recipe for those perfectly swell cookies.

CHOCOLATE NUT DROP COOKIES.

1. Set the oven for 375 degrees Fahrenheit, which is "moderately hot."

2. Measure ¼ cup of butter into a large mixing bowl. A good way to do this [and to measure any shortening] is to fill a measuring cup three-fourths full of cold water. Then spoon in enough butter to fill the cup to the one cup mark and pour out the water.

3. Take a big wooden spoon and cream the butter until it's fluffy and almost as soft as whipped cream.

4. Measure one cup of sugar. Add this to the butter, and cream it until it's all mixed, and fluffy, and smooth.

5. In a smaller bowl beat one egg until it's light and fluffy. Measure one-half cup of milk and mix it with the egg.

6. Stir the egg and milk into the creamed butter and sugar, and mix it thoroughly.

7. Measure one and one-half cups of flour, sifting it before you measure.

8. Measure two level teaspoons of baking powder and one-half cup of cocoa. Mix these with the flour and sift them together twice.

9. Stir the sifted ingredients into the large mixing bowl and keep stirring until it's smooth as you can make it.

10. Chop a cup of nut meats into bits about as big as half your little finger nail. Mix these into the batter.

11. Cover a cookie sheet with waxed paper, or grease it lightly.

12. Drop small spoonfuls [a tea spoon works best] onto the cookie sheet and put the cookies into the moderately hot oven.

13. Bake the cookies for 15 minutes. And that's all!

Remember, now, that we're trying to show you how to cook the things you like best. So if there's something you especially want to try [just as Faith wanted to make drop cookies], better let us know about it. See you next week, and don't eat too many cookies. The rest of the family will like them, too!

Heredity Is Factor Behind Hair on Face

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

She is 24 and already suffering a family characteristic, which she frankly admits is a family trait. It is a superfluous growth of hair on the upper lip.

"I have been using [a certain cleansing cream she names] and I find that the superfluous hair has increased since I began using this cream."

Why, we must interrupt, not inquire into the family trait rather than the cream as the cause of the superfluous hair? There's where you will find the answer, not in the cream jar. I certainly do not believe that face creams grow hair. There are thousands of women who have used face creams for years and years, with no such consequence. Besides, there is no scientific evidence to prove the charge against the creams.

Some women come by this facial trait as they come by the color of their eyes and hair, through heredity, and undoubtedly having to do with a glandular condition. This is as close as medical opinion has arrived at the cause, anyway. When there is the glandular type of obesity, hair on the face is a common accompaniment, not necessarily confined to it, however. If the hair seems to grow more during the particular cream-using period, it can be set down only to a coincidence.

It is a beauty sorrow, and no doubt about it. But modern science has come valiantly to the rescue. You can bleach the milder growths to make them inconspicuous. Two parts of peroxide to one part ammonia is the usual formula.

For the scattered, stiffish hairs that sprout here and there, tweezing is the simplest method of handling. With good tweezers you can pull out the wiry hair with one yank. There are preparations in liquid form, in cream form, and in powder form which break the hairs off at the surface. There are waxlike preparations to be applied warm and liquid, allowed to harden, and then peeled off. There's technique for their use, which I urge you to follow to the letter.

Then there is the old reliable, electrolysis, a delicate, tricky job even for the expert, which should be done only by an expert. This treatment holds the promise of a permanent release from the superfluous hair embarrassment.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

General Health Affects Skin.

S. I.: When pimples appear it means you're not giving your skin the proper care. Look to your diet, get the proper amount of sleep and rest, see that there is proper elimination. I suggest that you send a stamped, addressed envelope for details.

Dangerous to Dye Lashes.

H. H.: There is an element of danger in dyeing the eyelashes, although many people do it and suffer no ill effect. You do it at your own risk. With the eyebrows it is different. For a blonde I would suggest dark brown dye rather than black.

New Hosiery Styled to Wear with Sandals

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Here are some suggestions for the Saturday shopper! Some new dancing stockings to wear with sandals that are made with open toe and heel sections. The stockings are exquisitely sheer, of a glowing copper tone, and have heels and toes of a lace pattern, quite an invention after years of extra areas of dark tone in the same spots. These stockings are decorative and flattering. You can't object to sandals with just the minimum of straps when such alluring heels and toes are revealed.

Inexpensive suede handbags in all the brilliant colors of the newest pet of fashion, the high colored suede gloves, are in. These are small, neat, flat envelopes in such colors as sulphur yellow, jade green, fawn, red, bright blue, and a deep purple. They are especially designed to wear with tailored street ensembles and the short length slipon gloves to match.

A few of the bright colors are available in the gypsy bag, the kind that is tied in a loose knot and carried peasant fashion over the arm.

With February saying a hurried good-by, the collections of amethysts, the February birthstone, will linger on into the rest of the year. Some of the most beautiful amethyst jewelry has been featured during this month of famous birthdays. Romantic necklaces of tawny old gold are set with small and medium sized stones of the pale and deeper toned purple. Old-fashioned crosses hanging from fine chains of gold are set with oblong amethysts. Clips are exceptionally interesting when made of these decorative stones.

If you are looking for stunning finger rings nothing could please you more than some unusual oblong and round stones, deep purple in tone. These are to be found in a famous jewelry shop and can be set in either gold or platinum, very simply, and you'll have a distinctive ring made just for your own personality.

Bishop Sees M. E. Church Facing Split

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 28.—[Special.]—Bishop Edgar Blake of the Detroit area of the Methodist Episcopal church declared today that his church is again threatened with division over social issues just as it was in 1836, when slavery began to be the great American question. The coming general conference of the church in May at Columbus, O., he said, may see re-enactment of scenes similar to those of the conference of a century ago.

Bishop Blake spoke before the Detroit institute on social questions which was called to consider relationships of churches with socialism, communism, capitalism and Fascism. He recounted that in 1836 two members of the general conference from New Hampshire were publicly censured for attending abolitionist meetings during conference sessions, and pointed to the possibility of censure by the coming Columbus conference for those members or church officials who sympathize or coöperate with communistic agencies.

Bishop Blake explained that eight years after the 1836 general conference the church was divided over the slavery question.

Miss Curtis Warns That Women Face Loss of Incomes

Miss Cathrine Curtis of New York, national director of Women Investors in America, asserted yesterday in an address to the Joliet Woman's club that women, "the capitalists of the country," are gradually losing their homes and other property through paternalistic experiments of government, bringing with them their inevitable increase in taxes.

"Women should give up bridge playing, if necessary," to pay attention to what may happen to their property. "There are indications that inflation will grow worse, and that means confiscation of wealth and income."

Miss Curtis was one of the speakers at the third annual Woman Congress held under the sponsorship of THE TRIBUNE two weeks ago.

The pattern interest comes nowhere bordering on dandyism, depend on us to watch that. What Wear Weev has gone in for is over—squares, twin stripes, and single stripes in colors that have been held down so as not to contrast too sharply with their grounds. The job of bringing color into the life of a Wear Weev suit has been well done and it's another good reason for coming in and seeing for yourself the suit that has a reputation, of long standing, for being a glutton for punishment.

CROWD BOOS AS OFFICIALS END FIGHT IN SIXTH

Denver Boxer Takes Count of Nine.

The scheduled eight round bout at the Chicago Stadium last night between Lorenzo Pack and Cowboy Frankie Edgren was declared no contest by Referee Norman McGarity after the heavyweights had gone 1 minute and 37 seconds in the sixth round.

The decision did not meet with the approval of the 10,162 who saw the show. They remained quiet as the referee led Pack to his corner, signifying that the bout had come to an end.

The fans thought that the uneven encounter was being given to Pack on a technical knockout. When the referee jumped out of the ring and signaled to Chairman Joe Triner of the Illinois boxing commission that Lorenzo wasn't trying the spectators understood and they booed and shouted "Let 'em fight."

Confers with Chairman.

After consulting for several minutes with McGarity, Triner ordered him back into the ring. Everybody cheered, believing the contest would be allowed to continue. But all the referee did was to collect the score cards of Judges Harry Hall and Ed Klein. He then marked his own and handed all three to Chairman Triner.

The decision was unanimous, both judges coinciding with the verdict handed down by the referee, according to Triner, although one of the judges at first had marked "technical knockout" on his card.

The gross receipts were $10,734. Pack, 1935 Golden Gloves champion, had won nine straight professional bouts by knockouts previous to last night's contest. The purses of Pack and Edgren were not held up.

Hearing Is Planned.

The chairman ordered both boxers to appear at the commission a week from Monday for a hearing. He explained that the reason for the delay was that according to law governing boxing those cited for a hearing must be given ten days' notice.

Triner refused to allow the referee to be interviewed by newspaper men.

"We're not holding court here," he said.

Asked in the dressing room for a statement, Pack said: "I half killed the guy and the referee didn't like it. He succeeded in messing up my record. But you've gotta take the bad with the good, I suppose."

He said he wasn't tired.

"I just couldn't reach his chin with damaging blows. Whenever I hurt him he'd hold on," the colored boy explained.

Edgren also said he had plenty of fight left in him when the referee interfered.

"I was just getting my second wind," he said. "That big boy hurt me in the second round. [Edgren was floored for the count of nine.] And I hadn't fully recovered when the bout was stopped."

Pack Forces Fighting.

The fight started slowly. Pack ambled into close quarters. He staggered his opponent with a series of rights to the chin, but missed several times with left hooks.

Near the end of the round Edgren's left eye was cut. Every time Pack connected with a mighty punch the Colorado cowboy stepped back and waved to him to come on and fight.

Pack shuffled out of his corner for the second round intent on keeping his promise of scoring an early knockout. He crashed several rights to the jaw and Edgren dropped to the canvas. He arose as the referee chanted nine.

In the next round Edgren's right eye was cut.

Fighters Begin to Tire.

Both fighters were tired in the fourth round, Pack because he was eighteen pounds overweight and Edgren on account of the fearful licking he was absorbing.

The crowd called on the referee to "stop the slaughter" in the fifth but cheered when Edgren finished the round. Pack appeared to be unable to do more than defend himself in this round, although the cowboy had difficulty keeping his feet.

Then came the surprise ending in the sixth.

Bob Tow, 201¼, Alexandria, Va., nocked out Dick Thurer, 182½, New York [4].

Talking It Over

[Copyright: 1936: By The Chicago Tribune.]

WELL, a young man coming up the hill met an old man going down the hill at Chicago Stadium last night, and the result was funny. . . . The young man, Lorenzo Pack, only a year out of the amateurs, was fighting Cowboy Frankie Edgren, a professional eight years, and midway in the sixth round Referee Norm McGarity stopped the one-sided battle. . . . But to the surprise of the spectators he did not step between the belligerents to save Edgren from further punishment. . . . He ruled both boys out of the ring and called it no contest. . . . The confusion was not limited to the spectators. . . . At least one of the judges marked his card technical knockout for Pack, but erased it and substituted no contest after conferring with McGarity. . . . Chairman Joe Triner of the Illinois athletic commission, who ordered all officials to maintain silence, announced the verdict of no contest as unanimous. . . .

There was no question about Pack's superiority from the outset. . . . He took all the steam out of Edgren's wallops with terrific punches of his own. . . . It appeared in the first round that Edgren never would weather the storm. . . . Bleeding from cuts over both eyes, he carried on, however, with a remarkable display of courage. . . . Pack, idle for nearly three months and obviously too bulky around his middle, tired in the fifth and sixth rounds, but he frequently put on rallies that eliminated any doubt in this department's mind of his earnest intentions. . . .

He had Edgren whipped so decisively there could have been no complaint if the referee had halted the match and awarded victory to Pack by a technical knockout. . . . A no contest ruling was unfair to Pack, unfair to Edgren, and unfair to the 10,162 who paid to see the bout. . . .

It was only a few months ago that King Levinsky collected approximately $30,000 for sitting on the ropes while Joe Louis pounded lefts and rights to his head at Comiskey Park. . . . Mr. McGarity, who was the referee of that engagement, did not hesitate in proclaiming Louis the winner on a technical knockout. . . . If Lorenzo Pack, who collected only $1,600, wasn't trying harder to whip Cowboy Edgren last night than Levinsky was to defeat Louis, then we are sorry to have mentioned the matter at all. . . . O, well, there won't be any "no contest" rulings at Chicago Stadium next Friday night, anyway.

A special committee appointed by the Royal and Ancient Golf club of St. Andrews to consider the proportions of golf balls in England has sent a confidential letter to golf ball manufacturers and there is a possibility of a conference between the two in the near future. . . . Any change, however, would not take effect until 1937. . . . This year's events will be played with the present ball, 1.62 ounces in weight and 1.62 inches in diameter. . . . The intended alteration calls for a larger ball rather than a lighter one. . . . This would bring it into line with the American ball, which also weighs 1.62 ounces but is 1.68 inches in diameter. . . . Bo McMillin of Indiana says the reason Texas turns out so many good high school football athletes is because they play about 15 games a season. . . . When a boy has completed his high school course he is more experienced than the average midwestern athlete of his age. . . . Two Chicagoans, Coach Charles O'Leary and Trainer Dr. George White, attached to the St. Louis Browns' staf, will join the squad today at Evansville, from where they will travel to West Palm Beach for spring training. . . . Jimmy Dykes picks Detroit, New York, Cleveland, and Boston to finish in that order in the American league. . . . He gives the White Sox fifth place. . . . Dr. Clarence W. Spears, whose Wisconsin elevens have faced both boys, says he would just as soon have Ray Buivid of Marquette on his team as Jay Berwanger of Chicago.

Jack Robinson, Doc Huntley, Duane Cullinan, and Johnny Gill comprise the best group of hurdlers Illinois has had in several years. . . . Dan Hanley, former Notre Dame football player and a member of last year's All-Star team that played the Bears, is studying law at De Paul. . . . Bob Harrison, who broadcasts Packers' football games for a Green Bay radio station, is Bernard Darling, former Beloit college athlete. . . . Bill Rogell, Tigers' shortstop, may manage a hocky team in the Michigan-Ontario amateur league next season. . . . Two of Jack Britton's sons are boxers. . . . Tony Weston, Lord Derby's jocky, who rode Bahram to victory in the 1935 Epsom Downs Derby, visited Jack Hylton, British band leader, in Chicago a few days ago. . . . He is returning from a vacation in Hawaii. . . . W. W. Edgar, sports editor of the Detroit Free Press, developed influenza the last day of the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions, and is confined in St. Luke's hospital. . . . George Hainsworth, Toronto Maple Leafs' goalie, holds the world's record for hocky shutouts, scoring 22 in the 1928-'29 season for an average of .9 goals a game. . . .

Eric Pedley, polo star, was a varsity tennis player and a middleweight boxer at Stanford. . . . Tommy Emmett, publicity man for the Detroit Lions, who recently returned from a trip to Honolulu with the squad, says the professional champions are looking forward to their game at Soldiers' field Sept. 1 against the College All-Americans with livelier anticipation than any other engagement of their careers. . . . Florella D. McCutcheon of Pueblo, Colo., has bowled ten perfect games. . . . Mayor A. H. Berndt of Bloomington, Ind., served as athletic director, assistant football coach, head basketball coach, and baseball coach at Indiana university from 1913 to 1916 for $1,500 a year. . . .

N. U. SHOOTS FOR UPSET TONIGHT IN INDIANA BATTLE

Games Tonight

Indiana at Northwestern.
Iowa at Purdue.
Chicago at Wisconsin.
Illinois at Ohio.

Northwestern university's basketball team faces another opportunity to throw confusion into the Big Ten championship race when it meets Indiana at Patten gym tonight.

The Wildcats last Saturday handed Purdue a 45 to 40 setback, its first of the year, and dropped the Boilermakers into a tie with Indiana. These two teams share the leadership as the race swings into the stretch drive. They have 9 victories and one defeat each.

Purdue will also risk its title chances in tonight's game with Iowa at Lafayette. In the first meeting between the two teams, the Boilermakers were forced to put on a last minute rally to earn a one point victory, 31 to 30.

Chicago Plays at Madison.

Two other games involving conference teams are on tonight's schedule. Chicago will seek its first Big Ten win against Wisconsin at Madison while Illinois will endeavor to retain third place by turning back Ohio State at Columbus.

Bill Haarlow, the University of Chicago's high scoring basketball captain, has an opportunity, though it is not bright, to establish a new conference record for individual scoring in three seasons of Big Ten play. If he scores 40 points in his three remaining games he will top the three season mark of 406 points set by Stretch Murphy of Purdue.

Haarlow 39 Short.

In his three seasons at the Midway to date Haarlow has scored 367 points in Big Ten play, 39 less than Murphy's total. In addition to tonight's game Haarlow will play against Iowa at the Midway Monday night and against Northwestern a week from tonight.

The leading three season scorers of the conference have been as follows:

Carney's total was made under the old rule which permitted one man to do all of his team's free throwing. His low scoring in the junior year was due to an injury.

Has 102 This Year.

Haarlow made 109 points as a sophomore, 156 as a junior, and has made 102 points thus far as a senior. In previous games against Wisconsin, Iowa, and Northwestern this year he has made 18, 4, and 10 points, respectively.

Although defeated in four out of nine games and reposing in fifth place, Northwestern is regarded as one of the strongest quintets at the present stage of the race. The Wildcats have displayed remarkable improvement and will enter tonight's game with Indiana on practically even terms.

The Hoosiers defeated the Purple, 34 to 31, in the first game of the season. It was the first of four contests which the Wildcats dropped by close decisions. Two defeats were by one point and the other by four points.

The lineup:

Golden Gloves Finalists Open Workouts for Title Matches

BY WILFRID SMITH.

From Ohio on the east to Nebraska and Oklahoma on the west, from Wisconsin to the Ohio river, the qualifiers for the semi-finals and finals of the ninth Golden Gloves tournament today are beginning preparations for their second invasion of Chicago. Next Friday night these 32 boys, survivors of the 17,000 contestants in the world's largest amateur boxing tournament, will be greeted by a capacity throng in the world's largest stadium.

All tickets have been sold for the finals, but hundreds of fans, many of whom have been lucky enough to attend other Golden Gloves shows, still don't believe it. These have been dialing TRIBUNE 'phones, calling friends, or friends who know friends who have tickets.

Contestants Evenly Matched.

This ninth annual boxing show promises to be the best. Universal opinion holds that the eight weight divisions are well matched. Since there are few standouts—only two of the boys are defending champions—the competition should be keen throughout the 16 semi-finals and the eight championship matches.

Larger crowds than ever saw the three day tournament of Champions. This means, for one thing, that more now know these boys, have seen them in action, and already have made up their minds as to probable winners.

Then, too, more cities and more states are represented in the semi-finals than ever before. Twelve cities outside of Chicago located in eight states will have entries when the first boys enter the ring Friday night. This widespread entry list means continued interest in these centers which, however, is matched in many instances by newspapers no longer represented.

Little Towns Fare Well.

Chicago will have eleven boys in Friday's semi-finals, Cleveland, Detroit, Omaha, and South Bend have three contestants each. Omaha's record, in its second year in Golden Gloves and South Bend's splendid showing considering the size of that city, definitely indicates that all the good amateur boxers are not to be found in metropolitan centers. Indeed, such cities as Kansas City, Cincinnati, Louisville, and Nashville failed to have any one of their boys reach the semi-finals.

Oklahoma City, Dayton, Peoria, St. Louis, Milwaukee, Danville, Evansville, with one boxer each, and Michigan City, with two contestants, complete the list. Evansville has Paul Combs, a bantamweight, who was listed previously as from Danville through a typographical error. The Ohio river Hoosiers deluged THE TRIBUNE immediately with requests to tell the world that Combs not only is from Evansville but that he will be the next Golden Gloves 118 pound champion.

Gloves to Winners.

These 32 boys will be fighting for diamond studded golden gloves Friday night. The losers in the final round will receive silver gloves set with an emerald. Then, the eight alternates on the intercity team, which meets the Golden Gloves champions of New York in Madison Square Garden, March 23, will be awarded bronze gloves set with a ruby.

The intercity team will be chosen immediately after Friday night's finals. Only the eight champions definitely are assured positions on the squad of 24. All boys will report to John Behr, head coach of the team, at the Illinois Athletic club on Monday, March 9. One week later, approximately, the team will leave for New York to finish training.

Holtzer Beats Parisis, Retains European Title

PARIS, Feb. 28. — (AP) — Maurice Holtzer of France retained the European featherweight championship tonight by outpointing another French boxer, Jo Parisis, in a 15 round bout. Holtzer weighed 125 pounds Parisis 125½.

SOX BRING OUT BATS, BUT FIND PITCHERS READY

Kreevich Reports Early; Whitehead in Form.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., Feb. 28.—Business boomed in the White Sox camp today for the first time since conditioning got under way last Monday. Bats were fetched from the club house for the inauguration of batting practice. The pitchers, at least most of them, bore down in throwing to the hitters. There was another dose of fungo chasing. The weather was of the kind that California native sons love to have advertised.

An added starter in the two hour program was Mike Kreevich, one time Cub, who has intentions of winning an outfield job under Manager Jim Dykes. Mike wasn't due to work until Monday, but admitted the wintry weather around his home town of Mount Olive, Ill., drove him out. Appearing at the training field here was just like returning to an old pasture for Mike. He was a member of the Los Angeles club in the spring of 1932 when the local park was thrown open for the first time.

Comes Through for Blues.

If any of the freshmen fly chasers breaks into regular employment it probably will be Kreevich. The Cubs passed him up after trials in 1930 and 1931, but that doesn't mean anything. He then was still in the development stage. He averaged .345 last season at Kansas City, and batting marks of that kind are not produced in the American association on personality.

The ideas of Babe Herman, the Cincinnati club outfielder who is a guest artist in the Sox camp, in regard to Kreevich are of interest. The Babe always is pictured as a harmless clown because he likes the part, but there is a lot of sound sense under his hair cut, especially on baseball matters. Herman said today that Kreevich might easily develop into an asset for the White Sox. If Kreevich wins a job it will be in center field.

Whitehead Shows Stuff.

All the important pitchers in camp were asked to throw to the hitters and put a little something on the ball. They included Whitehead, Tietje, Kennedy, Wyatt, Salveson, Stratton, Evans, and Hutchinson. Whitehead really showed something, considering that it was only his fifth day of labor. This display, undoubtedly, was helped by the fact that he no longer carries any excess flesh such as embarrassed him and the team considerably late last season. He now is down to 195 pounds, which is less than he carried last spring. Manager Dykes intends to keep the prize youngster that way, even if it becomes a case of withholding meal money.

Speaking of meals, Rookie Evans, the Chicago citizen who captured 24 victories for Oklahoma City last season and who is looked upon as the best of the pitching crop, is gradually attracting attention. The young man manages to get out to the ball park after a breakfast made up of a steak with three eggs and all the trimmings such as fruit, cereal, coffee and toast. He also answers the dining room summons at noon and night. But he is the kind that doesn't collect fat, so can continue eating to his stomach content.

$3,500 for Babe?

The first batting drill didn't develop any sensations, but even if such had appeared it wouldn't be of consequence. The boys merely got in a lot of needed eye exercises. The local training lot is plenty large to slapping a ball over the outfield hedge isn't easy. Babe Herman hit one beyond the shrubbery, whereupon Manager Dykes informed him the Chicago club would offer Cincinnati $3,500 for his services. The Babe's only response to this was that he feared the purchaser would be cheated. But seriously speaking, the Sox could make good use of him.

SLUGGER BACK IN OLD FORM, SAYS GRIMM

Gets First Drive Off Warneke.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., Feb. 28.—Chuck Klein, whose comeback homer in the fifth game of the world series ran the series into six games—a homer worth $250,000 to the Cubs, Tigers, railroads and Detroit hotels—knocked a homer with an intrinsic value of $0.00 his first 1936 time at bat today. The victim was no other than Lon Warneke, victor in the two games the Cubs took in said world series.

And while today's homer had no immediate cash value, it and other mighty swats including three more homers by the erstwhile National league record setter made Manager Charley Grimm very happy. Said Grimm:

"His timing was better today than it was last September. I have felt ever since Chuck broke loose in the fifth game of the world series that he was due for one of those seasons like he used to have with the Phillies.

Predicts Great Season.

"One practice isn't a season but timing means a lot at the outset and Chuck had it today. He led the league in homers, with 46 in 1929, and he led the league in hitting in 1933. In between he set or tied a lot of other records. He's my right fielder in 1936 and he's going to break some of those records he set way back when."

And Klein reported in perfect condition. He is at exactly his playing weight of 195 pounds and there is no evidence of a recurrence of the leg trouble that was an element in his flop with the Cubs most of last year.

While Chuck grabbed the spotlight in the first workout of the entire squad of 32 Cubs, there still was time to eye other players. Frank Demaree reported a bit overweight but should have little trouble getting in shape. Capt. Woody English, though 20 pounds heavier than he's ever been, treasures the excess like so much gold. Also conspicuous was Gene Lillard, who made 59 homers in the Coast league last year, seven of them in the San Francisco field where the playing area is larger than any in the National league.

Grimm Lays Down Law.

Before the workout today Manager Grimm called a clubhouse meeting in which he reviewed the rules of deportment. As previously reported, there is a midnight curfew. Beer drinking will be permitted in moderation but no oozebay, even in the form of frothy and innocent looking cocktails. Mr. Grimm explained that all violators of deportment rules will be punished this year by automatic fines.

There was only one casualty in today's spirited drill. Joe Vitter, an infielder, got his lip puffed by a ball that took a bad bounce.

Manager Grimm was back in the fielding practice after one day on the casualty list. It was feared for a time yesterday afternoon that he had a cracked middle finger on his right hand, but X-rays showed everything sound. The finger quit hurting shortly afterward.

Big Ten May Air Wisconsin Action Today

Discussion and possible action by the Western conference faculty committee on the University of Wisconsin's ouster of Dr. Walter E. Meanwell and Dr. Clarence Spears from its athletic department is expected today. The faculty group will meet at the University club begining at 9:30 o'clock this morning.

The meeting was announced some weeks ago as for discussion of the broadcasting of Big Ten athletic events "and such other matters as may arise."

The question is whether or not Wisconsin's board of regents violated the letter and spirit of conference regulations, which vest control of athletics in the faculties of the various institutions, when they overrode recommendations of the Badger faculty committee on athletics.

Dean George A. Works of the University of Chicago, chairman of the conference faculty committee this year, has given it as his personal opinion that the Wisconsin board of regents did usurp faculty prerogatives and has predicted an investigation of the Wisconsin situation by the conference. Dr. Works gave his opinion and prediction at Madison two weeks ago at a regents' meeting.

Kansas Beats Nebraska, 43-36; Wins Big Six Title

Lincoln, Neb., Feb. 28.—(AP)—The University of Kansas tonight won the 1936 Big Six conference basketball championship defeating the University of Nebraska, 43 to 36, before 7,000, the largest crowd to attend a basketball game here.

HAWKS SEEK 2D VICTORY OF YEAR ON CANADIAN ICE

Meet Leafs Tonight, Then Hurry Home.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 28.—The Chicago Blackhawks, unbeaten in their last six games, during which they have won three and tied three, will attempt to strengthen their hold on second place in the American section of the National Hocky league tomorrow night when they meet Toronto at the Maple Leaf Gardens. Following the game with the Leafs the Chicagoans will return home to meet the New York Rangers at the Stadium on Sunday night.

The battle for playoff berths in the American section, one of the most spirited in the league's history, now seems to have settled down to a three way duel among the Hawks, the Rangers, and the Boston Bruins, since Detroit, leading the league as well as the section, practically has clinched a place in the series.

Hawks' Position Good.

The Hawks, of course, are in a better position for the playoffs than either the Rangers or Bruins, but the latter two being what they are, anything is possible. Chicago is now two games ahead of the Rangers and two and a half ahead of the Bruins. A victory for the Hawks tomorrow night and Sunday would make the Chicagoans' playoff position almost certain.

In the last six games the Hawks have tied the Americans, Rangers, and Canadiens, and whipped Boston, Toronto and the World Champion Montreal Maroons. The victory over the Maroons last Thursday was Chicago's first triumph of the season on a Canadian rink, and they will be out to add to that victory tomorrow to avenge two previous overtime defeats by Toronto here.

In beating the Leafs at Chicago Sunday, 5 to 1, by their largest goal total of the year, and then shutting out the Maroons on Tuesday, the Hawks played their smoothest hocky. This was done without the aid of Johnny Gottselig, left wing, and Art Wiebe, defense man, both out with injuries. Both have rejoined the team and their work in practice today indicated they will be ready, giving Chicago an intact lineup for the stretch run to the playoffs.

Karakas Makes Good.

The fact that the Hawks occupy their present position by such a comfortable margin through no fluke is proven by the league standings. Their main scoring line of Paul Thompson, Doc Romnes, and Mush March heads the entire league as a unit with a total of 95 points. Their defense, even in the face of injuries, has enabled the agile Mike Karakas to stay in the running for the Vezina goalies' trophy. The skinny Karakas, playing his first year as a rookie, has more than made the big time, and is now only three goals back of Tiny Thompson of Boston for the trophy, in addition to being only one shutout behind the Bruin star. He has seven, Thompson eight.

It is possible for the Hawks to be leading the league after Sunday night's game. This would require victories over Toronto and the Rangers, while Detroit is losing to the Bruins at Boston. The Wings now lead the Chicago six by a game and a half.

Notre Dame Defeats N. U. in Track Meet

Notre Dame, Ind., Feb. 28.—[Special.]—Notre Dame won its third dual meet of the season from Northwestern 64 2-3 to 30 1-3 here tonight. Three meet records fell, two of them into Wildcat hands, as the Irish piled up eight first places to three.

Another of Lewis' meet marks fell before Bob Carter of Northwestern, who ran the sixty yard high hurdles in 7.8 seconds to beat the old mark of 8 seconds. Northwestern's mile relay team established a meet record in 3 minutes 26.1 seconds. Ensley, Kaumanns, Keitel, and Heg formed the quartet. The old mark, made by Northwestern in 1925, was 3:27.4.

SCHAEFER LEADS FIGURE SKATERS IN WORLD MEET

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 28.—Karl Schaefer, lanky Austrian who won the Olympic figure skating title at Garmisch-Partenkirchen recently, today became the favorite to win his ninth world's championship when he led the field in the school figures with a total rating of 226.76 points. Sixteen skaters from nine countries were entered in the meet.

Robin Lee of Minneapolis, 17 year old United States champion, finished seventh in the compulsory figures with a total of 200.92 points, while his fellow townsman, Erle Reiter was 11th with 191.68.

Schaefer was followed by H. Graham Sharp of England with 224.66 points. Felix Kaspar, also of Austria, was third, and Montgomery Wilson of Canada, holder of the North American title, fourth.

5 SWIM MARKS BROKEN IN STATE PREP TRIALS

Five state high school swimming records were broken, one was tied and a new one established in the preliminaries of the annual state meet at Oak Park High school last night.

Sixteen of the 22 schools entered qualified at least one representative. Argo, Morton, Morgan Park, Tilden, Thornton and Waukegan failed to survive the trials.

Maine Township of Des Plaines, the defending champion, is favored to repeat its victory in the finals which will be held this afternoon.

Maine placed men in five of the eight events, the 200 yard free style and 150 yard medley relays, the 200 yard free style, the 100 yard free style and the fancy diving.

George Williams Quintet to Close Season Today

In the WAKE of the NEWS

EARLIER CHICAGO.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., Feb. 28.—Dear Wake: In 1860, when I started going to the Franklin school, Sedgwick and Division streets, it was known as No. 5, the Kinzie school at Ohio and La Salle streets was No. 4, the Ogden No. 10, and I don't recall the number of the Newberry school.

Those were the only public schools on the north side at that time. The Franklin was a two story brick building erected in 1844 as a stone on the front indicated. It consisted of two rooms on the first floor and one large room on the second, with first, second, and third divisions.

Albert G. Lane, later superintendent of Chicago schools, was principal, with the Misses Dupuy and Dugal and Mrs. Fisk teachers, and Miss Archer keeping records of attendance, etc. I have a distinct recollection of Mr. Lane, a handsome man about 5 feet 10 inches tall, well proportioned, large head, large blue eyes, bright curly hair, and a full beard, well trimmed.

About 1863-'64 we secured a piano. At dismissal the pupils marched out to some popular air played by Miss Ella Walcot, who, I have learned since, was a descendant of John Kinzie, our first white settler

T. F. Gallagher.

On the afternoon of the day before Christmas in 1882, P. D. Armour, accompanied by his head cashier, Ed A. James, started his annual walk through the office stopping at every man's desk and wishing him a merry Christmas. As Mr. Armour spoke Mr. James laid a $10 gold piece on each desk. Office boys received $5. There were then 107 office employés.

Christmas morning practically every man was present at 11 o'clock ready for lunch at Charlie Kerns' restaurant across Washington street. It was a festive feast with the best in the house ours for the ordering.

Bright Sayings.

An 8 year old child coming home early from school was met by a lady who asked, "How does it come you are getting out of school so early?" The child answered, "O, you know this is damnation week." Examination is a difficult word at this time of year.

This Wake Is Conducted by Harvey T. Woodruff. Help! Help!

Grief.

Though lights are dimmed and scarlet curtain part
On dazzling boards where song and beauty score,
The watcher views the scene with stricken heart
If one beloved minstrel sings no more.
And mind will resurrect communing eyes
That shone across the footlights' amber flow,
The subtle, covert smile of mock surprise,
The deft "aside," eclipsing all the show.

What doubtful consolation they must bring
To one detached from trouble and audience,
For heart grown alien with remembering.
Who hears some loved refrain attune the pit
And blindly wanders out because of it.

Flamingo Stake.

Joseph E. Widener, master mind of Hialeah, thinks there are too many Derbies in the country and advises dropping the name for most of them. Practicing what he preaches he has promised the Florida Derby, to be run March 7, will be known by another name in 1937.

Flamingo Stake, with the same conditions prevailing as for the present Derby, has been suggested. A flock of 300 flamingos roam through the infield in military like formations or swim in the artificial lake. It is the largest flock ever here. Their wings are clipped to prevent their flying back to Porto Rico as the first flock did, which prompted Freddie Whidden, Associated Press writer, to wisecrack, "I wonder what a flamingo thinks about when it flaps its wings to fly and it doesn't go anywhere."

"In Person."

Sally Rand of fan dance and later bubble dancer fame is making brief personal appearances in cities of these parts. Which reminds of the time when Miss Sally, not yet fully arrived, was seeking publicity. Wilfrid Smith, our co-worker, superintending the taking of photos of a group of Golden Gloves boxers, was annoyed by a young woman who kept trying to butt into the pictures. Finally he asked petulantly, "Young lady, who are you and what are you doing here?"

The demure reply was, "I'm Sally Rand."

MICHIGAN SWIM TEAM DEFEATS IOWA, 43 TO 41

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 28.—[Special.]—After trailing during most of the meet Michigan came from behind to beat the Iowa swimming team, 43 to 41, here tonight. The victory kept intact the Wolverines' record in Big Ten dual meet competition, maintained since March 9, 1929, when Northwestern defeated the Wolverines, 37 to 32.

Big Ten records were bettered in both relays, Iowa winning the 400 yard free style event in 3:39.3, to clip four-fifths of a second off the conference mark. Michigan won the 300 yard medley in 3:01, taking 2.5 seconds off the conference mark.

Crosby Croons Blues; Forgets to Bet $79 Winner

Crosby presented Jocky Danny Brammer with a $500 check as the champion rider of the meeting, which ends tomorrow. Brammer booted home four straight winners today, but Aunt Kitty was not among his mounts. She was ridden by Al Robertson.

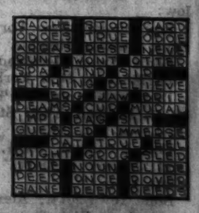
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



DIZZY THREATENS TO BECOME BIG FURNITURE MAN

Brother Paul Also Sticks to Holdout Plans.

Dallas, Tex., Feb. 28.—(AP)—The Dizzy Dean holdout situation began to look genuine tonight.

The St. Louis Cardinal hurler not only talked sincerely of quitting the diamond "for at least a year," but started dickering for a hand in other interests.

The local holdout group also includes Brother Paul Dean and Pinkey Higgins, Philadelphia Athletic third baseman.

Dizzy said he was to meet R. A. Slack of St. Louis, a furniture man, here tonight. He said he probably would go in business with Slack if forced to quit baseball because of the Cardinals' failure to meet his $40,000 salary demand.

He'll Compromise.

"I'm willing to compromise with the Cardinals," Dean said, "but I'm waiting for them to speak first. No, I don't want to say what my compromise would be—but I'll be fair."

He said he had received only one offer from Branch Rickey, vice president and general manager of the Cards, and that called for his last season's salary of $18,500.

"Why, it's outrageous to think the league's leading pitcher shouldn't get a raise after winning twenty-eight games," he said.

GREENBERG TO REPORT.

Lakeland, Fla., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Hank Greenberg, lanky Detroit Tiger first baseman, has sent word he'll report to training camp March 8, regardless of whether he has signed a 1936 contract by that time.

Greenberg's wrist, broken in the second game of the world series last fall, completely has healed.

Although Manager Mickey Cochrane, Al Simmons and several other Tigers already are in camp, the outfielders and infielders will not report until March 8.

BEES IN LONG DRILL.

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 28.—(AP)—The Boston Bees went through a long drill today before a large crowd that included Mayor Frederick W. Mansfield of Boston, here on a vacation.

General Manager Bob Quinn announced that Duffy Lewis, old Red Sox outfield hero, would serve as the Bees' traveling secretary during the coming season. Pitcher Bob Smith will take over Lewis' coaching duties when not on the mound.

CARDS TEST BASE RUNNING.

Bradenton, Fla., Feb. 28.—(AP)—There is such a thing as running and sliding to a pennant, Frankie Frisch believes, so much of today's drill in the Cardinals' spring camp centered on speed on the base paths.

Players also were coached on taking a lead off second, racing from there to home plate on outfield hits, learning to judge by a pitcher's motions what he plans to do and whether the gestures of the third base coach mean to stop or keep going.

O'NEILL LIKES BECKER.

New Orleans, La., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Joe Becker, catcher drafted from the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast league, drew the attention of Manager Steve O'Neill at the Cleveland Indians' training camp today.

Eyeing Becker, who batted .370 last year, O'Neill said:

GROVE NURSES COLD.

Sarasota, Fla., Feb. 28.—(AP)—While Bob [Lefty] Grove nursed a cold in his shoulder, fortunately his right one, Manager Joe Cronin drove the rest of his Boston Red Sox through an hour's routine drill today in a light rain.

Pitcher Johnny Marcum, who settled his salary differences early this week, failed to arrive as was expected. Cronin, however, blamed a landslide on Tennessee railroad tracks for the delay.

GIANTS HIT HOMERS.

Pensacola, Fla., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Home runs by Fred [Firpo] Marberry and Travis Voelkel, rookie infielder, featured the Giants' practice yt today as the New Yorkers continued their limbering up exercises under a hot sun. Gilbert English, infielder purchased from Galveston, joined the squad today, although he was not due to report until Monday, when the remainder of the team will join the batterymen.

DODGERS OPEN DRILL.

Clearwater, Fla., Feb. 28.—(AP)—The Dodgers opened their training today with 17 battery men—not including Van Lingle Mungo—on hand. Gordon [Babe] Phelps, the 225 pound catcher, put on the outstanding performance of the first batting drill when he hit 15 balls over the right field wall. The practice field has exactly the same dimensions as Ebbets field in Brooklyn.

PITCHER COLLINS REFUSES TO GO TO SAN FRANCISCO

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 28.—[Special.]—Phil Collins, veteran pitcher of the St. Louis Cardinals, today balked a proposed deal between the Cards and the San Francisco Seals of the Pacific Coast league by refusing to play with the Seals, officials of the Coast league club announced. President Charles Graham of San Francisco said Collins told him salary terms were satisfactory, but that he does not want to play so far from Chicago, where he conducts a business. Graham today indicated he would request the Cardinals to send Collins to the American association.

Fans Fight as Englewood Wins, 40 to 32

High school students, who are usually quite adept at uprooting football goal posts and firing ripe old tomatoes at basketball officials, climaxed the south section's basketball season of the Chicago Public High School league with a lively battle yesterday when Englewood defeated Hirsch, 40 to 32, at the latter's gymnasium.

Timekeepers Fight, Too.

In addition to several fist fights which broke out in the crowd of 350, Timekeepers Walter Muzlinski of Englewood and Frank Canna of Hirsch engaged in a private battle when Muzlinski accused Canna of tinkering with the official clock.

The fights in the stands started when Dan Talan, Englewood's star forward, who scored 14 points, was shoved by Ollie Davis of Hirsch in the final minutes of the game. Talan suffered an ankle injury. A policeman restored order in the stands, while James Patterson, Hirsch gymnasium instructor, separated the timekeepers.

Englewood Holds Second.

The victory enabled Englewood to maintain second place in the division, one game behind Bowen, but because of a tie game between Bowen and Calumet the section's representatives in the title playoffs will not be determined until this morning in the offices of Athletic Director A. H. Pritzlaff. Bowen triumphed over Parker, 33 to 28, yesterday. Scores:

Miss Berg and Miss Robinson in Golf Final

In the final match for the title tomorrow, Miss Berg, runner-up to Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare in the national championship last year, will be seeking her third title in four Florida appearances. Her opponent will be Lucille Robinson of Des Moines, Ia., former western champion, who today eliminated Marion Miley of Lexington, Ky., present western titleholder, 1 up, in 19 holes.

Miss Berg, already winner of the Punta Gorda and Miami-Biltmore titles and runner-up for the Palm Beach crown, had little trouble in winning today, and although she was two over par in today's semi-final against Miss Cothran, the freckled Minneapolis girl remained four under perfect figures for the tournament, having equalled the course record with a 73 in winning the qualifying medal.

DISCOVERY OUT AS SANTA ANITA CLOSES TODAY

Time Supply, Whopper Top Handicap Field.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Discovery was withdrawn today from the $10,000 added San Juan Capistrano handicap because the 1935 handicap champion was reported out of shape by Trainer Bud Stotler.

Despite the fact that Discovery, A. A. Baroni's little Top Row, victor in last week's Santa Anita handicap, and Rosemont, third in the event, will not run tomorrow, the mile and one-half furlong test retains at least a portion of its original class.

Weights announced today were:

Time Supply, 120; Azucar, 118; Whopper, 112; Singing Wood, 109; First Minstrel, 109; Tick On, 106; Ariel Cross, 102; Scotch Bun, 102; Preeminent, 102; Pompey's Pillar, 104, and Ann O'Ruley, 98.

STAND PAT FAVORITE

Miami, Fla., Feb. 28.—(AP)—The handicap performers will have their last opportunity of the Florida season to race for big money tomorrow when ten of their number, headed by E. F. Seagram's Stand Pat and Sablin, face the barrier in the initial running of the $10,000 Widener challenge cup at Hialeah Park.

The race, a test of one and one-quarter miles, has attracted the leading horses in training at the Florida track, with the Canadian owned Stand Pat assigned the top weight of 122 pounds. The consistent Sablin, in with 109 pounds, has been named as a running mate, with the result the Seagram entry ruled the 7-5 choice in the pre-race wagering.

Mrs. Emil Denemark of Chicago also has entered a strong combination in Nectarine and Corinto, a pair which has been winning more than its share of the races this winter. Both will receive weight from Stand Pat, as Nectarine has been assigned 110 pounds and Corinto 109.

PUBLIC SERVICE, WARD PUT ON DIVIDEND BASIS

Former to Pay 50c; Other, 20 Cents.

Two of Chicago's large companies yesterday resumed dividends on the common stock after a lapse of 3 to 6 years. Montgomery Ward & Co. directors voted a dividend of 20 cents a share and Public Service Company of Northern Illinois declared a quarterly of 50 cents.

Ward's dividend is the first payment to be made on the stock since 75 cents was paid on Aug. 15, 1930. Yesterday's declaration was designated merely as "a dividend" declared out of profits and directors gave no hint of future action on the stock.

Among brokerage houses it had been expected that the stock would be placed on a basis of $1 annually. The twenty cent payment will be made on April 15 to stock of record March 20.

Sales Largest in History.

The company's sales in the fiscal year ended Jan. 31, 1936, were the largest in its history, amounting to 306,101,505, or 17 per cent higher than in the preceding year. Earnings estimates for the fiscal year have been estimated in various quarters at $2.30 to $2.70 a share, against $1.71 a share in the preceding year. Should the $2.70 level be attained earnings would be the highest since 1928 when the per share figure was $4.77.

January sales did not compare favorably with those in preceding months, resulting in the low estimate of $2.30 a share by some observers. However, the actual figure depends much upon year end inventory adjustments.

Public Service Payment.

The resumption of dividends on the common stock of Public Service of Northern Illinois was indicated at the annual meeting last Monday by James Simpson, chairman. Payments of 50 cents quarterly apply to both par and no par common, and are the first to be made on the stock since distributions of 50 cents a share were made on Nov. 1, 1933. Earnings in the year ended Dec. 31, 1935, were equal to $3.73 a common share, against $3.19 in 1934.

Yesterday the company reported net income of $431,580 for January, a slight decline from the $440,423 for the like month of last year. Gross earnings for the month totaled $3,481,901, against $3,235,040 a year ago.

All present officers of the company were reelected at the annual meeting of the board of directors yesterday, at which regular quarterly dividends were also declared on the 6 and 7 per cent preferred stocks, all payable May 1 to stock of record April 15.

Others Raise Payments.

Pfeiffer Brewing company directors increased the annual dividend rate on the common stock yesterday by declaring a payment of 30 cents quarterly, compared with 25 cents previously. The company had paid three extras of 15 cents each in 1935.

British Columbia Power company also raised the rate on its common stock by ordering a dividend of 80 cents, placing the stock on an annual basis of $1.80, against $1.50 previously.

National-Standard company increased its dividend rate on the capital stock and declared an extra 12½ cents a share. A quarterly dividend of 62½ cents was declared, compared with 50 cents in the preceding quarter.

HUDSON MOTOR REPORTS PROFIT; HAD LOSS IN 1934

Net earnings of $584,749, or 38 cents a share, were reported for Hudson Motor Car company yesterday in the annual report for 1935 issued by A. Edward Barit, president. A net loss of $3,239,201 was sustained in 1934. Hudson's figures for the first nine months of 1935 showed a loss of $250,561, the entire year's profit being obtained from fourth quarter operations, which netted an indicated $835,310.

Barit said the company built and shipped 101,080 cars last year and that the retail organization is at its highest level since 1930. The outlook for this year is encouraging, he added, with retail deliveries 46 per cent higher in the first 18 weeks of new model shipments than in the same period a year ago.

Net sales of $63,077,414 for 1935 were 20 per cent above the 1934 figure of $52,567,560. Cost of sales was $60,376,400, compared with $53,788,356.

MICHIGANUTILITY FILES 55 MILLION REFUNDING LOAN

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—[Special.]—Consumers Power company of Jackson, Mich., has filed a registration statement covering $55,830,000 of first mortgage bonds, series of 1936, due 1970. The interest rate to be paid on the bonds will be set by an amendment to the statement.

The company said that proceeds from the sale of $4,999,400 of the bonds are to be used to reimburse the treasury for expenditures for improvements to property. Proceeds from the remainder of the issue are to be applied to the redemption on May 1 of $50,830,600 principal amount of the company's outstanding first lien and unifying mortgage 4½ per cent bonds, series of 1928, due 1958, at 105 per cent.

Stocks Slump on Prospects of New Taxes

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 28.—Announcement of the administration's determination to saddle an additional $1,137,000,000 in "emergency" taxes upon the country precipitated a flood of selling orders upon the stock market in the late trading today, sending prices down from a fraction to 2 points below their forenoon highs. Disappointment in Wall street over reduced railroad fares and an unexpectedly low dividend by Montgomery Ward & Co. were contributing factors.

Activity picked up sharply on the reaction and the middle of the final hour found the ticker running several minutes behind the market. Toward the close, however, the selling dried up and many issues, such as American Can, United States Steel, Westinghouse, Atchison, and American Telephone, made substantial recoveries. The net result was a mixed tabulation on the day.

Leading Issues Irregular.

Allied Chemical, American Can, American Telephone, Deere, Bethlehem Steel, and J. I. Case displayed rather impressive plus signs, but Atchison, New York Central, Montgomery Ward, Consolidated Gas, Public Service, General Electric, Chrysler, Western Union, and National Distillers showed losses running to 2 points. Standard Oil of New Jersey, du Pont, Johns Manville, and United Aircraft were unchanged. Changes in the rank and file of stocks ranged from the loss of a point or so to gains of the same amount.

The selling movement came as a sequel to a display of quiet strength in the first three or four hours of trading, although observers noted an increasing tendency toward caution and a gradual slackening of the buying movement in departments where it had been most noticeable.

Fear Curb on Trading.

In addition to the concern manifested in some quarters over possibilities of the Japanese disturbances, some traders seemed somewhat perturbed over the fresh hint by the federal reserve advisory council that potential speculation ought to be curbed by cutting down excess reserves.

Prices of such roads as New York Central, Atchison, Delaware and Hudson, and Lackawanna sold off a point or so following the announcement, of the fares cut, but the reaction as a whole was no more pronounced than that of other divisions of the market. Moreover, the carloadings figures showed a sharp drop for the week ended Feb. 22 and this it was thought may have influenced a good proportion of the selling of carrier shares.

The volume of trading was 2,473,160 shares, slightly higher than in the previous session.

Stock turnover for the twenty-three trading days of February will be approximately 61,000,000 shares, the largest for the month since 1931, when sales were 64,000,000 shares. The record for the month was set in 1929, with 78,000,000 shares.

With the exception of January, the turnover this month will be the largest for any month since July, 1933.

FILE FIRST SUIT TO REGAIN AAA PROCESSING TAX

New York, Feb. 28.—[Special.]—The first tax recovery case striking at the many millions of dollars collected under the Agricultural Administration act was filed in the federal court today by three local tobacco companies. They seek the return of $29,434 paid to the collector of internal revenue prior to Aug. 1, 1935.

Although tax money impounded after Aug. 1, 1935, and amounting in the southern district to more than $100,000, has been returned to various tobacco companies under court order, this suit is to recover money paid in taxes directly to the treasury department before that date. Some $25,000,000 in taxes are said to be at stake if the recovery action should be successful.

A New York attorney, Edwin N. Reiskin, today renewed his court effort to compel large corporations to turn over their refunds of processing taxes to Henry Morgenthau Jr., secretary of the treasury. With refund to individual consumers impracticable, he says the government should get the money.

Soap manufacturers today filed suit in the District of Columbia Supreme court to recover about 26 million dollars of processing taxes paid on Philippine coconut oil.

SUPREME COURT TEST OF UTILITY ACT REQUESTED

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—(AP)—A test of the constitutionality of the public utility holding company act—bitter issue of the last session of congress—was sought today in the Supreme court.

The Public Utility Investing corporation and the Associated Utilities corporation asked an injunction restraining the Utilities Power and Light Corporation of Virginia from complying with the act and cited the recent TVA decision as the basis for their appeal.

Illinois Central Gets First of Three Diesel Engines

Delivery was made yesterday to the Illinois Central system of the first of three oil-electric Diesel locomotives, which will be used in freight service between Chicago and the railroad's Markham yard, south of Harvey. The engine was built by the General Electric company and Ingersoll-Rand, cost $195,000, and has two 900 horse power motive plants. It will make a round trip daily, replacing two steam locomotives now required for the service. The other two engines will be delivered in a few weeks.

BORG-WARNER RAISES DIVIDEND; EARNINGS LARGEST SINCE 1929

The Borg-Warner corporation yesterday increased the dividend rate on the common stock, voted to redeem 5,000 shares of preferred stock, and announced the largest net profit since 1929.

Directors voted a quarterly dividend of 75 cents on the common, compared with 50 cents previously, and declared a regular quarterly of $1.75 on the preferred, both payments to be made on April 1 to stock of record March 31.

Net earnings in the year ended Dec. 31, 1935, amounted to $6,982,732 after all charges. After preferred dividends these earnings are equivalent to $5.89 a share on the common stock outstanding. In 1934 the company had net profit of $3,750,576, equal to $3.06 a share. In 1929 earnings amounted to $7,660,795, or $6.09 a share.

Five thousand shares of the preferred stock, with a par value of $500,000, will be redeemed on July 1, 1936, at $107.50 a share and accrued dividends. The selection of shares will be by lot on all certificates outstanding April 15. On March 1 the company will also retire 1,200 shares, in accordance with sinking fund provisions. After July 1 there will be 13,800 shares outstanding with a total par value of $1,380,000. The company redeemed 5,000 shares last Nov. 30 on the same basis.

J. R. THOMPSON CO. SALES DECLINE; LOSS INCREASES

The John R. Thompson company yesterday released its annual report showing a reduction in sales and increased loss during 1935. The net operating loss for the year ended on Dec. 31 was $53,349, compared with $171,717 in 1934. After sundry adjustments from prior years there was a net loss of $48,169, compared with $19,812 in 1934.

Sales for the year totaled $11,247,795, compared with $11,668,345 in the preceding year. The company explained that the decline was accounted for by sales of two units at A Century of Progress in 1934, which did a business of $479,246, while other units also benefited that year from the increased traffic into Chicago.

"A total of $388,990 was paid out during the year in various forms of taxes, equivalent to $1.30 per share on the capital stock of the company, which is more than two and a half times the amount of dividends [$149,247] paid to stockholders last year," said John R. Thompson Jr., president. These did not include processing taxes.

The company's current assets on Dec. 31 last amounted to $1,867,211, including cash of $1,241,929, against current liabilities of $750,279. This compares with current assets of $1,741,208, cash of $952,562, and current liabilities of $666,269 on Dec. 31, 1934.

GRIGSBY-GRUNOW TRUSTEE TO SELL REST OF ASSETS

Under an order entered by the United States District court for the northern district of Illinois on Feb. 19, Frank M. McKay, trustee of the Grigsby-Grunow company, has called for bids for all remaining assets of the company, which is undergoing liquidation.

The assets include machinery, radio parts, tubes and equipment, refrigerator service parts, good will, the trade-marked name Majestic, and real estate at 5801 Dickens avenue, consisting of 950,000 square feet of buildings. Bids will be received until March 10.

South. Pacific 1935 Results Are Improved

New York, Feb. 28.—[Special.]—Net income of the Southern Pacific lines in 1935 increased $1,938,364 to $2,346,589 over the preceding year the annual report of the Southern Pacific company revealed today. The lines and all separately operated, solely controled affiliated companies, however, showed a consolidated net loss of $1,744,551, compared with a net loss of $3,907,604 in 1934.

Other income decreased $2,049,273, mainly because of reduced dividends from the Pacific Fruit Express company. Those dividends last year amounted to $8,393,168, compared with $10,286,413 in 1934. Of those amounts approximately $900,000 in 1935 and $1,900,000 in 1934 were paid out of earnings accrued prior to 1933.

Freight Revenues Rise.

Freight revenues of the Southern Pacific lines totaled $126,091,432, a gain of $10,852,237, while total operating revenues were $163,381,511, an increase of $14,188,803. Operating expenses were $123,898,159, a gain of $10,318,943.

Approximately $5,600,000 of the $10,318,943 increase in operating expenses resulted from the restoration of the reduction in employés' wages effective early in 1932.

Passenger revenues increased $2,045,094 to $20,774,442. This substantial gain reflected the stimulation of travel resulting from the operation of air conditioned passenger cars and continuance of low basic fares experimentally initiated in 1933, said Hale Holden, chairman.

Views Business on Upgrade.

Business generally, Holden continued, appeared to be on a sounder basis than at any time since the beginning of the depression period. Freight trafic improved progressively throughout the year, and for the last quarter the revenues were larger than for the same period since 1930.

Net operating income of railroads reporting today for January included:

CHICAGO CURB MEMBERS URGED TO GET LISTINGS

Members of the Chicago Curb exchange were asked yesterday to help increase trading on that market by seeking listings of new issues in a letter sent out by Gilbert M. Clayton, secretary.

Clayton cited evidence of improvement in business on the curb, including the fact that trading in the first two months of 1936 was five times the share volume and ten times the dollar volume in the same period last year. He also pointed to sale of a membership for $1,000 this week, the highest price since July, 1933, and comparing with a low of $300 at the last previous sale in November, 1934.

Union Station 44 Million Refunding Plan Approved

Directors of the Chicago Union Station company have approved a plan for refunding the company's $30,850,000 of first mortgage 4½ per cent bonds, series A, and $13,150,000 of first mortgage 5 per cent bonds, series B, both maturing July 1, 1963, with an issue of $44,000,000 of 3¾ per cent bonds, M. W. Clement, president, announced yesterday.

ATLAS SELLS CONTROL OF $300,000,000 BANK; STOCK TO BE OFFERED

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 28.—[Special.]—Control of the American Trust company, a bank with resources of nearly $300,000,000, was returned here today when a group of investment bankers headed by Blythe & Co. purchased for local interests two-thirds of the common stock of the bank from the American company, a subsidiary of Atlas corporation, investment company with New York headquarters.

The American company, which has owned substantially all of the 75,000 common shares of the bank, will retain the other third of the stock in its portfolio, according to Floyd B. Odlum, president of Atlas.

Parties to the deal, which is said to involve $18,000,000, were Odlum, Charles R. Blyth, and Fred T. Elsey, president of the bank. No changes in management are contemplated other than retirement of G. Parker Toms, executive vice president.

The syndicate also has purchased from the bank 150,000 shares of new 4 per cent preferred stock for $7,500,000. The funds received will be used to retire the $7,500,000 preferred stock held by the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Under the plan each share of common stock, which had a par value of $100, is being divided into five shares of $20 par value. This will give the bank a capitalization of 375,000 common and 150,000 preferred shares.

It is understood that 250,000 common shares and the entire preferred issue acquired by the syndicate will be sold to the public in communities served by the bank.

It was reported a short time ago that the Bank of America was about to close a deal to obtain control, but negotiations failed.

FREIGHT TRAFIC HOLDS FIVE YEAR SEASONAL PEAK

Freight trafic on the nation's railroads in the week ended Feb. 22 set a five-year peak for the week despite a reduction of 7.1 per cent in the total from the preceding week. The decline was due largely to the Washington's birthday holiday.

The week's trafic of 586,712 cars was 33,547 cars, or 6.1 per cent, above the corresponding week of last year, and 11,804 cars or 2.1 per cent ahead of two years ago.

It was the thirteenth consecutive week in which the total for the particular week reached the highest level in five years.

The movement last week by commodities was:

	Total.	—Drop from— Prev.wk.	Yr. ago.
Merchandise	131,805	12,485	10,213

*Increase.

Total loadings since the beginning of the year to Feb. 22 were 4,815,106 cars, compared with 4,492,268 cars in the corresponding period of last year and 4,497,556 cars in the 1934 period.

Week's Auto Production Rises to 64,956 Units

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Cram's Reports, Inc., said today production of passenger cars and trucks in the United States and Canada showed a slight increase this week to 64,956 units compared with 62,813 units in the preceding week. A year ago production was 83,899 units. The report said the low point of the production season appears to have passed.

BANK RESERVES BOOST URGED TO HALT INFLATION

Excess Credit Feared by Advisory Board.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Declaring that it is "unwise and unsound" to permit the building of a credit structure on the 3 billion 60 million dollars of banks' excess reserves the federal advisory council has urged the federal reserve board to reduce this inflationary threat by increasing the amount of reserves which the commercial banks are legally required to carry with the federal reserve banks against their deposit liabilities, Dr. Walter Lichtenstein, secretary of the council, announced yesterday.

DR. WALTER LICHTENSTEIN.

The federal advisory council is a statutory body composed of one leading banker from each of the twelve federal reserve districts, whose duty is to advise the members of the federal reserve board in Washington on national monetary and credit policies. Edward E. Brown, president of the First National Bank of Chicago, is a member for this district.

Repeat Credit Warnings.

Repeatedly the advisory council has warned the reserve board of the dangers of inordinate bank credit expansion that may result from the vast supply of idle bank funds which, under present rules, might suddenly be put to use for speculative purposes. It is estimated that the present 3 billion 60 million dollars of excess reserves is sufficient for a thirty billion dollar expension of bank credit.

At times the council's insistence has led to bitterness between its members and the members of the reserve board, who are politically appointed and therefore especially sensitive to the administration's need for an artificially "easy" money market in order to facilitate the periodic sale of big new issues of government securities. The law specifies that the council may advise the board but it does not compel the board to heed the council's advice. A year ago the council created somewhat of a sensation by permitting its recommendations to leak out without the consent of the reserve board.

Group at Peace Now.

This time, however, all is apparently serene in the relations between the council and the reserve board. Yesterday's statement by the council disclosing its most recent recommendations was released with the express permission of the board in Washington.

The whole issue turns on the question of whether the reserve board should exercise the powers granted it under the banking act of 1935 to reduce the amount of idle and potentially usable bank reserves.

At present banks belonging to the reserve system are required to pledge with the federal reserve banks amounts equal to 3 per cent of their time deposits, plus amounts equal to from 7 to 13 per cent of their demand deposits, the exact percentage in any case depending upon the location of the bank.

Six Billions of Reserve Funds.

Because there are nearly six billions of reserve funds, three billions of which are "excess," however, the council—and many other bankers, including Winthrop Aldrich, president of the Chase National bank in New York—insists that the percentage should be increased. The reserve board has the power to double them. Even if the board should use its maximum power, however, there would probably be several hundred millions of excess reserves.

"Of the slightly less than six billion dollars of reserves, approximately three billion dollars of which are required, no less than two billion

New Soil Plan Called Bribe for Farmers

The only purpose that New Deal congressmen have in seeking a substitute for the AAA is to again start giving government money to farmers in order to win their support, Dan D. Casement, president of the Farmers' Independence Council of America, asserted yesterday in an address before the Executives' club in the Hotel Sherman. He termed the congressional debate which preceded the adoption of the new soil conservation legislation "an insult to intelligence."

"It must be apparent to every one," said Casement, "that those to whom the framing of the law has been delegated now have two objects in view: a quick restoration of treasury checks to farmers and a plausible excuse on which to hang that purpose.

"The administration must be bankrupt in civic morals, common sense, and patriotism when its only prescription for every social and economic infirmity is public money in ever increasing doses."

Offers Farmers' Program.

Casement, who operates a 3,500 acre farm at Manhattan, Kas., offered a seven point farm program which he pointed out "is a farm policy for farmers, addressed to farmers and not to the government. His program was:

1. Take agriculture out of politics and stop looking to government for help.
2. Tend your own business.
3. Practice thrift, economy, and industry.
4. Produce all you can.
5. Make the economic law of supply and demand operate in your interest by buying as little as possible until urban prices come down.
6. Improve marketing methods and the quality of your product.
7. Reduce production costs.

"The AAA disciples want a plan which will at once better their condition and a political program for their succor that government can make effective now. Such a program is beyond the power of any man or government successfully to conceive and install in a democracy."

Raps High Wages and Prices.

Casement declared that the interests of the farmer and the consumer demand that we discard the theory of high wages and high prices.

"The crises will actually end when we do discard it and not until then," he said, "while spectacular monetary inflation may soon greatly aggravate the crisis.

"Only maximum production can restore normal employment. It can be generated only by maximum demand stimulated by rock bottom costs and corresponding prices. It is well-nigh criminal to talk of overproduction so long as human wants are unsatisfied.

"What can the farmer do about it? He can lend a deaf ear to an appeal to join forces with organized labor and ignore pleas to help the revolution sought by Tugwell."

NAME SCHALLER TO CONTINUE AS 'FED' BANK HEAD

Bowan Retains Post Under New Law.

Directors of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago yesterday elected George J. Schaller president of the institution to fill the new position created by the federal banking act of 1935. Schaller had served as governor of the bank for the last two years, a position which is eliminated under the new setup. Howard P. Preston, who has been deputy governor of the bank, was named first vice president by the directors. Both positions were filled for a five year period.

G. J. SCHALLER. [Moffett-Russell Photo.]

C. R. McKay and J. H. Dillard, also deputy governors, were named vice presidents for one year. W. H. Snyder was elected vice president and cashier for the same term.

No Action on Chairman.

No announcement was made concerning the position of chairman and federal reserve agent, now held by Eugene M. Stevens. The position is filled by the board of governors of the reserve system, which also passes on the election of other officers by the bank directors.

There has been some uncertainty over Stevens' reappointment. It has been reported in Washington that a new man would be elected to the position and that Stevens would be retained in an advisory capacity. Selection of Stevens' successor, however, has not been made so far and it is believed he may be reappointed for a short period pending definite decision by Washington authorities.

Schaller's election dispelled rumors that another man of Washington's choosing would be selected to fill the new position of president.

Joined Bank in 1933.

Schaller, a former Storm Lake, Ia., banker, came to the reserve bank in December, 1933, as acting governor. Following the retirement of James B. McDouglall he was named governor.

Four assistant vice presidents were elected by the board. They are W. C. Bachman, O. J. Netterstrom, A. L. Olson, and A. T. Sihler. R. J. Hargreaves was made manager of the personnel department and A. M. Black was appointed manager of the planning department.

The following assistant cashiers were named: F. Bateman, J. C. Callahan, N. B. Dawes, F. A. Lindsten, F. L. Purrington, J. G. Roberts, C. M. Saltnes, and L. G. Meyer.

R. H. Buss was named managing director of the banking department of the bank's Detroit branch. Other officers in the Detroit branch named are H. J. Chalfont, cashier; A. H. Vogt and H. L. Diehl, assistant cashiers.

Harrison Retains Post.

New York, Feb. 28.—[Special.]—George L. Harrison was elected president of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York today. He was formerly governor, a position which has been superseded by the presidency.

Minneapolis Elects Peyton.

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 28.—[Special.]—John N. Peyton was elected president and chief executive office of the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis by directors of the institution today. Succeeding Peyton as chairman and federal reserve agent is William B. Geery, governor of the bank since 1927.

NEW DEAL WARS ON TRADE CHIEFS, THORPE ASSERTS

Wants Them Replaced by Political Generals.

Merle Thorpe, editor of Nation's Business, yesterday termed the United States a nation of economic illiterates and asserted that the New Deal had no desire to win the economic war, but set out on a deliberate campaign to depose old business leaders and replace them with academic and political generals. He spoke at a luncheon of the Business Secretaries forum in the Blackstone hotel.

"The first move in war," Thorpe said, "is the establishment of a propaganda bureau to maintain confidence at home, keep up the morale in the field, and impress foreign countries. The present war against the depression has been accompanied by the greatest propaganda drive in history. But its whole effort has been directed toward attacks on the generals in charge of the various divisions—banking, utility, and manufacturing.

Confidence Is Destroyed.

"The result has been a destruction of confidence in our leaders that has curtailed buying and retarded recovery to a point where gains have been attained in spite of and not because of stimulants."

Thorpe said that despite the fact the United States is in the best position in its history to move forward governmental efforts to stimulate buying have accomplished nothing but the spread of fear and hesitation.

"It is doubtful if a pint emerges from the billions spent in pump priming," he said. "Excessive political waste is halting recovery. Wealth is created only by labor and conversion of products of the soil. The government can't create a dime. It must obtain the money for its expenditures from those who have had will power enough to spend less than they make.

"With 40 cents of every dollar earned going into the political maw the question of how these sums will be repaid creates fear and retards business activity."

View on Immigration.

Thorpe cited the heavy immigration into the United States as proof of what this country has accomplished in the past and declared immigration walls to stem the flow were not built high enough as radical ideas have crept over the top. The United States, he said, has been adopting ideas used only by nations on the decline.

He assailed the entrance of government into competition with private enterprise.

"The greatest aid government could give would be to let business alone," he said. "Politics has never created a wealth producing enterprise since the world began. It has never originated a business which would provide a continuance of employment. Politics only takes over what has been pioneered by private enterprise. Even the United States postoffice was started as a private venture.

"While some of the so-called artificial aids may have been well meant, so was the desire of the elephant who offered to replace the setting hen that she might have an afternoon off. The intent was generous but the results disastrous."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 28.—United States government issues moved higher on the listed bond market today in the liveliest trading since details of the March 15 financing were made public. Both long and short term treasury issues rose an eighth to a quarter point each.

A new high for 1935-'36 was established by Home Owners Loan 2¾s on a rise of 7-32 point to 101.2. The 3s of 1952 gained 4-32 to 102.2, also a new peak.

Corporate List Irregular.

Domestic corporate bonds turned irregular and, with the exception of a few individual issues, price changes were restricted to narrow limits. Some secondary railroad liens were slightly higher, but profit taking ruled among the recent speculative favorites among the industrials and public utilities.

American Rolling Mill 4¼s and Studebaker 6s both reacted sharply, while, in contrast, American Type Founders 6s moved up 2⅞ points. In the utility list, American Water Works and Electric 5s yielded 3¼ points on a fair turnover.

Foreign Group Firmer.

A firmer undertone ruled in the market for Japanese and Italian dollar loans with several of those issues rallying moderately from their recent lows. One price average for the foreign group rose 0.11 point on the day.

Total transactions were $14,396,000, par value, compared with $15,069,000 the day before. The turnover in the government division was approximately $1,204,000.

HIDE FUTURES.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—[Special.]—Hide futures lacked the aggressive buying which was such a feature on Thursday and closed 7@12 points lower. Sales were 45 lots, or 1,800,000 lbs. Closing bids in cents per pound: March, 11.10c; June, 11.45c; September, 11.78c; December, 12.08c; March (1937), 12.37c.

First National Stores.

Investors' Guide: First National Stores: I would appreciate information.—M. F. W.

Answer: First National Stores, Inc., is the fourth largest retail grocery chain in this country. Activities are concentrated in the Boston metropolitan district, but operations extend throughout New England and into Westchester county, N. Y. It operates 2,623 stores.

The company leases all its outlets. About 30 to 40 per cent of total business is accounted for by private brands.

Net profit for the nine months to Dec. 28, 1935, was $780,000, or $2.63 per common share, against $634,000, or $3.02 per common share on a smaller number of shares, for the corresponding 1934 period.

Yr. ended March 31.	Sales.	Net income. com. shr.	Inc. per
1935	$111,323,000	$3,434,000	$3.89
1934	105,813,000	4,395,000	4.97
1933	100,891,000	4,220,000	4.78
1932	107,634,000	4,826,000	5.52

Although sales in the last fiscal year hit a new high and tonnage increased over the year before, earnings sagged because wholesale prices rose at a faster pace than retail prices, resulting in a contracted margin of profit. Results to the close of 1935, however, indicate that this condition is being overcome.

On March 31, 1935, current position was strong. There are outstanding 27,216 shares of 7 per cent $100 par preferred and 827,634 shares of no par common. The common pays 62½ cents a quarter. The preferred is high grade. The common deserves a fairly good rating.

Central States Investment Trust.

Investors' Guide: Will you kindly let me know what has become of Central States Investment Trust? I own 20 shares of preferred and 20 common shares. I bought it of one man. I want to sell the stock, so I went to see their head sales manager. He did not act very good to me. Now I cannot find it on any exchange.—S. N.

Answer: On April 4, 1935, Central States Investment Trust had no assets except those in possession of the trustee under the bond issue. Liquidation of those assets, it was estimated, might result in an additional 10 per cent distribution to debenture holders. They received 75 per cent in cash in November, 1934.

It therefore appears that the stock, both preferred and common, is worthless.

New Crop Delivery Loses Less than May Option.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The price of May wheat fell a half cent a bushel in the Chicago market yesterday. The July future, however, which is based on the 1936 wheat crop, lost only an eighth of a cent and closed at 91 cents a bushel. The final quotation on the May delivery was $1.00¼.

With weather conditions over the winter wheat belt furnishing the chief price influence on the new crop futures and current commercial demand governing the May contract, the market action follows an irregular pattern.

Reports on winter crop conditions yesterday were not promising. It is from the southwestern states, where hard winter wheat is raised, that most of the disturbing reports are coming.

Southwest Needs Moisture.

Surveys of the southwestern belt show a substantial acreage in Kansas, Texas, and Oklahoma is in need of moisture. The moisture deficiency in that area, notably west of the 100th meridian, has been a known crop factor for months, but as the crucial growing season approaches it is becoming a more immediate price factor in the new crop futures.

The recession in May wheat yesterday was apparently a reflection of a shrinkage in demand from commercial interests who have been removing their hedges in the last few days. It was this buying that was credited with pushing up the price of the May contract on Thursday.

Prices on May Futures.

	Yesterday.	Thursday.	Wk. ago.
Wheat	$1.00¼	$1.00¾	$ .98¾
Corn	.60¼	.60¾	.60⅝
Oats	.29	.29½	.29½
Rye	.56⅝	.56⅝	.56¾

Trading in all grains was small. Corn declined approximately a half cent a bushel, while closing figures on oats and rye showed only trifling changes from the preceding day. The corn pit was nearly deserted by traders during intervals of the trading season, with speculative interest in the grain at an extreme low point.

CHICAGO STOCKS UNEVEN; TRADE TOTAL SHRINKS

Price movements were mixed yesterday as trading dwindled to 64,000 shares on the Chicago Stock exchange. Forty-six issues advanced, 44 declined, and 48 were unchanged.

Gains of a point or more were made by Godchaux Sugar A, Public Service 6 per cent preferred, and National Standard as they accounted for three of the day's nine new highs for 1936.

Of the most active shares, Chicago corporation, Central and South West Utilities, Mickelberry, and Consumers were unchanged. Losses of a point or more were recorded by Modine, Quaker Oats preferred, Sivyer Steel, Southwest Gas & Electric, A. M. Castle, and Kentucky Utilities 6 per cent preferred.

U. S. ACCOUNTANT SELECTED TO AID BOARD OF TRADE

Douglas Bagnell, chief accountant for the grain futures administration in Chicago for the last three years, has been selected to act in a similar capacity for the business conduct committee of the Chicago Board of Trade.

Creation of the new position by the exchange was as an aftermath of the failure last April of the Rosenbaum Grain corporation which resulted in the closing of the market for one day. The filing of reorganization papers under the bankruptcy act by the Rosenbaum firm came without warning and led to agitation among members to strengthen the system for examination of finances of member firms.

LARD ADVANCES ON SHORT COVERING DUE TO HOG GAIN

Scattered short covering and buying based on the light receipts and higher prices for hogs lifted lard futures moderately yesterday, with the close unchanged to 7½ cents higher. Hedging sales and profit taking checked the advance. A fair domestic trade in cash lard is reported. Leading interests assert Lent had little effect on consumption of lard, although that of meats is reduced.

Clear bellies closed 10 cents higher. Cash lard was quoted at $10.70; loose and leaf at $10.25, and clear bellies at $14.42 per 100 pounds. Prices in dollars per 100 pounds follow.
